How Heavy is the Earth.
Prohibition Surprises.
More Argentine Trouble.
Well Out of the League.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

DR. HEYL, DEEP and genuine scientist of the Bureau of Standards, is constructing a device to "make the fourth dimension visible to the eye of the average man." He will not succeed, because he himself cannot imagine the fourth dimension except as a mathematical theory. His contrivance thus far looks "like a ball of pop-corn."

The fourth, fifth, sixth and other dimensions that are suggested, seem to the ordinary man more like a ball of "poppycock."

DR. HEYL HAS done something more interesting than making men try to imagine when they cannot imagine. He has actually weighed the earth on which we stand.

If you want to know how heavy it is, write down the figures 6,592, followed by 18 zeros, which read six thousand five hundred and ninety two million million million tons.

THE EARTH is about as heavy as though made of solid steel, and it is interesting to reflect that that appalling weight on which we live floats, always in time, around the sun, through the ether, if the ether really exists, which is an unsettled question.

THIS NEWS will interest former Gov. Al Smith and Mr. Raskob, manager of the Democratic party.

Maj. Maurice Campbell, former prohibition administrator of New York, in charge when Gov. Smith ran for president, says among other interesting things that his superior "ordered him to loosen up brewery supervision in New York while the Republicans were campaigning against Gov. Smith, and that the voters of New York should have beer to soothe their parched throats."

If the Republicans fought Democrats PROMISING beer by actually DISTRIBUTING real beer, it seems like hitting below the belt.

SINCERE PROHIBITIONISTS were shocked when Dwight W. Morrow ran in the New Jersey senatorial primary on a wet platform written by himself, and carried every county in New Jersey.

Prohibition will be more heavily shocked in November when they read figures showing Mr. Morrow's election by an enormous majority.

ANTI-PROHIBITION or "wetness," treated as a strictly Democratic disease in 1928, is now attacking the magnificent Republican elephant.

In the far northwest, Mr. Jones, of the Jones law, says he is willing to be wet, if his state votes that way.

Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick, of Illinois, if her state turns wet, is willing to be wet also, and the Anti-Saloon League nominates another lady against her.

MRS. RUTH PRATT in New York, a very intelligent Republican lady, takes wetness quite for granted, saying "there's no use even talking about it," as all three candidates in her district, the Democrat, Socialist and herself, Republican, are all wet.

AND NOW IT IS predicted that Charles H. Tuttle, aggressive Federal district attorney in New York, who has been revealing sales of judgeships and other Democratic peculiarities in that city, will run for governor on a wet plank. Politics has sudden changes. But, rural districts are still dry, and predictions are dangerous.

IN THE ARGENTINE, few killed, many wounded, and new fighting threatened. Airplanes guard important points, and Irigoyen, late president, is locked up, inaccessible. The cable is censored, lack of employment puts many in the streets that would otherwise be at work. A serious situation may develop.

IRIGOYEN, who used to denounce the Monroe Doctrine, may be changing his mind.

If there were no Monroe Doctrine this would be an excellent time for some European or Asiatic power to arrive, saying:

"With your kind permission, we shall take charge."

That won't be done with Uncle Sam's Monroe warning posted up.

BRITAIN, GREETING with cool cordiality the French proposition for a "United States of Europe," insists that a federation of European states, whatever it may be "shall remain within the League of Nations."

In other words, it would be part of the league, which would be a sort of super-government, above the various "United States of Europe."

THAT IS ANOTHER reason for being grateful that this country did not get caught on the League of Nations fly paper.

If we were in the League, we might find ourselves a subordinate trans-Atlantic feature of the new federation of Europe.

We have had our ups, but at least we can be grateful that—thanks to Providence and a few men of intelligence—we kept out of that League.

LAST SATURDAY the Italian government executed four Jugoslavs, convicted of terrorism.

Mayor Ousted in Detroit; Anti-Dry Candidates Make Good Showing in Primaries

Associated Press.

The decisive defeat of Senator Cole L. Blease in South Carolina and the elimination in Louisiana of Senator Joseph E. Ransdell stood out today in the results of the primaries held yesterday in eight states.

While the two Democrats went under, the first to James F. Byrnes, former representative, and the latter to Gov. Huey P. Long, Senator James Couzens appeared sure of the Republican nomination in Michigan. Byrnes and Long, by their Democratic nominations, are assured of election in November.

RECALL OUSTS BOWLES

Tabulation of returns from all but six of Detroit's 852 precincts showed the following vote in yesterday's special mayoralty election: Frank Murphy, 105,060; Charles Bowles, 93,384; George Engel, 85,491; John W. Smith, 21,542, and Phillip Raymond, a Communist, 3,35[illegible].

Bowles tried unsuccessfully to regain his office as mayor, which he won as a reform candidate, and lost in a recall election after six months in office. Bowles ran ahead of Engel, candidate of the recall campaign committee.

The recall movement was precipitated by Police Commissioner H. H. Emmons raiding gambling joints while Bowles was attending the Kentucky Derby, and being dismissed when Bowles returned.

In Michigan Jesse P. Wolcott, who made prohibition an issue, ran only 75 votes behind the veteran dry leader, Representative Louis C. Cramton, when returns had been tabulated from the Seventh Congressional District in the

RUTH ASSAILS DRY LEAGUE

PEORIA, Ill., Sept. 10.—(INS.)—Charges made by Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick that the Anti-Saloon League is comprised of "unofficial dictators" were regarded today as a challenge from the Republican nominee for the United States senatorship for a finish fight on the prohibition referendum to be held with the November 4 election.

In an address before Republican organization workers here last night, Mrs. McCormick denounced the League's opposition to the referendum, accusing its members of opposing representative government and the principal of majority rule.

Heretofore the League has always been her supporter, and Mrs. McCormick's remarks served, according to observers, to quicken the three-cornered senatorial race between Mrs. McCormick, J. Hamilton Lewis, Democratic, and Mrs. Lottie Holman O'Neill, dry-independent candidate.

Steam Shovel Hits Dynamite, 2 Killed

FORT COLLINS, Col., Sept. 10.—(AP.)—The blade of a steam shovel exploded dynamite buried on a mountainside near Chambers Lake yesterday, killing Julius Nelson and C. H. Larson, the operators. Two men were injured. Workers believe the explosive was put there by a road crew.

AIDE'S DIARY BARES FATE OF ANDREE

Strindberg Details Three Months' Hardship After Only Three Days in Air

By KNUT STUBBENDORFF.

Universal Service.

(From the special Hearst-Scandinavian newspaper expedition which, on Thursday, reached White Island, death place of Salomon Auguste Andree and his two comrades, searching for further Andree relics.)

ABOARD S. S. ISBJOERN, (Bound for Tromsoe), Sept. 10.—The Andree balloon expedition to the North Pole landed three days and five hours after taking off from Danes Island, Spitzbergen, 33 years ago.

Salomon Auguste Andree, Nils Strindberg and Knut Fraenkel trudged over Arctic ice and rode on an ice floe for three months before they died in their hut on Vitoen (White Island).

These are the facts of the Andree expedition—the truth that has been kept from the world by the Arctic for 33 years—facts dug from an Arctic island by the Hearst-Dagens-Nyheter search expedition to White Island, where Dr. Gunnar Horn and the crew of the Bratvaag made the first Andree discoveries.

But this is the first time that the story of the Andree expedition has been told to the world.

LAST ENTRY

The last entry in the tragic diary of Nils Strindberg, assistant to Salomon Auguste Andree on their ill-fated North Pole balloon expedition, was written October 17, 1897. The entry reads:

"Home—7:05 a. m."

It was Strindberg's diary that was found by the Hearst-Scandinavian newspaper expedition on the fishing vessel Ishjoern, with a body believed to be that of Knut Fraenkel, third member of the Andree party, and a skull, thought to be that of Andree himself.

In short notes in the diary is the odyssey of Andree and his two companions after July 14, when their balloon came down on the Arctic ice, about 500 miles short of the North Pole.

Strindberg's diary begins with

STEEL OUTLOOK SATISFACTORY

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—(AP.)—Wall street wrinkled its brow over apparently conflicting reports from the steel industry today, but was inclined to regard the good news as more than counterbalancing that which seemed not so good.

While the United States Steel Corporation announced that its unfilled orders as of August 31 had dropped 441,851 tons from the total as of July 31, the largest decline for August since 1923, advance copies of the weekly steel trade reviews reported appreciable quickening of steel mill activity since Labor Day and a more optimistic attitude in this basic industry.

Some observers felt that the Steel Corporation had quickened operations during August and reduced its backlog of unfilled orders only with the confident expectation of a seasonal upturn in business during the autumn.

KLINE DODGING JOB-SEEKERS

Mayor Charles H. Kline hid out at home today, apparently to dodge the inevitable host of politicians and favor-seekers who will storm his office as soon as he makes his first post-vacation appearance there.

His return from Europe found him highly enthusiastic over his tour and the big party political friends are staging for him tonight.

Regarding his announcement that he would retire at the end of his present term of office he said with a twinkling eye:

"In view of the wonderful accomplishments of my tenure of office there may be an uprising of the people demanding that I remain in office indefinitely."

CONFERENCE TODAY

He planned to confer at once with his department heads on matters of city business.

Told to prepare for a big demonstration tonight at the welcome home dinner in the William Penn Hotel, he said:

"I met Assemblyman William T. Bell on the train and he told me there were more than 1,000 reservations for the dinner. I wonder where they will put them all."

Mayor Kline was advised that according to reports, the committee had arranged for the entire

Allen Undergoes Operation, Rallies

BALTIMORE, Sept. 10.—(INS.)—Senator Henry J. Allen (Rep.), of Kansas, was operated upon today at Johns Hopkins Hospital here by Dr. Hugh H. Young, noted surgeon.

Young's office later told International News Service:

"The senator's condition is not serious."

Allen entered the hospital Monday. The operation was postponed from yesterday because the senator had been weakened by the strain of his long trip from Wichita.

Mayor Kline Gives 'Number' Players Lucky Hunch

Mayor Charles H. Kline unwittingly gave the "number" players in the City-County Building a "break."

He announced on his return from Europe that he was 59 years old. The "numbers" customers in the building joined that fact with the date of his banquet—the tenth of the month—and found a good "hunch" number, 590. That number came through today and scores are said to have collected their winnings. It is reported that a few more plates will be ordered for the Mayor's $7.50 welcome home dinner tonight.

Coolidge Cites League's Disarmament Failure

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Sept. 10.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

A distinct cleavage exists between the United States and the League of Nations on national defense.

Under the league plan each member has responsibilities for the defense of other members. By that arrangement it would seem that as each country is entitled to help from all the others, everyone would feel that there was no need for large armaments. Curiously, it is not working that way. Each nation, instead of relying on the help of others, magnifies its obligations to help others and claims it needs large armaments. Instead of increased security each anticipates increased peril. When the United States was expected to join the league our government was proposing a standing army of about 500,000. This theory arms for security.

Calvin Coolidge.

The theory of the United States is for each nation to defend itself, cultivate friendly relations with others and reduce armaments so that they are not considered a menace anywhere. This theory disarms for security.

This difference in theory has made the United States a leader in limitation of armaments while it has prevented the league from meeting the obligation under the Versailles treaty to disarm. The league, founded in terms of peace, constantly thinks in terms of war.

CALVIN COOLIDGE.

MEDICAL RUM TO BE MADE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—(AP.)—Permits will be issued soon for the manufacture of another 2,000,000 gallons of medicinal liquor.

The Bureau of Industrial Alcohol is making the arrangements.

The same amount of medicinal liquor was distilled this year. The permits are expected to be issued to the same six distilleries which turned out this year's supply. They are located in Pennsylvania and Kentucky.

Ammel Prepares For Atlantic Hop

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., Sept. 10.—(AP.)—Hoping to better Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's time for a solo flight to Paris, Capt. Roy W. Ammel, of Chicago, today was preparing his fast monoplane for a trans-Atlantic flight.

He said he planned to take off within two days or as soon as his motor and instruments can be checked, provided weather conditions were favorable.

Dry Sleuths Seize E. Bellevue Still

Prohibition agents today reported seizing a still while in operation in a dwelling at 525 Stanford street, East Bellevue. Twenty gallons of moonshine were reported seized with 26 barrels of mash. Harry Jones, 42, of 103 Fullerton street, was arrested and released under $1,000 bond pending a hearing.

DICKEY ENTERS SCHOOL FIGHT

Charles E. Dickey, county superintendent of schools, today began an investigation of the Ross Township school strike, preparatory to sending a report to the State Department of Public Instruction at Harrisburg.

He said he would not attend a protest meeting in Laurel Gardens tonight, where children are refusing to attend the Perrysville school.

While the Braun school strike, Shaler Township, was reported settled, a number of pupils ordered transferred to Glenshaw school, have refused to take the bus trip, residents said today. A petition, signed by parents, was sent to Harrisburg.

At the Obey avenue school, Crafton Heights, children continued to attend open-air classes in protest to their transfer to the Schaeffer school, more than a mile away.

Sues to Cancel Life Insurance of Killer

AMARILLO, Tex., Sept. 10.—(AP.)—The Lincoln National Life Insurance Company filed suit in United States District Court yesterday to cancel insurance policies on the life of A. D. Payne and on his wife, whom he killed by placing a dynamite bomb in the family car.

Payne, an Amarillo attorney, killed himself a year and a day after a $10,000 policy on his life had been in effect. It was believed he hoped thus to avoid the suicide clause in his policy. The policy on Mrs. Payne's life was for $5,000.

WIFE FACES MURDER CHARGE

Surprise Testimony That Widow Attempted to Buy Gun Results in Action

Testimony of a surprise witness who said Mrs. Clara Palscak attempted to purchase a revolver at his hardware store August 27, was largely instrumental in influencing a coroner's jury today to recommend holding Mrs. Palscak, 21, of Gazzam street, on a murder charge to await action by the grand jury.

Louis Myers, who owns a hardware store at 2122 Fifth avenue, said Mrs. Palscak, who shot and mortally wounded her husband, Steve, 24, while awaiting a hearing in Desertion and Non-Support Court, August 27, came into his establishment and demanded he sell her a revolver.

REFUSED REQUEST

He refused, he testified, and told her he had no cartridges.

He quoted her as saying:

"I'll return later, because I'm going to get some shells somewhere else."

She failed to return.

Ten eyewitnesses to the shooting, which occurred just as Judge Sara Soffel was being inducted into office in another court room, took the stand and told how the woman wounded her husband.

REMARKS CITED

"I shot him because I loved him and he wouldn't live with me."

Witnesses said Mrs. Palscak made this remark immediately following the shooting.

Three shots were fired into Palscak's body. He died in Mercy Hospital.

After the inquest Coroner W. J. McGregor remanded the woman to jail as she tearfully kissed relatives goodbye.

Suit May Put Many on Vote List

An alternative writ of mandamus was issued today by Judge Frank B. Patterson against the Allegheny County Board for Assessment and Revision to assess Mrs. Charlotte Ryan, of 27 Wabash avenue, and Eva M. Stouffer, who have not been assessed since 1928.

The board has until Tuesday to place the names on the records or show a reason why they should not be there.

In the event the court sustains this action, the gates will be open for several thousand persons who have not been assessed since 1928, to vote in the coming primaries.

6 Burn to Death When Plane Crashes

MERIDA, Yucatan, Mex., Sept. 10.—(AP.)—Six persons were burned to death after the huge Sikorsky amphibian airplane Mayar fell on the outskirts of the city after a test flight and caught fire.

The big ship was being tested preparatory for a flight to Mexico City Saturday by Gov. Garcia Correa. It was owned by the Yucatan government. It was used last May as an "air hearse" to transport the body of Col. Pablo Sidar from Costa Rica to Mexico.

Girl Swims Channel, Fails To Break Record

DOVER, Eng., Sept. 10.—(INS.)—An attempt by Miss Peggy Duncan, of South Africa, to lower Gertrude Ederle's English Channel swim record failed today.

Miss Duncan, favored throughout the night by smooth water but forced to battle her way into the harbor here against strong counter currents, reached South Foreland 16 hours and 15 minutes after entering the water at Cape Gris Nez on the French side.

Miss Ederle negotiated the distance in 14 hours and 31 minutes.

Miss Duncan was cheered as she stepped ashore at South Foreland. She went immediately to the hotel at Dover, and was found there soon after, smoking a cigaret.

She admitted that she did not feel like swimming back to France, but added she would be all right as soon as she had "had a bath."

race for the Republican nomination.

NOMINATE FOR SENATE

New Hampshire and Colorado also chose senatorial nominees. South Carolina, Michigan, Vermont, Arizona, New Hampshire and Colorado nominated gubernatorial candidates. Washington's primary determined only the party choices for the House of Representatives.

As shown by the latest available returns, the results by states were:

South Carolina—For Senator (Dem.), James F. Byrnes, defeated Cole L. Blease. For Governor (Dem.), Ibra C. Blackwood leading Olin D. Johnston by narrow margin.

Louisiana—For Senator (Dem.), Huey P. Long, defeated Joseph E. Ransdell.

COUZENS WELL AHEAD

Michigan—For senator (Rep.), Senator James Couzens leading former Governor Chase S. Osborn by substantial majority. For Governor (Rep.), Wilber M. Brucker, attorney general, well ahead of Alex J. Groesbeck and Judge Edward J. Jeffries.

Colorado—The electorate has named George H. Shaw, Republican, and Edward P. Costigan, Democrat, to fight it out at the November election for the United States Senate seat to be vacated next March by Senator Lawrence C. Phipps, Republican.

Arizona—For Governor (Dem.), former Governor George W. P. Hunt, leading three opponents. Governor Phillips, Republican incumbent, was unopposed.

Vermont—For Governor (Rep.), Stanley C. Wilson, lieutenant governor, leading two rivals.

New Hampshire—For Senator (Rep.), Henry W. Keyes, incumbent, unopposed. For Governor (Rep.), former Gov. John G. Winant conceded nomination.

DRY LAW SETBACK SEEN

Washington.—Prohibition appeared today to have suffered a setback in Washington's First Congressional District, as the returns from yesterday's primary were analyzed.

Ralph A. Horr, Republican, seeking nomination for the House of Representatives on an anti-dry platform, had a substantial lead in 346 precincts out of 422 over John F. Miller, incumbent, whose platform indorsed the eighteenth amendment. Horr was credited with 22,930 votes, Miller polling 21,330.

The district, embracing King and Kitsap counties, has been sending Miller to Congress since 1916.

Blease 'Takes Count' In South Carolina

COLUMBIA, S. C., Sept. 10.—(AP.)—With only 35 small precincts unreported from yesterday's Democratic primary, James F. Byrnes and Ibra C. Blackwood held substantial leads for the nominations as United States Senator and governor, respectively.

The vote: Byrnes, 119,528; Senator Cole L. Blease, 114,449; Blackwood, 117,372; O. J. Johnston, 116,556.

Late Returns Swell Majority for Long

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 10.—(AP.)—The majority of Gov. Huey P. Long over Senator Joseph E. Ransdell, for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator, mounted today as belated returns came in. With the vote reported except from 144 scattered precincts, Long led by 34,638, he having 141,262 and Ransdell 106,624.

The unofficial tally for New Orleans gave Ransdell a majority of 5,072, the vote being, Ransdell 43,014, Long 37,942.

Returns from the precincts outside of New Orleans gave Long a majority of 39,710. The count was 103,320 for Long and 63,610 for Ransdell.

Couzens Continues To Pile Up Lead

DETROIT, Sept. 10.—(AP.)—The lead of Senator James Couzens continued to grow as the returns from yesterday's Republican primary, for selection of a senatorial candidate, came in.

With 2,631 precincts reported, he had 373,056 votes for renomination, and his opponent, Chase S. Osborn, a former governor, 190,916.

Ex-Gov. Alex J. Groesbeck continued to cut down the lead of Wilber M. Brucker, attorney general, for the Republican gubernatorial nomination as lagging Wayne County (Detroit) returns came in. With 2,645 precincts of the 3,317 reported, the vote was: Brucker, 311,283; Groesbeck, 262,533.

Grant M. Hudson, dry leader in Congress, appears to have been defeated for renomination in the sixth district. Returns from 391 of the 690 precincts gave State Senator Seymour H. Person, of Lansing, 47,663 to 44,904 for Hudson.

Another dry Congressman, Louis C. Cramton, of the seventh district, won by only 75 votes over Jesse P. Wolcott, Port Huron attorney, for the Republican nomination.

mourning, sang the "Marseillaise" before the French consulate, gave "cheers for Germany, cheers for the Tyrol" in front of the German consulate, dragged an Italian flag in the mud, and burned it.

Mussolini does not endure such things with patience. There is fuel for trouble there.

THE MAINE election is past, and each side says it gained. Politicians are more interested, in Maine and outside of Maine, than the general public. The vote was small for governor, large for the candidate for senator.

Apparently the people are inclined to think that if anything is going to pull the country out of the doldrums, it will not be politics or politicians.

They are waiting for something "to happen," not relying much on any individual to make it happen.

ANDREE AIDE'S DIARY FOUND

a detailed description of the balloon flight from Danskoen (Danes Island, off the northwest coast of Spitzbergen) up to 83 degrees, 4 minutes north latitude; from the start on July 11, 1897, at 2:30 p. m. until the three men dropped anchor on an ice floe on July 14, at 7:30 p. m.

The Ornen flight took scarcely three days. The march over the frozen, drifting wastes of the treacherous north took three months.

On September 12, two months after the takeoff from Danes Island, provisions were rationed out. In all that day, there were 400 grams of meat, 200 grams of Mellins food, and 75 grams of bread a day for the three men, and also two warm drinks a day.

"September 16—The attempt to walk further was given up."

The party drifted on an ice floe until September 17, when they caught sight of the glaciers of Vitoen (White Island). In their joy, they made an arctic festival of the occasion on their ice floe east of White Island, with a menu consisting of:

"Seal steak, seal liver, seal brains, seal kidneys, butter and Schumacker's bread (Swedish bread), gateaux and raisins, with raspberry sauce, and port wine for dessert."

They built a little snow hut on that ice floe, and on October 2 the floe broke up, and their little hut was gone.

Strindberg notes in his diary:

THEIR FINAL STAND

The three landed on the Island of Vitoen (White Island) October 5, and they went into their final imprisonment in the little hut they built on the Arctic island.

There is only one entry in the diary from October 6 until the end of the book. That entry consists of one word:

"Resignation."

The notes of the Andree expedition found by the Hearst-Dagens-Nyheter search party contain a richness of detail which will reveal to the world one of the most remarkable journeys which men have ever undertaken.

ANDREE AIDE'S 'REDS' WELCOME GIANT ZEPPELIN

MOSCOW, Sept. 10.—(AP.)—The Graf Zeppelin today paid her first official visit to the Soviet capital. She arrived at noon and was greeted with red flags flying and bands playing proletarian airs. After a brief visit, she left for Germany again.

After circling low over the city and twice dipping over the ancient Kremlin in tribute to the chiefs of the R. I republic, the Graf came down on October Field. About 100,000 holders of special tickets had been waiting for her there since early morning.

A detachment of 250 Red soldiers held the dirigible while Dr. Hugo Eckener descended and was greeted by high Russian air officials. Mail was dropped and more taken aboard.

After an exchange of greetings and courtesies, Dr. Eckener climbed on board again, the Graf rose, once more circled over Moscow, and settled down for the return flight.

Harris' Seat Staked On Georgia Primary

ATLANTA, Ga., Sept. 10.—(AP.)—Today's biennial Democratic primary involves a Senate seat, the governorship and high state offices, where nomination is tantamount to election.

Personalities figured largely in the senatorial campaign. William J. Harris, incumbent, is opposed by former Gov. John M. Slaton. Harris based his plea for renomination on his record. Slaton assailed the League Court and the League of Nations.

Estate Income Ends If Husband Reweds

Unless he remarries, Nelson Strimple, of 1137 King avenue, is to get the income from an estate of $46,000, his wife's will filed for probate in the register of wills office today, disclosed.

In the event of his marriage, the will of Mrs. Kristina Strimple reads, the income is to go to their daughter, Mrs. Louise Johnson. At the latter's death the principal will be given her daughter, Violet Eva Johnson.

GRANDI BOLTS FIRST SESSION OF LEAGUE

Italian Foreign Minister Leaves Geneva on Eve Of Briand's Address

GENEVA, Sept. 10.—(AP.)—Foreign Minister Dino Grandi of Italy suddenly left Geneva by automobile today without waiting for the opening of the eleventh assembly of the League of Nations, which tomorrow, will hear Foreign Minister Briand of France expound his ideas on his "United States of Europe" plan.

Grandi's almost precipitate departure caused a considerable flurry among members of the delegations. The official explanation given out at headquarters of the Italian delegation was that Grandi had arranged in advance to leave Geneva as soon as the council sessions were finished and to entrust Italy's business at the assembly to Senator Scialoja.

French circles appeared surprised that Grandi should have departed on the eve of M. Briand's important address. The surprise grew when it became known that only late last night Grandi had canceled an engagement with M. Briand and Dr. Julius Curtius, German foreign minister, to discuss the Saar question this afternoon. The official explanation of his departure was greeted with diplomatic skepticism in many quarters.

MERGER AUDIT ATTACKED

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Sept. 10.—(AP.)—The defense in the injunction suit against the Youngstown Sheet and Tube-Bethlehem Steel merger today continued its attack on the audit made by Ernst and Ernst for the opponents of the merger.

With W. B. Campbell, of Price Waterhouse and Company, the merger auditors, still on the stand for direct examination, the Ernst and Ernst method of placing both companies on the same accounting basis as regards depreciation came in for further criticism.

Ernst and Ernst used a four per cent depreciation rate for both companies, which was an increase in Bethlehem's case, but made no allowance for what Campbell identified as capital expenditures charged directly by Bethlehem against its income account. The result was a reduction of $7,645,000 in Bethlehem's income.

LABOR MAY ASK 2.75 BEER

ATLANTIC CITY, Sept. 10.—(INS.)—A recommendation that the manufacture of 2.75 per cent beer be made legal probably will be forthcoming Thursday or Friday from the executive council of the American Federation of Labor.

William Green, president of the federation, predicted favorable action would be taken and declared restoration of beer as a legal beverage would give employment to several hundred thousand workers.

Coal Gas Wrecks Home, Injures Man

ALTOONA, Pa., Sept. 10.—William Kenwood, 38, of Cresson, is in Altoona Hospital with severe burns suffered when gas from a stove exploded as he lighted a match. The home of Earl Sheehan was wrecked. Kenwood was found unconscious and his clothes afire.

Railroad Petitions For Grade Crossing

HARRISBURG, Sept. 10.—(AP.)—The Western Maryland Railway Company, of York, applied to the Public Service Commission for permission to construct a grade crossing in Chambersburg at a point where a proposed industrial siding to the plant of Amos S. Eby would cross Gilbert alley.

seventeenth floor of the hotel and that the speeches and entertainment would be carried by amplifiers from the main hall to the adjoining dining rooms.

The Mayor deferred comment on current problems in municipal affairs until he had conferred with members of his cabinet. He indicated, however, that one of his first moves would be to consult with Council and Public Works Director Edward G. Lang on methods of starting city projects with the main purpose of relieving unemployment.

BRINGS BACK ANTIQUES

Mayor Kline had a package under his arm and was asked if it were not an antique he picked up in Europe. He replied:

"Yes you guessed right. This is something many persons would not give a dime for but is rare and very valuable to me. It is a painting on a copper plaque that was presented to me in Rome. The government let me bring it in without charging a duty.

"I was not so fortunate, however, with a watch once owned by the Hungarian patriot, Louis Kossouth. It was given by him to his government and was kept as a relic until presented to me during my visit to Budapest. When I arrived in New York I had to pay $40 duty on the watch."

Mayor Kline was asked if there was any experience he met in the trip that stood out above all others. He replied:

Each succeeding feature of the trip seemed to be of increasing interest but what I anticipated as the greatest thrill was a hoped for meeting with Pope Pius XI. and Mussolini.

"Through an American friend I met in Rome, I obtained an audience with the Pope and the impression left is indelible. The audience was large that day and we all kneeled, not on one knee but on both. The visitors were placed around the four walls of the room and the Pope saluted each individually. I was on one end of the visitors' line and I hoped that the Pope would begin with me so I could rise but he started opposite me and visited me last. The slight discomfort was nothing compared with the thrill of the experience.

DUCE CANCELS VISIT

"I was unsuccessful, however, in my attempt to meet Mussolini. Through officials of the Italian government, a meeting with Il Duce was arranged but later cancelled when he was called away owing to the death of his favorite nephew."

The Mayor's thoughts were guided back to this country when he was reminded of the approaching political campaign and asked if he would support Gifford Pinchot for governor. He replied he had and always would support Republicans nominated at a primary election.

Mayor Kline was advised that Pinchot would be in Pittsburgh for three days beginning Saturday and it was assumed that local Republican leaders would greet the gubernatorial nominee. Kline declared:

"That's fine. I've never met Pinchot. Maybe there's a treat in store for me."

GREETED AT TRAIN

The Mayor was informed that the Republican committee of the Thirty-second Congressional district would meet Monday in North Side Carnegie Music Hall at the call of County Chairman Joseph G. Armstrong to select a nominee to succeed the late Stephen G. Porter. The Mayor was asked if he had a preferred candidate.

He replied that most of the leaders of North Side city wards favored Edmund F. Erk, Porter's secretary for 20 years, according to reports. Kline said he would make no recommendation until he had talked with his friends.

Those who greeted Mayor and Mrs. Kline at the train included Miss Hester and Miss Ldya Johnson, Mrs. Kline's sisters; Police Superintendent Peter P. Walsh, George Nesbit, Mayor Kline's messenger and Mrs. Florence Buchanan, Nesbit's daughter.

Meeting on Porter Successor Changed

Republican committeemen and women of the Thirty-second congressional district will meet in Carnegie Hall, North Side, on Saturday, September 20, to pick a party nominee for Congress to take the place of the late Congressman Stephen G. Porter, deceased, nominated at the May primary.

County Chairman Joseph G. Armstrong, who yesterday moved the meeting time from next Saturday to next Monday, later made another switch and settled on September 20.

DAVID I. M'CAHILL

M'CAHILL HURT IN HORSE FALL

David I. McCahill, president of the Pittsburgh, Harmony, Butler and New Castle Railway, testified under difficulties at the Public Service Commission hearing here today on the company's petition to abandon rail service in New Castle in favor of bus transportation.

An intrepid horseman, McCahill was thrown from his mount at the Pittsburgh Hunt Club tryouts yesterday and badly lacerated.

McCahill said his hurts would not prevent his riding in the annual steeple chase of the Pittsburgh Hunt Club Saturday.

McCahill limped into the hearing room in the City-County Building this morning to tell Commissioner Charles Young that the demands of the city of New Castle in asking the railways company to expend $100,000 for street and rail improvements there was too much and could not be afforded.

As a result the company wants permission to abandon its lines there and to install buses.

WOMAN LINKED WITH DONOHOE

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Sept. 10.—A telephone call from a mysterious woman entered the Donohoe case this morning in the trial of Anthony W. (Tony) Bell, former county detective on trial for the murder of the alleged racketeer constable. The telephone call came to Donohoe on the night before the murder at a cafeteria, according to Max Smigleski, proprietor. He testified that the woman called between 7:30 and 8 the night before the constable's body was found. After talking to the woman, Donohoe left without saying where he was going.

Another witness testified that he later saw both Donohoe and Bell driving their cars in the direction of the Helen Hess home at Masontown. Bell appeared first, stopping at a gas station and then continued in the direction of the Hess place. Walter Horne of Continental, testified. A few minutes later Donohoe was seen driving in the same direction.

Mrs. R. C. Bledsoe, wife of the former Baltimore and Ohio railroad police captain, revealed on the witness stand that Donohoe had called her husband three times on the day before the murder. He left no message.

West View Grants Building Permits

C. A. McClain, borough clerk of West View, reports issuing these building permits: Joseph B. Haas for a two-story brick veneer dwelling and garage, 551 Perrysville avenue, $15,000; F. P. Hammerschmitt, two-story frame dwelling, 205 Clairmont avenue, $6,500; D. C. Decker, two-story brick veneer dwelling, 13 Bellevue avenue, $7,500; A. Smith, two-story frame dwelling, 97 Frankfort avenue, $6,500.

PUZZLE OVER NEW COUNTY SOLICITOR

Commissioners Agree There Is One, but Are Silent on Revealing His Identity

Who is solicitor of Allegheny County?

Commissioner C. C. McGovern said there was a new one.

Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong tacitly admitted it.

Commissioner Edward V. Babcock kept silent in six languages.

ARMSTRONG PRO-LESHER

Former Solicitor W. Heber Dithrich resigned last Friday to accept appointment by Gov. Fisher as judge of Common Pleas Court. The commissioners were expected to promote Mortimer B. Lesher from assistant to county solicitor at an increase in salary of from $5,000 to $10,000 a year.

Armstrong was believed to be "100 per cent" for Lesher. McGovern was represented as being ready to "go along" providing his friend, Atty. Ralph H. Frank, was elected to the vacant assistant solicitorship that would be created following Lesher's promotion. Babcock's position was undetermined.

However, the following day, reports were current that some mysterious force was operating to sidetrack Lesher for Atty. George E. Alter. The rumor had it that the salary was to be increased to $15,000 a year.

REVIEW TAX ORDER

The commissioners held a formal meeting again yesterday and action on the solicitorship was awaited anxiously by spectators.

The commissioners were considering an order from the court directing a refund of $8,144.96 taxes to the estate of Henry Buhl, Jr. McGovern objected and the matter was referred to the "new county solicitor."

The court order was passed to Lesher, who sat through the meeting. The Commissioners adjourned without acting on the vacancy.

Weather Conditions

Pressure continues relatively high, but decreasing, over the Lakes, the Ohio Valley, the Middle Atlantic and New England states with accompanying fair weather, while pressure is generally relatively low over the Southern and Western states, with principal centers over Northern Florida, Northern Texas and Southern Saskatchewan. The Florida low appears to be the remnants of the tropical storm which passed over Santo Domingo. Showers have occurred in the South Atlantic States, the Southern Plains, the Central Mississippi Valley and portions of other southeastern states, the Northern Plains, the Canadian Northwest and elsewhere. Rainfall in excess of one inch fell at Wichita, Kan., 2.04; Abilene, Tex., 1.46; and Miami, 1.16. Temperature changes were slight.

Aviation Bulletin

Weather is generally fair over the airways this morning, with ceilings unlimited, except 4,500 feet at Newark, visibilities were 2 miles or more, except at Newark, Toledo and Chicago; winds were east or northeast, and less than 10 miles; temperatures were in the sixties over the eastern portion of the district and in the fifties over the western portion.

Weather will continue fair for flying this afternoon and tonight, with cloudiness increasing over the western portion tonight, with showers probable Thursday; ceilings good over the eastern portion and about 5,000 over the western portion tonight; visibilities generally good this afternoon, with some probability of fog, smoke or haze tonight; winds light north or northeast.

Franklin's Camps in Arctic Found by Canada Fliers

EDMONTON, Alta., Sept. 10.—(AP.)—Discovery on King William's Island of two camp sites of the lost Sir John Franklin expedition has added another chapter to the story of long-missing Arctic explorers.

Word of the discovery was received by radio from W. E. Gilbert, pilot for Maj. L. T. Burwash, Canadian government explorer on an airplane expedition to the region of the magnetic pole.

The message gave no details of the find, but said valuable data concerning the Far North and the fate of the Franklin expedition, which sailed for the Arctic 85 years ago, had been obtained.

Burwash and Gilbert left Edmonton August 23, to determine the extent of the magnetic pole's shift and to seek relics of the Franklin expedition.

Before the radio message was received Monday, the last heard of Burwash and Gilbert was a week ago when they were stormbound at Bernard Harbor, a solitary trading post on Dolphin Strait. Government officials at that time believed the flight to King William's Island would be abandoned because of the lateness of the season.

Their landing at Victory Point marked the first time white men had been known to visit King William's Land during the summer season.

Sir John Franklin, British naval officer, set out in May, 1845, with two ships and a company of 129 officers and men to discover a northwest passage. The ships, the Terror and the Erebus, were last seen at the entrance to Lancaster Sound. Fourteen years later, the first information of their fate was obtained.

Fourth Largest Bell Mounted In New Church

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—(AP.)—The world's fourth largest bell, which weighs 20 times as much as the Liberty Bell and can be heard five miles away, has been hoisted 360 feet up into the belfrey of the $4,000,000 Riverside Church, now nearing completion on Riverside drive, opposite Grant's tomb.

The carillon, a gift of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., in memory of his mother, is all installed save for one 14-ton bell, the largest in the world. It has 72 bells and a range of six octaves, only about an octave less than a piano.

The bells in the carillon range from the big one which weighs a little more than 20 tons, down to little treble bells that weigh 12 pounds and are 18 inches tall.

525 Steers Sacrificed For Kline's Banquet

While 2,100 friends and followers are paying out $7.50 each to gather at the festive board to honor Mayor Charles H. Kline tonight in the William Penn Hotel, 525 steers gave up their lives that the piece de resistance might be filet of beef.

Yet, that is a mere detail of the banquet that will occupy the entire seventeenth floor, with loud speakers carrying laudations to all banquet rooms. The guests will consume 10,500 pounds of food that will include 11,000 rolls and nine tubs of butter. Two hundred waiters under 20 head waiters will see that service is instant while behind the scenes 109 cooks will toil in the kitchens.

Lest the unwelcome guest should wander into the midst of those paying homage to the city's executive, precautions against intrusion will begin in the lobby. Regular hotel check girls, augmented with many from night clubs, will be prepared to check the wraps. A special battery of express elevators will carry guests to the scene of festivities, but only those who have checked their wraps and show their credentials will enter the cars. Lest someone should slip by this formality, eager watchers will stay their progress on the seventeenth floor.

Entertainment will be a feature of the program, provided through $1.50 from each guest's $7.50, the banquet costing the committee $6.00 a plate.

The banquet will be the largest ever held on the seventeenth floor, according to Maitre d'Hotel A. Alberts, who tonight adds the name of Mayor Kline to the long list of notables he has served, including the King and Queen of Belgium, King of Italy, Presidents Harding, Roosevelt, Taft and Hoover, not to overlook the Prince of Wales.

Mrs. Doran Compiles Book Of 'Prohibition Punches'

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—(AP.)—Mrs. James M. Doran, who announced last winter she would fight for prohibition enforcement by making fruit juices enticing, is now the author of "Prohibition Punches."

Her Book of Beverages, which became available today, presents the "1930 cocktail," her own non-alcoholic concoction served several months ago as "reinforcement" to her husband's enforcement program, together with the teetotaling recipes of many persons of prominence.

"Portia's punch" was the title given to the recipe credited to Mabel Walker Willebrandt. Beneath the silhouette of Lenna Lowe Yost, now in charge of the women's activities of the Republican party, was the recipe "spiced punch," while Mrs. Laura Volstead Lomen's favorite bore the simple designation "fruit punch."

Gen. Smedley D. Butler, of Quantico, Va., who has gained considerable fame in prohibition circles during his career, was one of the few male contributors to the book. Tea was the base for his drink.

Mrs. Arthur M. Hyde, Mrs. Seymour Lowman, Mrs. James J. Davis and Mrs. John F. Sippel are among the authors of lemonades, freezes, "dinner drinks," smashes, "sparkles" and "mock champagnes."

3 NATIONS AIDING IN RELIEF

Official Estimates Put Death Toll in Santo Domingo Storm as High as 3,500

International News Service.

SANTO DOMINGO, Sept. 10.—Order slowly began to emerge today from the wreckage and chaos left in the wake of the disastrous hurricane which reduced this capital city to shambles a week ago.

Twenty men from the Dutch warship in the harbor were landed today to assist in the work of repairing the bridge across the Ozama river, in the heart of the city.

The Dutch sailors, added to the detachment of U. S. sailors, landed from the U. S. S. Grebe yesterday to assist in guarding relief supplies, lent a true international aspect to relief efforts tendered the stricken Dominican government by many nations.

BRITISH DETACHMENT

This aspect will be augmented later today when a detachment from the British warship Dane will be landed at the request of President Trujillo.

Perfect order prevails in the city, and authorities were careful to explain that the foreign sailors and marines were requested merely to afford rest for the overworked native soldiers who have been on continuous duty for the past week.

2,500 DEAD

The dead, it was estimated in an official report, reached the staggering total of 2,500 so far, with hundreds of bodies still under the ruins.

Injured were numbered at 18,000, with many expected to die.

Property damage inflicted by the storm was counted in the vicinity of $25,000,000.

COLLEGE BOY GIVES CLUE TO KILLER

Sister of Victim Identifies Body Found on Highway Riddled With Bullets

International News Service.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 10.—The hunt for the slayer of Mrs. Ruth Radler, 27-year-old Chicago divorcee and graduate nurse, found fatally shot on a little used Lower Gwynedd Township highway a few miles north of here yesterday, centered today in a search for the woman's missing husband. Police wish to question him.

A minute description of the man last seen in company with the slain woman, police say, corresponds to that of the woman's divorced husband.

The woman was found early yesterday shot through the back of the head. She was rushed to Abington Memorial Hospital where where she died two hours later without regaining consciousness.

IDENTIFIED BY SISTER

Identification was made by a sister of the slain woman, Mrs. Olga Dean, a toe dancer and widow of a former Chicago orchestra leader. Questioning of acquaintances of the dead woman enabled police to get a minute description of the man in whose company she was last seen.

The description was furnished by Thomas Lambert, of Louisville, Ky., a senior in the Wharton School of the University of Pennsylvania. He occupies an apartment in the same building where the dead woman lived.

ANOTHER SHOOTING

In another shooting case, Angelo Awati killed a woman companion in a taxicab and then committed suicide. The woman was identified as Thelma Dean, of Sansom street.

Meanwhile, hospital attendants battled to save the life of Miss Ada Digitano, 20, found unconscious at Fifty-sixth street and Cobb's Creek parkway by a motorist. Police, attempting to unravel the mystery surrounding the girl's illness, say she was poisoned.

SAVINGS HOLD HIGH LEVEL

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—(INS.)—Despite the business depression with resultant unemployment, savings deposits of the people in the national banks and other institutions of the Federal Reserve system remain at a high level, in a general way indicating that the country may weather the economic storm with minimum discomfort.

Figures obtained today, the last available, showed that at the beginning of July there was deposited on savings accounts in all member banks $9,677,521,000, on certificates of deposit $1,861,504,000 and in open accounts and Christmas savings $1,232,679,000.

Total time deposits were $13,811,978,000, an increase of $293,247,000 since March 27 and $486,912,000 since June 29, 1929. Demand deposits were $18,061,977,000, increases of $983,072,000 and $247,374,000 since the previous March and June, 1929.

This brought the total deposits to $38,139,178,000, increase of $2,303,022 and $2,246,347,000 since March and last June.

NEW ARGENTINA FRIENDLY TO U.S.

BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 10.—(AP.)—President General Jose Evsristo Uriburu told the Associated Press today that close cooperation with the United States and active participation in activities of the Pan-American Union were to be keynotes of his administration in the Argentine.

Stressing especially his desire for friendly intercourse with the United States, Gen. Uriburu declared:

"I desire my government to establish friendly and mutually advantageous relations with the United States and shall name an ambassador to Washington the instant the United States recognizes the new Argentine government."

He declared that other American republics could depend upon Argentina's whole-hearted participation in the program of the Pan-American Union, but that this government could not say immediately whether it would be found desirable to resume participation in the League of Nations.

The president denied emphatically that the deposed president, Hipolito Irigoyen, had been put in jail or had been taken aboard a warship.

SCORE CAR LINE AT BUS HEARING

Patrons of the Irwin and Herminie Traction Company's street car line frequently refuse to pay their fares until they reach their destination for fear of not being delivered there it was testified before Examiner W. E. Best, of the Public Service Commission. But no person could recall that a passenger was ever injured on the line. Its operating methods were described when the application of Abner T. Evans for a certificate to operate a competing bus line was heard. Citizens testified the car line is not safe, that bridge masonry over which the car line passes is cracked, that ties are rotten and that spikes can be pulled out of ties by human fingers.

Evans wants to operate a service from New Madison to Irwin, Evanstown, Herminie, Rillton and Hahntown.

British Rail Men To Be Guests Here

Officials of the Pennsylvania Railroad in Pittsburgh will be hosts tonight to seven executive office officials of the London, Midland and Scottish Railway, of England, who are touring the United States inspecting American railroads. They will arrive here from Cleveland at 8:30 p. m.

They will be accompanied from the Ohio city by Vice President E. W. Smith, General Manager C. I. Leiper, Chief of Motive Power F. W. Hankins, and Chief Engineer T. J. Skillman.

Trans-Ocean Fliers Return to Germany

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—(INS.)—With the flying boat, in which they crossed the Atlantic, sailing with them, Capt. Wolfgang von Gronau and his three German companions, will sail at midnight on the liner Hamburg for their native heath.

The German fliers attended a dinner last night given by Leo Philipp and other members of the mayor's committee of welcome.

Suspect in Dope Selling Case Held

Arthur Scott, 30, a Negro, of Clark street, was held for action of the Federal grand jury by the United States commissioner on a charge of violating the Harrison narcotic act. William Walker, 29, a Negro, who was held for court last week by the commissioner on a charge of selling dope, testified he had purchased drugs from Scott.

Policeman, Fireman To Address Club

The club will be host to clubs of the Inter-Club Council September 25. This meeting will be addressed by Fred W. Johnson, of the Philadelphia Chamber of Commerce.

Peru Frees Grow, American Aviator

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—(AP.)—The state department was informed officially today that Harold B. Grow, an American reserve aviator, who was imprisoned by the new Peruvian military junta, has been released.

The American officer, who resigned from the navy and under Leguia became chief of Peru's air forces, had been detained at Arequipa, stronghold of the southern revolutionaries led by Lieut. Col. Luis Sanchez Cerro.

Sippey Will Leaves Estate of $31,000

Two sons and two grandchildren are named beneficiaries in the will of Mrs. Margaret McKinney Sippey, of 145 Margaret street, Mt. Oliver, filed today for probate. Jane and Betty Hahne, grandchildren, are bequeathed $1,000 each of her $31,000 estate. Her sons, who are named executors, are left the balance.

Iron City College Opens Fall Session

Duffs-Iron City College academic work for the fall and winter season was under way today following opening exercises yesterday.

The initial session was featured by presentation to each student of a copy of Elbert Hubbard's "A Message to Garcia," as a "mentor" for the coming term.

COAL SHIPPERS ASK RATE CUT

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—(AP.)—Three witnesses, affiliated with the production and transportation of coal, submitted testimony yesterday to the Interstate Commerce Commission in support of a petition filed by several coal-producing and traffic bureaus, which seeks a reduction of freight rates on coal shipped from Western Pennsylvania and Northern West Virginia to tidewater.

Charles O'Neill, vice president of the Peale, Peacock and Kerr Coal Company of New York City, concluded his statistical testimony.

W. A. Jones, secretary of the Central Pennsylvania Coal Producers' Associaton, the original complainant, analyzed in detail the annual financial statements filed with the commission by Pennsylvania and West Virginia carriers.

A. B. McElvany, of Pittsburgh, secretary of the Western Pennsylvania Coal Traffic Bureau, which joined the central operators, and the Fairmont and Meyersdale-Piedmont producers in the complaint, was on the stand when adjournment until today was taken.

3 Men Identified As Avella Bandits

Three men, under arrest in the County Detective Bureau, were identified yesterday as the bandits who, last Thursday night, held up and robbed James Brown, of Mt. Lebanon, of money and jewelry on the highway near Avella.

The men were arrested by Detectives Michael Stabbile and Dave Carlin. They are Eugene Walker, 28; Emory Clem, 26, and Roland Gaynor, all of Coverdale.

Law Makes Fiddle Teaching Crime; Sergeant Acts

EVANSTON, Ill. Sept. 10.—(AP.)—Out here it is a crime to teach violin playing.

Under the circumstances, Sergt. Gene Ruland decided yesterday to arrest three violin teachers, John Lindgren, Carl Norton and Walter Faccini.

The Sergeant, who spends his spare time studying up the old laws, found that in 1875 an ordinance was passed making it unlawful to teach the playing of the violin without a license.

"The law has never been repealed," the Sergeant said, "so I only did my duty."

There are no laws dealing with the saxophone, French horn, kettle drum or steam calliope.

PILSUDSKI PUTS RIVALS IN JAIL

WARSAW, Sept. 10.—(INS.)—Moving swiftly to prevent any consolidation of the elements opposing his dictatorship, Premier Jan Pilsudski today ordered the arrest of a score or more of Paland's political leaders.

They include former Premier Witos, ex-president of the Sejm; Daszinski, ex-minister of culture; Prof. Barlicki, president of the Socialist party, and former Minister of the Interior Kiernik, leader of the Peasant party.

Daszinski's passport was confiscated, which makes it impossible for him to leave Poland.

The dictator's coup closely followed the merger of election lists by five parties opposing his regime.

RESCUE NURSE FROM SUITOR

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—(AP.)—An ironing board and the ingenuity of a rookie policeman late last night saved the life of Annie D. Jennings, 25-year-old nurse, after she had spent two hours imprisoned by a crazed suitor.

Squads of police stood baffled outside the house of Howard F. Carson, the demented youth, who at the point of a pistol, dragged the girl to his upstairs room and threatened to shoot her unless she promised to marry him. Any move to capture him, they feared, would result in instant death for the girl. Carson's parents pleaded with them not to shoot their son through a window—the only solution that appeared.

Finally Patrolman Earl Baker, noticing the short distance between the Carson house and one adjoining, laid an ironing board on the rails of the upstairs porches and tiptoeing across disarmed the youth before he could carry out his threat.

Retiring Policemen Honored by Mates

Fellow officers at the Oakland station last night presented Patrolman Joseph Thompson, Negro, with a gold badge set with a diamond, and Patrolman Fred M. Walters with a gold badge and a revolver, to commemorate their retirement from the department on pensions.

Urge Compulsory Marriage Ruling

JERUSALEM, Sept. 10.—(AP.)—An Exchange Telegraph dispatch from the Hedjaz today said a bill had been introduced into that kingdom's advisory council which would make it obligatory that everyone over 15 years old must marry. The bill would limit costs of wedding fees and of dowries.

DIVER RESCUED FROM LAKE

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 10.—(AP.)—Capt. Nick Danese, a marine diver, was rescued alive late yesterday after being trapped in 22 feet of water for 26 hours. He was caught under a city pumping station on Lake Pontchartrain while repairing a leak.

Capt Danese gasped as he was brought up on the verge of exhaustion:

"Thank God for all the people who helped save me."

When he came to the surface Capt. Danese was still chewing the gum he had in his mouth when he went down wearing only a diver's helmet and regular clothing. He said:

"I never gave up hope. I knew they were doing everything possible to save me and that I would be out before long. I don't feel bad at all."

Capt. Danese was rescued by his 65-year-old diving companion, Fritz John, who spent hours below the water working to release him.

Traffic Chairman To Address Police

W. J. Moore, chairman of the trucking and deliveries sub-committee of the Better Traffic Committee, will speak before members of the downtown traffic squad at roll call tomorrow morning in the ninth of a series of talks before the squad. He will talk on variations of the keep to the right traffic rule.

Woman Gets $8,00 For Crash Injuries

A verdict of $8,000 for injuries suffered by Mrs. Giovanna Lazzaro, of 852 Monteiro street, Hazelwood, was awarded in Common Pleas Court by a jury in her suit against the Pittsburgh Railways Company, tried before Judge James H. Gray.

Mrs. Lazzaro was a passenger on a truck struck by a street car.

Scotland Yard Finds Stolen Art Fortune

LONDON, Sept. 10.—(INS.)—A rich pile of art treasures stolen from the Carlton House galleries last March was recovered by Scotland Yard detectives who raided the checkroom of the Cannon street railroad station today. The recovered objects included 18 masterpieces by Rembrandt, Reynolds and Rubens.

3D BOMB HITS BEAUTY SHOPS

CHICAGO, Sept. 10.—(INS.)—Chicago's concerted drive to curb rackets and lawlessness was challenged today by a powerful black powder bomb which wrecked the Maison Lorraine Beauty Parlor on South Crawford avenue.

More powerful than any of its two recent predecessors in the campaign to whip beauty shops "into line," the blast tore out the establishment's interior, wrecking costly machinery and fixtures. Windows were shattered within a radius of a block or more and the entire community shaken by the explosion's force. The bomb exploded at midnight.

This was the third beauty shop bombing in the past four days.

Three Men Fined in Restaurant Disorder

Robert Hurling, of 15 East Erie street, was fined $10 in North Side Police Court today, and his companions, Mahlon Berry, 24, of 1512 Lorraine street, and Richard Shelton, of 818 Western avenue, were fined $5 after it was testified they were disorderly in a restaurant at Irwin and Pennsylvania avenues last night.

Man Hit by Train Dies in Hospital

Injuries suffered August 27, when he was struck by a train at the Walnut street crossing of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, in McKeesport, caused the death of William Hurrell, 70, of Third and Water streets, McKeesport, in the McKeesport Hospital last night, the coroner's office was informed.

Patrolman Given Rebuke For Arresting Tourist

Patrolman G. Williams was rebuked by Magistrate Leo Rothenberg in Central Police Court today, as "gyp" barbers were assailed and John Woolen, 32, of Philadelphia, was discharged.

Woolen was arrested in Liberty avenue last night. Woolen testified that he stopped at a Liberty avenue barber shop for a shave while changing buses en route to a sick wife in Philadelphia.

After the shave, Woolen said, the barber inquired if he wanted cold cream on his face to which he acceded, but called a halt to hot applications. A bill of $2.10 faced him for his shave when he was through, he said. The barber called the policeman when Woolen objected to the cost. Woolen paid the bill. The magistrate said to Williams:

"It was the barber you should have arrested, not this man. There are too many 'gyp' barbers preying on the travelers who they know cannot stay in town long enough to prosecute them."

Woolen lacked sufficient bus fare today and started to hitchhike for Philadelphia.

Permit Asked for Hearst Station to Radio News

NEWARK, N. J., Sept. 10.—(Universal)—Application of the American Radio News Corporation of New York, owned by William Randolph Hearst, for permission to locate a short wave transmitting station at Carlstadt, N. J., was heard Monday by the New Jersey Public Utilities Commission.

After hearing two witnesses, W. G. H. Finch, secretary and chief engineer, and R. H. Marriott, radio engineers, Emmett P. Drew, commission secretary, was directed to ask Carlstadt officials if they objected to the station. If objection is made, the hearing will be continued. Otherwise, it will be considered closed.

Testimony was given that the corporation plans to establish a series of stations in the United States to distribute news to client newspapers by radio. A code will be used that will operate teletype printer machines such as are used for telegraph news distribution.

Finch explained the Federal Radio Commission has given permission for stations near New York, San Francisco, Chicago and Atlanta and allotted two communication channels of 95 and 99 kilocycles.

The company also hopes to erect a station near Denver. The New Jersey station will be one of 10,000 watts and there will be no interference with existing stations. Marriott said a "harmonic suppressor" will be used to prevent overtone interference.

Lord Castlerosse Most Talked of Journalist in England Now in America

Lord Castlerosse, editorial columnist of the London Daily Express, one of the foremost commentators of the London press, has been induced to write a series of articles on his observations of life in America for the Sun Telegraph and several other American newspapers. Lord Castlerosse is the son of the Earl of Kenmare, owner of the Lakes of Killarney. He is a director of three great London newspapers.

By LORD CASTLEROSSE.

I notice that you fellows in America are much given to sets of rules as to conduct for the assimilation of wealth, but confound it you never seem to get away from the old ideas. The same sort of copy book stuff: application, hard work, saving and all that.

Now I ask you, what is the good of this antediluvian advice? What the world requires is the knowledge of how to become rich without working for it.

Offhand the only way I know of that, excluding bootlegging, racketeering and politics, is to persuade some unsuspicious man to bet you that if you throw up five coins, three will not turn up heads or tails.

You are betting on a certainty. If that does not work your attention is hereby drawn to the little known fact that it is 3 to 1 on 4 out of 5 coins turning up either heads or tails.

INVESTING YOUR MONEY

Having started you on the road to fortune I will now show you how best to make your money serve you to the maximum advantage.

I would like here to introduce you to the late Lord Farquhar, a man of most distinguished appearance and of undoubted popularity. This latter trait was very striking, men of all ages and grades greeted him with an effusion which was altogether surprising.

Lord Farquhar, it is true, was the lord high steward of His Majesty. The very especially "best people" frequented his house. He had been a financier of merit, rising from the humblest beginning and had retired with a very considerable fortune estimated by many at several million pounds.

But all these marks of virtue did not quite explain the extraordinary cordiality with which his presence or even his name was invariably greeted.

One fine day after a large dinner I found myself sitting next to him and in a most kindly way he explained to me how joyous were the days of long ago. He informed me how then London abounded with women of Venus-like beauty.

Then he cried in sadness:

GOOD OLD DAYS

"Alas, those days have gone forever."

Touched by the loneliness of this melancholy millionaire I replied:

"Lord Farquhar, a few of my fellow Guardsmen and myself are giving a party at the Savoy Hotel. We may not be able to live up to the standard of the past, but believe me, you would be most welcome."

Tears came into the old gentleman's eyes.

"My boy," he said, "I shall be there."

He was all there.

The next day Lord Farquhar sent for me and said:

"You know I have no children. I have decided to leave my money to a man who will enjoy it most and it seems to me that you about fill the bill. Nevertheless, though I am telling this to you, I wish our conversation to be absolutely secret."

I thanked Lord Farquhar. Very naturally I was a constant visitor at 7 Grosvenor Square where he lived. Horace—yes, by now I called him that—seemed to have a most insatiable desire for parties. The sight of chorus girls was his favorite landscape.

He used to remark, as I signed colossal bills for outrageous parties:

"My boy, you won't be the loser."

To the best of my belief Lord Farquhar went to a party every night. I have never seen a man so much entertained. He obviously possessed some kind of hypnotic power. Some four years ago he passed away at the age of 84.

That day I lunched with Sir Charles Hartopp, who remarked:

"Poor Horace, I shall miss him very much, tho' the money will be acceptable. You know, I am his heir."

ALL HEIRS TO FORTUNE

Before I had time to intervene, a young man at the next table shouted excitedly:

"You're mistaken, Sir Charles. I am Lord Farquhar's heir. I had to keep this secret during his lifetime, but now that he is dead, the ban of silence is lifted. I intend to interview his lawyers this afternoon in order to give the instructions."

It was my turn.

"Excuse me," I started, and then stopped, and went to the telephone. My worst fears proved to be true.

WHY HE WAS POPULAR

Horace had promised verbally to make every lively young man and woman in London his heir. Yes, that was the secret of his popularity. That was why he was asked to every party.

With some bitterness I reviewed the situation. Eventually the whole truth came out. Lord Farquhar, instead of being rich, had no money. He was treasurer of the Conservative Party, also trustee to a large estate. He was insolvent and, to say the least of it, had maladministered his trust to his betterment.

There you are. Point number one. How to be popular though poor. Make men and women your heir.

POINT NUMBER TWO

Now we get to point number two.

Once upon a time I used to travel from London to Paris every week-end. This was just after the war, a period replete with new peerages and unauthorized privileges. Lloyd George was creating Lords right and left. That is how his private party chest swelled up to $10,000,000.

I noticed that some men were ushered off the boat by a private gangway, always given the best cabin, passed unquestioned through the customs to a specially reserved compartment, while the common herd, like you and I, endured every form of discomfort.

IMPORTANCE OF AIDES

One day I asked the late Lord Northcliffe what process he adopted in order to insure regal treatment while traveling, and he replied:

"My secretary just informs the railway people in London, and they do the rest."

I had no secretary, I had no money, but something had to be done. I had an idea.

The next day I called on the superintendent of the Continental traffic at Victoria and said:

"I represent Lord Castlerosse. He is traveling over to Paris next Saturday and returning on Monday. A man of his position naturally requires special treatment. Lord Northcliffe has informed him that you are the man to refer to."

And then, without drawing breath:

"These new peerages of Lloyd George are very confusing. Important, they pass unnoticed as Lord This or Lord That, whereas when they were simply Mr. So and So, everybody knew them. Now, you know what Lord Castlerosse is like. Unless he gets the very best, there will be a row."

THE SCHEME WORKS

It worked like a charm. I was ushered first on the boat, while everybody else was kept back.

Upon arrival on the French side I had the satisfaction of seeing a general, under whom I had suffered only a few months ago, and who until lately, because of his rank, I had to call "sir" and touch my hat to, hustled back in the crowd to make room for me.

I remarked patronizingly:

"Not too uncomfortable, general, I hope."

The old bird nearly burst.

On the quay, I was met by the prefect of police and with great presence of mind gave him an attache case full of cigars to carry through the customs. As I sank back in my special carriage, I heard two English voices speaking on the platform.

The conversation took the following turn:

"Who's that bloke?"

"I dunno for sure. He's either a cabinet minister or governor of the Bank of England. His secretary came and saw the boss."

There you are, boys!

If you can't afford a secretary, be your own. It is far easier to impress folks when using the third person than when employing the first person.

No, I was never caught and indeed there was nothing to catch. To this day do I travel in extra comfort on that line, but now it is simply due to the kindly spirit of the officials and possibly to the fact that I have to do with newspapers. Which is another story.

PINCHOT DEFIES PROPAGANDA

TOWANDA, Pa., Sept. 10.—(AP)—Gifford Pinchot was westward bound again today on his campaign tour for the governorship determined to nail the lie to a campaign of propaganda he said is to be launched against him.

In typical Pinchot fashion the former governor today blasted away at reports even before his hearers had heard them, which he said are to be circulated that his election would have a depressing effect on business. He said:

"You are going to be told that Pinchot is bad for business. Before long you will hear that and the more ridiculous it is the more it will be believed in some places.

"I want to ask you one thing when you hear these reports. It is 'what has Pinchot ever done to hurt business or the workingman?' If anything is found showing I ever did I will apologize to you."

Pinchot went to Troy, Mansfield, Wellsboro and Coudersport today from Towanda, covering more than 100 miles in the biggest day of his general election tour thus far. He was to spend the night at Coudersport.

At the Bradford county courthouse last night the Republican candidate was introduced by Judge Charles M. Culver.

LUZERNE GETS VOTE MACHINES

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Sept. 10.—(INS)—Determined that there shall be no repetition of the argument, the intimations of fraud and ballot-tampering which followed the primary election in May, the board of commissioners of Luzerne County will have 155 voting machines installed in the principal voting centers in time for the November election, it was revealed here yesterday.

One hundred and twenty-five voting machines have been ordered by the county, it was disclosed, and are expected to arrive within a few days.

With 30 machines already installed, there will be a total of 155 in four principal voting places when the electorate marches to the polls in November.

Allegheny county commissioners awarded a contract for voting machines to the Poole Engineering Company, of Baltimore, against the protest of the Citizens Voting Machine Committee. The company promised "probable" delivery of 300 machines by October 1 and 300 additional machines each month thereafter.

DOCTOR FACES STILL CHARGE

BEAVER, Sept. 10.—Dr. O. J. Stevenson, Brighton Township physician, waived a hearing before Justice Mitchell, Industry, and furnished bond of $2,000 to answer in court to a charge of possession and manufacture of intoxicating liquor.

County Detective Robert Branyan, Private Foley, of the state police, and Constable Frank Walton reported having found a 20-gallon still and seven gallons of liquor on the Stevenson farm. The still, they said, was in a hollow about 400 yards from the house, and the liquor concealed behind a chicken coop.

The officers say Dr. Stevenson had given them information about other violators. Friends of the physician declare the still and liquor were planted by enemies in retaliation.

MASTER MYSTERIES -:- By ARTHUR HOERL

The Butterfly Mystery

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Zelma Shaw, a chorus girl, is found in her apartment dead by gunshot poisoning. Oscar Welling, recently divorced paramour, has been shot to death. The night-boy had locked all doors and windows and the building had been under surveillance from eight in the evening and found the body at eight in the morning. Dale finds a card in the victim's hand signed "M. W." Blake believes Welling is one of the three suspects in the murders.

Now go on with the story.

CHAPTER III

Capt. Blake indicated Robin Dale went to the door of the apartment of Abraham, the night-boy. There was a short, narrow corridor leading left off the main hall way. About 20 feet down this shallow corridor a heavy wrought iron gate completely filled up the exit. A panel door swung inward and was open so that the pavement could be seen through the iron bars of the gate.

Robin Dale swung the gate open. It was of unusually heavy construction and swung outward. A huge lock suspended and snapped shut on a heavy loop inside the iron framework into which the gate fitted showed the manner in which it was locked at night. There was no question of the security of that lock.

"You locked this at 11 last night, Abraham," Dale asked.

"With mah own hands, yes suh."

"No argument there, Captain. Nothing could get through that gate except a cannon when once it's locked."

"No—and nothing can get in or out of baited apartment doors, either," Captain Blake still clung to the first analysis.

"At any rate, captain, there are enough people to help throw some light on the tragedy."

Sergeant Jardin confirmed with Jackson that the gate had been opened as usual at seven and then they all returned to the apartment. Emiline Thelma Shaw's maid had just arrived, and she substantiated the first part of the night-boy's statement.

Phelps, the fingerprint officer from headquarters, had completed his examinations and the result of these brought forth the first puzzling item of evidence. On the revolver found in the boudoir, the weapon which had fired the shot causing Oscar Welling's death, there was not a single trace of a fingerprint. That was odd enough in itself, but the other bit of information was even more startling.

The tumbler which contained arsenic mixed with a highball had been found on the table close by the head of Zelma Shaw's bed. There was still a quantity of the liquid in the glass. Phelps had carefully examined the glass for prints and now reported his findings to Captain Blake.

There is not a single marking of any kind on the glass, captain," Phelps said.

"Nothing of any kind," Dale asked sharply.

"Not a trace of any kind."

"May I look at the tumbler, Phelps?" Dale asked.

The reporter scrutinized the glass very carefully. The marks of Phelps' powder were in evidence over the entire surface of the glass, but as he had said, there was not a single print visible anywhere on the tumbler.

"Well, that's too bad," Dale said when he had completed his task.

"What did you expect to find, Dale?" Jardin said with a grin. "The signature of some mysterious criminal?"

"I really didn't expect to find anything, Sarge, strange as that may seem," Dale grinned back at the detective.

A search was made for the receptacle containing the poison. Two small cardboard boxes were found in the bathroom cabinet. One contained a white powder made up in tiny paper envelopes. There were two potions left. The other box contained about half a dozen capsules. There was no marking of any kind on either box. Jardin took these for examination by Dr. Wattles.

Back in the afternoon Robin Dale went to the Daily Journal office and wrote his story. He recorded the findings of the police inquest and suicide and eliminated the direct references to personages as brought out during the night-boy's examination, hinting at them merely in this manner. The police have information regarding a number of visitors at the apartment of Zelma Shaw on the night of the tragedy and investigation is under way in an effort to clearly establish the motive which led to the double killing."

This completed, Robin Dale wrote a second story in an entirely different vein.

"Is it possible for a murderer to escape through barred doors and iron-grilled windows? There are certain phases of the Shaw-Welling tragedy which may yet earn it the appelation 'The Butterfly Mystery.'

Behind every crime there is a motive. What motive can be assigned to Zelma Shaw's action? She was young, beautiful, successful in her chosen profession, with according to her outlook on life, everything to live for. She had money, comforts and the adoration of men. Considering Zelma Shaw from the precepts of her own existence, what more was there for her to desire? Nothing less certainly and above all things not the end of such a fruitful, pleasurable, easy existence.

It becomes difficult to assume, therefore, that she brought it to an end by her own hand. Motive fails to present itself.

Consider next the murder of Oscar Welling. Once again there is a lack of motive. The details of the recent butterly contested divorce are still too fresh in the minds of the public to require repeating here. In that action Oscar Welling chose to relinquish home and wife and was assisted in that choice by Zelma Shaw. On the eve of what to them was a successful controversy, why should she have deliberately shot and killed her partner in success?

And yet, unalterable facts remain, asking me unanswerable questions. How can a murderer pass through a door barred on the inside? What human agency can slink into obscurity through latched windows and iron bars?

"From every angle there is the Mystery of the Titian Butterfly."

Safe Flying Sought In New Regulations

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10 (AP)—Another attempt to increase the safety of flying was made today by the Commerce Department with issuance of new regulations governing the use of radio equipment on licensed airplanes.

These regulations, effective January 1, bar radio equipment not approved by the aeronautics branch of the department. It held:

"Reliability, simplicity of operation and freedom from fire hazard are essential."

Gets His 60 Days, As Requested, On Return

When Joe Hensell, 45, and homeless, appeared before Magistrate Leo Rothenberg yesterday he asked to be discharged. He declared that if he appeared again in the Central Police Station he wanted 60 days imprisonment. He was discharged.

Back again, he was reminded by Magistrate Rothenberg of his stipulation. Hensell, remembering, took the 60 days without a word.

Alien Serves Two Terms in Assembly

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Sept. 10—(AP)—George E. Klenzendorff, 47, who served two years in the State Assembly and helped make the laws for Wisconsin after his election in 1907, has petitioned to become a citizen of the United States.

Klenzendorff told Circuit Judge Kleczka yesterday he had not intended to serve illegally in the Legislature, but was under the impression that when his parents brought him here as a child of 10 he automatically became a citizen.

Housemaid
Deposits Money Every Week

She started her Farmers Saving Account with a $5.00 deposit October 25, 1919. Today she has a balance of $3,550.00.

Regularly she comes in with part of her weekly pay, to pass the money through the window and have it entered in her pass book. The deposits are not large, but the total has grown rapidly. Four per cent annual interest is compounded each six months to help the total grow.

Have you ever considered what 10% of your income invested in a Farmers Savings Account would amount to in a few years? Small sums, otherwise wasted, may be made the foundation of a constructive financial program.

Saving, after all, is merely a means to an end. Many people from all walks of life have used Farmers Savings Accounts to build the capital that has meant so much in opportunity and pleasure.

RADIO SLUMBER MUSIC

One of the best loved features in Radio SLUMBER MUSIC is now being broadcast nationally over the Blue Network by the Kellogg Company every Sunday night at 11 o'clock Eastern Daylight Saving Time. Enjoy it together with Kellogg's Kaffee Hag Coffee—the Coffee that lets you sleep.

"Listen to them crackle!"

YOUNG and old—everybody likes the delicious crispness of Kellogg's Rice Krispies. These toasted rice bubbles actually crackle out loud in milk or cream.

And what a flavor! What tempting goodness in every spoonful. Fine for you! Nourishing rice in easy-to-digest form.

Serve Rice Krispies for breakfast, for lunch. Extra delicious with fruits or honey added. Ideal for nursery suppers. Children love milk with Rice Krispies.

Use Rice Krispies in candies in place of nutmeats. Make macaroons. Sprinkle into soups. There never was a handier cereal.

Order from your grocer. Oven-fresh in the red-and-green package with the inner-seal wax-tite wrapper. Served by hotels, restaurants. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

RUM SHIP TAKEN BY SEAPLANE

RIGA, Sept. 10.—(INS.)—What is believed to be the first battle in history between a customs seaplane and an armed rum runner was fought in the Baltic Sea off Libau, Latvia.

Machine guns, anti-aircraft guns and bombs were used during the fight, which was short and fierce. The seaplane won the battle.

A Latvian customs plane patrolling the Baltic coast ordered the steamer Anna, registered in the free City of Danzig, to halt. When the order was disregarded the seaplane crew fired with machine guns.

The Anna returned the fire, but the plane continued to rake the surface ship with machine gun fire, also dropping high explosive bombs about her.

The Anna finally was damaged so heavily that her crew surrendered, and the seaplane conducted her into the harbor. Customs authorities announced they found 3,000 gallons of contraband liquors aboard.

Canonsburg Bandit Gets 8½-Year Term

WASHINGTON, Pa., Sept. 10.—Roy Cain, 24, convicted here of having participated in the holdup of the Cool Valley Service Station, near Canonsburg, March 14, was sentenced to eight and one-half years in the Western penitentiary by Judge Howard W. Hughes late yesterday.

Morgan Grim, 17, Waynesburg, who pleaded guilty to robbing the office of the Atlantic Refining Company here was sentenced to from three to six years. Reuben Smith, Donora, confessing he broke into the A. Haddad store at Donora, stealing $250, was sentenced to from four to eight years.

6000 Linen Huck Towels

A Special Purchase Made in Belfast

Tulip Pattern

Chrysanthemum

Adams Pattern

Wild Flower

$3.50 Half Doz. 65c Each

These towels will be the center of interest Thursday, when they go on sale. For who would expect to find good, firm, closely woven all-linen huckabuck towels, hemstitched, at a price so low? They are the outcome of a purchase which our representative made last March in Ireland.

They are of a heavy weight and very absorbent. Every thread pure Irish linen. Snowy white. Size 18x33 inches. Your choice of five neat patterns, all with framed borders . . . four sketched. Choose a half dozen tomorrow. The value is really remarkable.

Linoleum Prices Drop

Hand-Made Marble Linoleum, $2.85 Sq. Yd.
Embossed Tile Linoleum, $2.35 Sq. Yd.
Medium Quality Linoleum, $1.45 Sq. Yd.
Felt Base Floor Covering, 45c Sq. Yd.

This is news . . . important news. Linoleum manufacturers have just announced a substantial lowering of their prices on all grades of linoleum. Without delay we have revised our prices downward on every piece of linoleum in our stock, basing our new prices on the new wholesale cost.

What's more, we offer for Thursday the four specially priced groups listed above, the prices being even lower than the new regular price levels.

OIL MAN CITES BUSINESS GAIN

CHICAGO, Sept. 10 (AP)—Pleased to find curtailment in oil production on his return to work after a vacation in Europe President Edward G. Seubert of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana told newspapermen he sees signs of gradual improvement in general industrial conditions. He said:

Recovery will be slow but sure. While there is some actual depression a great deal of it is mental depression. That is what we must overcome. There has been too much pessimism.

He said the Standard Oil Company still is planning to have its stock listed on the New York Stock Exchange.

Ambridge Council Makes Cop Out Of Kopp

WOODS TO GO TO ASYLUM

George Woods, indicted for murder in the slaying of his mother, Mrs. Mathilda Woods, and recently found by a commission to be insane, was sentenced yesterday to Farview state institution for the criminally insane.

Shortly after he was sentenced to serve from three and a half to seven years for the shooting of his mother, the woman died from the gun shot wounds. Woods was then indicted for first degree murder.

Farmer Found Shot To Death in Field

TITUSVILLE, Pa., Sept. 10 (AP)—William A. Walford, 60, a farmer of Spartansburg, was found dead in a pasture near his residence yesterday. Authorities were uncertain whether he was accidentally shot or committed suicide. He took his shotgun as he left home Monday saying he intended to shoot crows.

Autoist Cleared In Death of Man

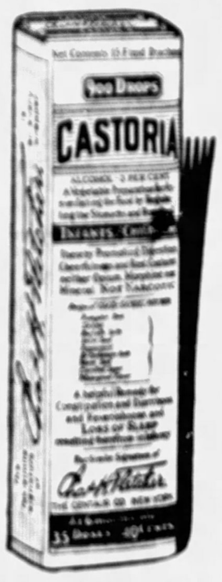
GREENSBURG, Sept. 10—Charged with involuntary manslaughter growing out of the killing of Charles Schmidt by an auto, Edward W. Cady, Monessen, was acquitted by a jury here. Witnesses failed to identify Cady as the driver of the car which struck Schmidt, January 17.

When Babies FRET



There are times when a baby is too fretful or feverish to be sung to sleep. There are some pains a mother cannot put away. But there's no time when any baby can't have the quick comfort of Castoria! A few drops, and your little one is soon at ease—back to sleep almost before you can slip away.

Remember this harmless pure vegetable preparation when children are ailing. Don't stop its use when Baby has been brought safely through the age of colic, diarrhea, and other infantile ills. Give good old Castoria until your children are in their teens! Whenever coated tongues tell of constipation, whenever there's any sign of sluggishness that needs no stronger medicines to relieve, Castoria is pleasant-tasting. Children love to take it. Buy the genuine—with Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on wrapper.

ERK SAVES ETNA POSTOFFICE

Edmund F. Erk, who served the late Representative Stephen G. Porter as secretary for 20 years, today was credited with having argued the Postoffice Department out of its announced purpose to abandon the postoffice at Etna.

Playing the role of substitute representative, Erk led a delegation consisting of the Rev. J. Gerald Houston, Martin Metzger and Lee Donaldson into the office of First Assistant Postmaster General Coleman and after a 30-minute session was assured that action on the abandonment of the Etna office would be deferred for the time being.

The department in consonance with its policy to economize in postal administration had made arrangements to serve Etna residents from the Sharpsburg office.

Confesses He Killed 'Nagging' Landlady

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—(INS)—Because she nagged him about his unpaid room bill, Robert Allison Armstrong, 50, murdered his landlady, Mrs. Delphine Ryan, he told police today. The woman's body was found Saturday stuffed in a dumb waiter shaft.

Armstrong, a chef, will be arraigned in court today.

Coraopolis Babies' Contest Scheduled

Ninety Coraopolis babies have been entered in a contest to be held Saturday afternoon in the auditorium of the Coraopolis Y. M. C. A. by the Ladies' Auxiliary of that organization. Prizes will be awarded to four babies.

"WONDERFUL," SAYS THIS MAN AS TO KONJOLA

Gained Twenty Pounds In Six Months—Stomach Trouble and Nervousness Conquered.

No wonder Konjola is known as the new and different medicine with more than a million friends. See what Konjola did for Mr. Jack Scollick, 3624 California avenue, Pittsburgh. Then see the Konjola Man at the Dow drug store, Penn avenue and Sixth street, and hear the remarkable story of this remarkable medicine.

Read what Mr. Scollick says of Konjola and what it did for him, and fix in your mind the fact that the files of Konjola fairly overflow with just such sincere endorsements. Mr. Scollick said:

"Stomach trouble and nervousness caused me suffering for the past two years. Food produced gas, and I suffered terribly from stomach pains. I heard so many people talk about Konjola that I decided to put it to the test. I have taken eight bottles and I am sleeping fine at night and my nerves are calm. I have gained twenty pounds in six months, and I want to say that I think Konjola is a wonderful medicine."

Now, isn't that the kind of a medicine you want? One that goes right to the roots of the ailments Konjola is designed to relieve?

The Konjola Man is at the Dow drug store, Penn avenue and Sixth street, where daily he is meeting the public and explaining the merits of this new and different medicine. Konjola is also sold in all Dow drug stores in Pittsburgh and vicinity.

Mother Identifies Girl's Stockings

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—(AP)—A pair of white stockings found in the Margaretville, N. Y., farmhouse of Charles Edward Pope were identified today by Mrs. Della Budd as those worn by her 11-year-old daughter, Grace, when she was kidnaped two years ago.

Mrs. Budd also identified a partly burned ornament, police said, as one that had been attached to a purse the child carried.

$12,500 Expended In Jones' Campaign

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—(AP)—Expenditures of $2,300 in behalf of the campaign of T. P. Gore, blind former senator, for the Democratic senatorial nomination in Oklahoma have been reported to the Senate Campaign Funds Committee.

Another statement filed shows $12,500 was used in the campaign of James Elwood Jones for the Republican nomination as senator from West Virginia.

Posse Seeks Bandit Who Kidnaped Girl

HOUSTON, Tex., Sept. 10.—A posse of peace officers sought a Negro today who wounded Frank B. Horton, salesmanager of the Texas Bag and Burlap Company, last night, robbed him and kidnaped his woman companion, driving away in Horton's automobile.

Horton was found on a road near Houston, wounded in the thigh and unconscious from a blow on the head.

Turks Renew War On Kurdish Rebels

ANGORA, Turkey, Sept. 10.—(AP)—Turkish troops have resumed operations against Kurdish rebels in the vicinity of Mt. Ararat, forcing an army of Kurds to disband and flee southward.

The Turks have been attempting to subdue the Kurds all summer but have had much difficulty because the tribesmen, some of whom live in Persia, shuttle back and forth across the border.

Hawks Beats Lindy's N. Y.-Detroit Record

DETROIT, Sept. 10.—(AP)—Capt. Frank Hawks, holder of East and West trans-continental records, arrived at Ford airport, establishing a new record for a New York-Detroit non-stop flight. His elapsed time of three hours and three minutes bettered the previous record of four hours and 15 minutes set two years ago by Col. Charles A. Lindbergh.

House, Garden Party At Nurses' Home

A house and garden party will be held tonight at St. Joseph's Hospital Nurses' Home, Carson street, in honor of the graduating class. Cards and dancing will feature the affair. Miss Anna Ostrosky is general chairman.

Court Adjournment Tribute to Attorney

Common Pleas Court recorded its adjournment yesterday in memory of Attorney Gordon W. Williams, 71, of 731 Summerlea street, whose death was announced before Judge Frank P. Patterson by Attorney Harold M. Irons.

Announcing the OPENING of The SMITHFIELD GRILL

OLIVER BLDG. SMITHFIELD ST.

CIVILIZATION has always been reflected through its public places. Hotels and restaurants especially talk to strangers and residents alike about the life of the community in which they are established. The culture and progress of a city's artistic development are recorded in its eating places. The beauty of surroundings that a patron demands, stands as mute evidence of his own good taste.

Pittsburgh, long recognized as a cultural center, has demanded something finer in the way of a downtown restaurant—it has demanded a restaurant of artistic conception — that efficient equipment be installed — that hygienic conditions prevail, so that its culinary desires might be better satisfied.

To fulfill this need, The SMITHFIELD GRILL is being opened September 11th. Pittsburgh's finest eating place without question—not only from standpoint of beauty and appointments, but in consideration of its modern hygienic equipment, its scientifically cooled ventilating system regulating temperature in all kinds of weather, its capable staff of dieticians and its expertly trained corps of waitresses. We, who have catered to your desires in opening this restaurant, feel confident of its delightful reception.

We extend you a cordial invitation to become acquainted with the
SMITHFIELD GRILL
OLIVER BUILDING

Ample accommodations and service as you desire it, coupled with the choicest foods at moderate prices, make The SMITHFIELD GRILL desirable for your mealtime needs. Service from 11 A. M. to 9 P. M. daily. For those who desire table d'hote service a special $1.50 course dinner will be served from 5:30 until closing.

With the opening of our doors, we confirm our belief in a new era of prosperity, and we convey to the people of Pittsburgh our appreciation for their having made possible this opening.

The Loudspeaker

Sacret Document.
Opera Singer First.
Baur in Big Money.
McNamee's Debut.

By LOUIS REID

Louis Reid.

NEW YORK Sept 10 Deep in the files of the National Broadcasting Company at 711 Fifth avenue is an old and battered volume which some day may be a precious record of material for the man who writes a history of radio.

This document a relic of radio's paleolithic age, is a daily record kept by Thomas Cowan WJZ's first announcer of programs broadcast from the old Westinghouse Building in Newark. Cowan's entries are a procession of affidavits attesting to the radio debuts of many stars who are still famous on the air.

Vincent Lopez, says the record, brought his orchestra to Newark for a two-hour program on Sunday, February 26, 1922. Lopez was spotted on the schedule between a time announcement and a recital of children's songs. On the following Sunday Leo Reisman put out for the first time on the radio sea with a 15-piece band. Within two weeks the names of Milton Cross, tenor and last year's darling of the diction gods; Billy Jones and Ernest Hare were scrawled upon the record. It was not long afterward that Cross became the second staff announcer of the station.

Opera Singer Was First Heard on Network

During the same significant month of March, 1922, Devora Nadworney, operatic singer, faced a microphone for the first time. Miss Nadworney's also was the first voice ever broadcast over a network. On January 4, 1923, she was heard through several stations linked with WEAF at the inauguration of that station's network service.

Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, Dr. Royal S. Copeland, Vaughn de Leath, Wendell Hall and May Singhi Breen are other veterans of the air who made their radio debuts in 1922. Hall's song, "It Ain't Genna Rain No More," which he introduced to the WJZ audience in his role of the "Red Headed Music Maker," was the first hit ever exploited on the air. Without the benefit of an audition, Miss Breen managed to persuade the program officials to book her for a recital of songs with ukelle. And Miss de Leath's crooning soon won her the title of the "original radio girl."

However the procession of radio debuts had been started by the Shannon Quartet, nearly six months before, in October of 1921. In those days the group consisted of Charles Hart, Elliott Shaw, Lewis James and Wilfred Glenn, and their appearance at the microphone on that autumn day was the first vocal broadcast ever heard east of Pittsburgh. Later Franklin Baur replaced Hart as first tenor, and the quartet's name was changed to the Revelers.

When Baur joined a Ziegfeld production as a featured singer a few seasons ago, James Melton took his place in the radio quartet. Later Baur returned to the microphone and became identified with a commercial program, for which he is paid, a spy reports, $1,000 weekly. The Revelers have made several European tours and are now heard in many programs.

They must be raking in considerably more than $1,000 weekly apiece—the only members of a vocal quartet in or out of radio who are—a fact probably due to their enterprise in passing by the thumb-worn shelves of "Sweet Adeline" and "Mandalay" and pausing at the hitherto inaccessible counters of "Rhapsody in Blue" and Rachmaninoff's "Prelude in C Sharp Minor."

McNamee Air Debut In 1922 Over WEAF

Not all the old guard of radio had their debuts at WJZ. Graham McNamee wandered into WEAF'S studios at 195 Broadway in 1922 and met a microphone for the first time. Alwyn E. W. Bach, the N. B. C.'s diction medalist for 1930, first sang from WBZ, Boston, in November, 1929, and became a staff announcer at the station in the following year. Roxy first went on the air from the Capitol Theater in 1923.

Bertha Brainard, eastern program manager for the company, entered radio as an artist. She was WJZ's dramatic critic in 1922, sending to the armchairs each week a summary of the Broadway plays. Cowan, announcer, program-builder and man of all work at the station in its early days, is now an announcer for New York's municipal station, WNYC.

The busiest of Americans are those writing songs for radio. The career of songs on the microphones may be pathetically brief but, while they penetrate the parlors of the republic, gosh! how the money rolls in. Better, the melody men say, three months on the radio and a mountain of greenbacks than a year on the store counters and a molehill of dimes.

When he is discovered in New York simultaneously by both Arizona and Canadian officers, the sailor dashes into a steamer's engine room where he is caught. Each of his pursuers claims him.
The lodging-house keeper invites the three men to join him in a drink while the dispute is being adjusted, then drugs the drink and has all three shanghaied aboard a departing ship. The experiences of the unfortunates organized "Triple Alliance" under a tyrannical captain form an amusing dramatic narrative.

We Now Present

-:- WHAT'S ON THE AIR DOINGS ABOUT STUDIOS -:-

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Radio Editor.

Bernt Balchen, Admiral Byrd's pilot in his flight over the South Pole, is a WCAE speaker at 10:30 p. m.

Wild Oscar is to entertain WJAS fans at 6:30 in his 15 minute debut with Frank and Seder. Oscar, by the way, is to be host to winners of the Radio Poll on Loew's Penn stage October 16.

Bernt Balchen

By the amount of buzzing we've heard at the KDKA studios the past few days we have a feeling that the Staff Presentation at 6 o'clock will be extraordinary. Announcers, production men and operators are to take part.

THEIR FORTE

The Thrasher-Myers Detective Agency is to be given one last try at locating the grand piano.

Charley Earley, the demon reporter, descends upon us with a lot of interrogation points, thus—

Do you remember when old 8ACF in Washington, Pa. conducted experimental tests with KDKA?

When Chicago and Schenectady heard two feet from the headphones, was considered remarkable?

When pioneer fans used bed springs for an aerial and a crystal detector to get time signals from NAA at Arlington?

ROCKABYE

Bedtime stories are coming back, shouts Joe Hiller, rear admiral of The Showboat. At least one bedtime story is coming back, he hastens to explain. And that one is the nightcap favorite of Fuzzy Knight which will be told over KQV at 8:30.

We've often wondered how Fuzzy got his name. After watching his comic piano gyrations we're inclined to believe he was named after "Fuzzy Wuzzy," the rabbit of "Alice in Wonderland." How appropriate then for a bedtime story. Precede, Mr. Knight!

* * *

Exhibiting a mass of figures and theories to KDKA girls yesterday, Dr. S. J. Krieger—one of seven men in the world to understand the Einstein theory—said quicker than that, that 1,018,576 multiplied by 1,073,741,824 gives a result of 1,125,899,906,842,624.

* * *

Any one having a little spare time will kindly check on this and let us know if it is correct.

By looking Carol Dickson square in the eye and asking her the exact date of her birth, Dr. Krieger deduced that she was 599,184,011 seconds young at 2:45:11 p. m. Tuesday afternoon.

Does that man know his figures!

Talking about Einstein, we thought Ambrose J. Weems' little joke last night was a stunner.

"Who's at the door?" he asked.

"Prof. Albert Einstein."

"In the flesh."

"No, in theory. He claims he's your cousin."

"Wrong," said Ambrose, "no relativity."

BY THE WAY:

Jack and Tony, that once famous KQV team, are about to make up again . . . they had a little fallout . . . a technical error in the filing of papers blasted the careers of J. Milton Bayton, Uniontown; C. W. Lemmon, Mt. Pleasant, and Burdette Haley, of Irwin, before the Radio Commission yesterday . . . they had dreams of building new stations . . . Jim Simpson is trying hard to get Jessica Dragonette for the Radio Show . . . the hardest individual workers about Pittsburgh studios are said to be Ralph Federer, WCAE and Dick Ridgely, KDKA . . . they spend odd moments practicing . . . it is rumored the stations are to charge them room rent . . . If you failed to vote in the Radio Poll last Sunday don't forget the ballot will appear again this Sunday . . . and there's a big surprise in store for the local winners! . . . Votes must be on the ballot printed in the Sunday Sun-Telegraph. Letters will not be counted!

Mary Louise Jeffrey, on WCAE at 7 tonight, is an honor graduate of South Hills High and a senior at Tech . . . Elias Breeskin is with Roxy . . . Ted Kaye is reported leaving radio . . . Out of this comes the report that John Chapel of WBZ and John Bosworth of WMMN are to join KQV.

KIWANIS MEET AT ERIE

More than 50 Kiwanians of the Pittsburgh district will attend the state Kiwanis convention September 21 to 25 at Erie.

The Pittsburgh party headed by Charles Donley, governor of the Pennsylvania organization, will leave the city Saturday, September 20, in automobiles, according to present plans.

Among those scheduled to make addresses during the convention are Warden Lewis E. Lawes, of Sing Sing; R. H. Crossman, of Omaha, president of International Kiwanis; Paul Siple of the Byrd Antarctic Expedition, and Secretary of Labor James J. Davis. Charles Donley will preside.

Social events will include the governor's reception and dance Monday, September 22; district dinner, September 23, and the governor's ball, September 24. More than 1,000 delegates representing 114 clubs are expected to be present.

Sues For $20,000 As Result of Fall

Anna Greenaway and her husband, Edward Greenaway, of Wilkinsburg, asked $20,000 damages from Alexander P. Gillespie, also of Wilkinsburg, in a suit filed in Common Pleas Court. They alleged Mrs. Greenaway suffered a broken arm and other serious injuries when she fell on an uncovered hole in a sidewalk fronting 622 and 624 Rebecca street, Wilkinsburg, owned by Gillespie.

Huntington Store Robbed of Guns

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., Sept. 10 (AP).—The Emmons-Hawkins Hardware Company store here was robbed of shotguns, rifles and ammunition, valued by company officials at about $600.

Burglars Use Auto to Break Window Bars

DOVER, O., Sept. 10.—Burglars who stole women's apparel valued at $200 from Dove Dry Goods Company store in the heart of the business district used an automobile to pull bars from a rear window, tracks show.

$600 Clothing, Loot Of Home-Breakers

Clothing valued at $600 was stolen from the home of R. H. Smith, 5544 Northumberland avenue, during his absence last night, according to a report made to Squirrel Hill police.

Forcing a dining room window, the thieves ransacked the house and escaped after taking men's suits, neckties, shoes and other articles of wearing apparel. It was said. No jewelry or money was taken.

HIT-RUN AUTO KILLS BOY

Police today were searching for two motorists, one who failed to stop after his automobile had fatally injured a boy, and the other who fled from a policeman after his machine had struck an aged man.

The boy, Norman Kreps, 7, of Dirtold road, Kennedy Township, died in the Ohio Valley Hospital last night from a fracture of the skull suffered several hours before when he was struck by an automobile in the Pine Hollow road near his home.

Witnesses told police the driver of the machine increased his speed after hitting the boy.

Struck by an automobile at East Ohio street and Cedar avenue, W. H. O'Neil, 70, of 850 Vista street, was taken to the Allegheny General Hospital with an injury of his back. The license number of the car was obtained, and the motorist's arrest was expected today.

"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for run-down condition before my baby was born. Now I eat better, have gained in weight and have more strength to take care of my four children. I can do my housework and not get a bit tired. My mother and my sister, also several of my women friends are taking your medicine now, because I believe that this medicine will help any woman that will take it regularly."—Mrs. Lydia Orloski.

"When I started taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I could hardly do my housework. I was so nervous and weak from Change of Life that I had to lie down very often. I heard about the Vegetable Compound through a pamphlet which was left at my door. I am doing all the housework for a family of four and it keeps me on my feet. I have taken six bottles and I have gained strength and flesh."—Minnie E. Hicks.

Indigestion and Gas Torture for Months. All Gone Now!

After All Else Failed Acidine Brings End To Pain

"I suffered for months with acid indigestion and gas on the stomach," says Mr. C. Bedford of Detroit, Michigan. "Couldn't eat a meal without being troubled with gas and pain, also dizzy feeling. I tried all kinds of medicines, but nothing really helped until I took Acidine, which relieved me from the start. Now I am entirely well—have no pains at all." Thousands of people are amazed at the quick relief Acidine brings after all other remedies have failed. But there's a reason—Acidine is a scientific combination of quick-acting and long-lasting starch and protein digestants and anti-acids, which quickly stop burning acid, gas, belching, bloating, and colds, nervousness and sleeplessness resulting from acidity. Japtase, one of these ingredients, is an effective starch digestant which promptly liquefies 800 times its own weight of starchy food in laboratory tests. No other remedy contains this scientific combination to end acid stomach trouble. Don't suffer acid stomach disorder which causes you endless misery. Eat and drink what you want. If gas causes you sleepless nights use Acidine at once. Buy it at any drug store. Test it, the druggist will refund your money if you are not pleased. You take no chance. The risk is ours, the benefit, yours. Don't wait longer for the joy Acidine will bring you—get it today, at your druggist or write Health Laboratories, Inc., Pittsburgh, Pa.

Famous Silk Manufacturers unite with the Committee of 17*

in recommending PALMOLIVE BEADS for washing fine silk garments

CORTICELLI • HOLEPROOF • KAYSER • LUXITE
PHOENIX • STEHLI • VANITY FAIR
VAN RAALTE

Kayser gives the name "solo garment" to this type of all-in-one glove silk underapparel. Its gleaming, lustrous weave is kept lovely when you wash it in Palmolive Beads. That's why Kayser recommends this new soap.

HERE is the most authoritative information any woman could have on proper washing of fine silk things. . . .

The advice of silk manufacturers themselves! Leading manufacturers—like Corticelli, Kayser, Vanity Fair—who take infinite pains to create the most flawless garments.

They know the importance of careful washing! They know that the most painstaking manufacture cannot produce silk garments that will withstand harsh soaps.

Find Palmolive Beads ideal

Every one of these manufacturers has conducted prolonged laboratory tests with soaps. And all arrive at the same result . . . there's no soap like Palmolive Beads for washing fine silk things!

"Palmolive Beads dissolve instantly in water of the lowest washing temperature and rinse out completely," says Kayser. "The olive and palm oils cleanse gently and mildly, protecting sheen, lustre and fibre."

"Because of its olive and palm oil content, Palmolive Beads is an ideal soap for the cleansing of washable silks," says Corticelli.

Agree with Committee of 17

In their enthusiastic approval of Palmolive Beads, these famous manufacturers confirm the opinions of the Committee of 17 of America's most distinguished women who tested Palmolive Beads and who unanimously approved it as the superlative soap for safe washing of fine fabrics.

Trust your finest silk lingerie, your most precious hosiery, to this safe soap, made of olive and palm oils. Get a box at your grocer's today. Generous size package, 10 cents.

Pajama ensemble by Jay-Thorpe, fashioned of Stehli's magnificent flowered silk, with coat of Stehli black satin. Stehli is one of the pre-eminent designers and creators of fine silks who advise you to wash all tub silks in Palmolive.

Vanity Fair Lingerie
When You Launder
We recommend Palmolive Beads. They dissolve instantly and cleanse perfectly in lukewarm water. Wash garment by squeezing and dipping up and down. Rinse thoroughly and squeeze dry instead of wringing. Dry quickly. Press with warm iron.

MISS HARD-BOILED

—By JANE DIXON—

Friends Kidnap Adams and Duel Is Prevented

CHAPTER XLIX

Raquel walked to the window of Greta's room in the Ritz and looked down into the street.

People were hurrying to and fro there. Happy insouciant people. The world wagged on as if this dreadful thing had not happened.

Bertie Adams that irresponsible happy-go-lucky boy with the bright blond hair was about to meet injury—death even—if what the papers said was true. Because of her.

"What's the matter? Where's the fire?" Greta muttered flouncing off sleep with an effort. Her drowsy blue eyes met the black ones of Raquel wide and swimming with the intensity of her emotions.

"Holy cats dearie you look as if the landlord had just called for his rent," added Greta.

"Look." Raquel handed her the paper and pointed to the headlines.

"Suffering kittens!" gasped Greta. "A duel! I thought they only happened in the cinema."

"But it cannot happen!" said Raquel. Her tone was crisp final. "We must make sure it doesn't."

"How?" Greta wanted to know, "with a crazy Frenchman waving his sword and crying for blood."

"Call Ginger Smith," ordered Raquel. "At once. Compel him to tell you exactly what has happened."

Greta obeyed with a will.

"It's true," she said when she had hung up the receiver. "The noble prince sent Bertie his card. Fine way to invite a fellow to get killed—sending him your calling card."

"I must see Bertie now before—"

Bertie Kidnaped

"You can't," Greta interrupted. "He's disappeared."

"You mean he's gone away—"

"Oh no, not that way. Bertie ain't the runaway kind. He's been kidnaped."

"Surely that detestable Frenchman hasn't dared play such a trick."

"No. It was not the sword-waver. He was too busy writing sweet little notes. Ginger says that Bertie wanted to fight, but that some of his friends in Paris got wind of what happened. They notified the family lawyer here and the next thing Bertie knew he was all bundled up and on his way to an unknown port."

"Thank heavens!" breathed Raquel. Tears of relief were in her eyes.

"Ginger said Bertie fought like Dempsey never did and insisted on seeing you. He's threatened to give them the slip and come back the first chance he gets."

"He shall not. I forbid him," said Raquel.

"You'll have to find him first," Greta reminded. "And he's dizzy about you. Why don't you nab him, dearie? His old man's got bocoo money. Bertie has class himself, and is a darn good egg besides. And look at the high hat you could wear, with the Adamses for in-laws."

Raquel returned to the window.

Marriage Impossible

"It is quite impossible," she said.

She did not say why the idea of marriage and Bertie Adams appeared to her in the light of the impossible. She herself did not know.

As a friend, yes. As a pal. Like Ginger Smith was a pal. As for the closer relation, it would not do. Bertie was too young. True he was older than she by several years. But that was measured by time. Actually, she felt as if she might very well be his mother. His irresponsibility. His tireless race after pleasure. His indifference towards the things she valued most, the things the Adams money and position had robbed of all value for him.

"Hop into the apparel, old dear," Greta advised. "You can find what you want among my clucks and suits. We've got to face the big boss this morning and it may not be anything trivial."

"Of course he'll know," said Raquel.

"He knows you've been A. W. O. L. all night. Nosey will see to that. But whether he's heard about the swords at twenty paces—we'll see. And it won't be long now."

In the Champs Elysees atelier of Chez Alphonse, business was pursuing the even tenor of its way.

Georgette, the little French woman with her funny way of speaking English, and who had taken a fancy to the American models, much to the disgust of her French compatriots in the atelier was laying out the first of the gowns to be exhibited that day when Raquel and Greta arrived.

Those girls have make supper in these room las night," she explained indignantly. "I arrive today and find these room dishabille with what those girl ate not eat. Peegs."

With two dozen rooms in the dump they would choose this one," grumbled Greta. "Oh cookie if I had only caught them."

Alphonse appeared shortly before the luncheon hour.

He was suave. Smiling. He had tickets for the opera that night. For Greta too if she cared to accompany Mlle. Raquel and him.

"I'm crazy about basses when they bellow," said Greta, "but don't send me any tenors. I can't use 'em."

Understands Alphonse

"Gosh I believe he's muffed it 'the sword stuff'," she whispered to Raquel.

"He knows," Raquel said. "Everything."

"What makes you think so? He hasn't let out a sign of a squawk."

"No. He has other plans."

"How do you know?"

"Watch him when he smiles."

"I gotcha, dearie. Like the cat pleading not guilty with a canary feather on its nose."

Why did Alphonse choose to ignore the affair in the Montmartre which must now be the choice morsel of gossip along the boulevards in the cafes and drawing rooms?

Why had he changed his attitude from that of guardian of honor to that of keeper to that of a blind innocent?

True, Raquel was grateful that he had done so.

She was nearer to feeling affection for him than she had ever been before.

She wished she could find a way to express her appreciation of his finesse, to show her affection ever so little.

"I will, too—" she said and stopped short.

Why, of course. There was a motive behind the unexpected behavior of Alphonse. He had known she would react exactly this way. He found he could not enforce her obedience to his will. So he would earn her obedience. Through gratitude and affection.

"Clever Alphonse," she said to herself, watching him through eyes in which those strange candle-lights of her soul danced to dervish tunes. "I know the game you play. I see your hand. And I like you for the skill with which you play it."

New Sensation

The three days' sensation over the rebuke administered by Bertie Adams to the Prince de Rochelle in Tony Johnson's place in Montmartre was displaced by the story a young Englishman who managed to get himself shot by a fiery Argentine danseuse. The lady needed the publicity for her art in the music halls.

It was pretty openly hinted that the most regrettable part of the encounter lay in the fact that the young American did not administer a more stinging rebuke to the princeling. Gay Paris had suffered overlong from de Rochelle's arrogance and flagrant sensualities. His skill with the blade had made a bully out of a dastard.

Raquel wrote a curt little note of dismissal to Bertie and sent it to Ginger Smith to deliver. She gave Adams to understand she would rather not see him again. That her time and her interests were centered elsewhere.

"He'll believe I've come to some arrangement with Alphonse," she told herself with a little pang of regret that would not be assuaged. "Well, it can't be helped. One must be cruel sometimes, only to be kind. I like Bertie too much to hurt him deeply, which is what would happen in the end, if he—cared."

"I'll say you're hard-boiled, dearie," Greta gasped when Raqual told her what she had done. "You've gotta heart like a frost-bitten potato."

Raquel turned away. It was impossible to make Greta understand a kindly hand must sometimes wear a mailed glove.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Outdoor life is vitalizing. So is sunshine. Don't forget the old adage to "improve each shining hour," which may or may not mean that the time to be out of the house is when the sun is shining.

Swollen tissues just below the eyes can be caused by intestinal disturbance. Sometimes they are an inheritance. Fomentations, followed by cold compresses, will shrink the tissue cells for the time being, freshening the countenance for the evening party. Laving with witch hazel is a good lotion. Dip cotton pads in witch hazel and apply.

Love's Reawakening

Continuation of Loves Awakening

—By ADELE GARRISON—

Madge Succeeds in Quieting Lillian

At Lillian's question concerning the punishment for telling a lie to a dying man I took a firm hold of the trembling hands which had caught at my arm.

"Steady," I whispered. "Do you want to spoil everything now? Remember how it will distress Robert if he hears you. Pull yourself together and I'll take you back to Hasbrouck's. Put this on and sit down here a second or two first."

I put her cloak around her once more concealing the dress she had worn to gladden Robert Savarin's dying eyes, and guided her to a chair. Then I ran down the hall and returned with a glass from which I compelled her to take a few sips of water.

"Now," I said when she had stopped trembling, "we will go. You do not need to say anything downstairs. I will do the talking."

She made no answer and I guessed that she was incapable of speech. But she walked steadily with me down the stairs and stood quiescently while I told the nurse, who was sitting in the lower hall that we had completed our visit.

"Please say to Mrs. Cosgrove," I said, hurrying Lillian toward the door, "that I shall be back in a little while to see her."

The nurse nodded and the next minute I was outside the door with Lillian, grateful indeed for the crisp winter air which was like a powerful tonic for racked nerves.

"Not a word, now," I told her. "I'll answer your question, if you want me to, later on. Just now, you're going to get back to our room—if you can."

I added the last words beneath my breath, for I did not wish her to know how great was my concern for her. That almost every bit of her nerve strength had been sapped by this ordeal of bidding a last farewell to the man who had loved her so passionately—and so hopelessly—I well knew. If I could only get her safely into bed before the inevitable reaction came!

It was a near thing, but victory lay with me. She said nothing more, and her movements were more like those of an automaton than of a living woman, as I brought her into the Hasbrouck home and up the stairs to the room which had been assigned her. With the same passiveness she submitted to my ministrations as I undressed her and put her into bed. But she pushed my hand away as I brought her a tiny glass of hot milk.

"I couldn't swallow anything," she whispered, but I was inexorable for I had put a sedative, provided by Katherine before I started from the farmhouse, into the milk.

"I won't bother you again, all night," I told her as I held the glass against her lips, "but you must take this for me."

She obeyed with a mighty effort, and then lay back upon her pillows, her great eyes staring at me.

"But I can't go to sleep," she said, "even with that stuff I know you must have put in the milk. I can't, I tell you, I'm letting Robert go into eternity believing a lie, and—Harry—I can't bear to think—"

"Don't think!" I adjured her. "That's just what I'm forbidding you to do. Here! shut your eyes, and let me try the tactics I use with Junior."

She closed her eyes obediently, and I took a position on the bed close to her and began stroking her forehead with long even sweeps of my hands, crooning as I did so that stanch stand-by of distracted mothers, the monotonous cadence of "This is the house that Jack built," with all its extra lines. She protested but once, without opening her eyes.

"It's no use, Madge. You're only wasting your strength," but I gave her no answer save the crooning, and she lay still, but rigid, every nerve unconsciously rebelling against my efforts to put her to sleep.

At last, however, the sedative got in its work and first one hand and then the other fell to the bed relaxed. I stopped the crooning, listened to her even breathing, satisfied myself that she was at last asleep, and knowing she would not waken until morning, I drew the covers over her, opened the window and picking up my bag went into the adjoining room where Mary was still reading.

"I think I shall sleep here if you don't mind, Mary," I said, putting my bags down at the foot of one of the beds. "I've just succeeded in getting Mrs. Underwood to sleep and I don't want to run the risk of disturbing her."

Mary had looked up from her book and was gazing at me steadily. To my surprise there was distinct hostility in her gaze.

"I suppose you also want to see that I stay in the cell," she said. "What's the big idea of hobbling me, anyway, Auntie Madge?"

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Thursday, September 11

A day of rather routine or humdrum activities may be presaged on the fairly uninteresting aspects of the major planets. Much depends upon the initiative and creative ability applied to current events or the affairs in hand.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of peculiar interest and experiences, with the practical and constructive set aside for the singular, visionary, eccentric and introspective. Private interests may transcend all worldly matters in claiming the attention.

A child born on this day may have an unusual or peculiar disposition, turning to the advanced and higher aims and aspirations rather than material ambitions. It may lean toward humanitarian or cultural occupations and interests.

CORRECT MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

The Escort's Privilege

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. When a girl invites a boy to an outing and they travel by street car, who should pay the fare going and coming — the girl or the boy?

2. I would like to know if this paper is good enough to use to write letters to friends and also business letters?

PAT G.

1. The boy. In this case he would be very much embarrased, I am sure, if the girl even suggested that she pay such a small amount.

2. No. We should never use ruled paper. Buy some plain, unruled, double-sheeted letter paper, of the conventional kind, white cream or ivory, and of a generous size, since your handwriting is not especially small.

Festivities Honoring the Bride

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please let me know ways of entertaining for a bride-to-be other than at cards?

M. T.

The simplest way of entertaining for a bride-to-be—and often the most delightful—is to give her a tea, inviting your friends and hers. Or a luncheon, or a dinner, or a supper-party. Or a luncheon and theater party, or a theater party followed by a buffet supper party.

Wearing Hats at the Bridge Luncheon

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Should the guests at a bridge luncheon wear hats if the hostess does not, or should the hostess wear one?

READER.

The guests at a bridge luncheon should wear hats, and the hostess, to be strictly correct, also wears her hat.

Household Hints

Blanket Days

These sunlit summer days invite one to a blanket washing bee. It is a good time to take out all the "extras" and clean them to have in readiness for the first chill nights of autumn. For, whether we will or no, good old summertime will not last forever. A good way to make the blankets fluffy is to let them dry thoroughly, then beat them—not too energetically—with a carpet beater. A sight of the blankets then will inspire sweet dreams on a downy couch.

Body Builders

You may not be fond of stooping, housewife, but it is an excellent exercise and if you can remember to pick up things without bending the knees, just bending from the waist, you have done a splendid reducing exercise each time you tried it.

And It Doesn't Hurt

If you should smash your finger-nail badly, hold the hand up for at least an hour so that the blood drains out of the finger. This will prevent the blood from congealing at the smashed place and cause an ugly discoloration of the nail.

TELL IT TO SALLY

—By SALLY MARTIN—

Do You Believe in Working Wives or Must Wifey Stay Home?

Do you believe in working wives?

Elnora doesn't!

Yes, she has heard all the regular arguments—about how John and Mary can't marry unless Mary does work—and how little work there is to do in a modern apartment and it's really better for Mary to work because it keeps her out of mischief—

All these arguments Elnora has heard, and she doesn't agree with a word of them. She still maintains that working wives are a bad bet for America—and responsible for most of our social hangnails, such as divorce, unemployment, lazy husbands, youthful criminals and heck in general.

It's a great letter. Read it and put it up to the gang and let's hear the results.

DEAR SALLY:

I wonder if you'd be interested in hearing a single girl's ideas on this "working wives" question. Anyway, I'm going to say my say, and get it off my chest.

I agree with the people who say that no married woman should be allowed to work outside her home. And I have a lot of friends who also agree with them.

If you were working in an office, as I am, and saw the way the young married women act, I think you would agree with us that they ought to be kept at home where they belong, taking care of their housework and their children, if they have any. If you could just see them, you'd soon see who's right.

Do you think it is right for young married women to chase around with the boss? I don't. But I know a lot of them who do it. If they were home, having children and training them correctly, they'd be too busy for such foolishness.

And I can give you plenty of other reasons why married women should stay at home. So many in fact that you would hardly have space for them in your column. Here are just a few:

In the first place, can you see any benefit to anybody when a married woman works and has to spend at least half of her wages for clothes? And when she spends the rest for swell dinners downtown because she is too lazy to go home and cook? I can't. And it isn't fair, anyway. They always have more money to spend, when both they and their husbands are working, and can afford to live in nicer places than we poor single girls. And half the time we are without jobs because they butt in and take them right out from under our noses.

No wonder we have "crime waves" when such conditions are allowed to exist. Why wouldn't men go in for crime, when women push them out of the way of making a decent living? That's one reason for crime. Another is neglect of children by married women who are so greedy for money that they leave them at home to look out for themselves while they work downtown all day.

And I think working wives are responsible for a lot of our terrible flood of divorces too. What man can stand living in a "home" that is just thrown together, and to eat food that is scraped out of cans, for long? If you look around, you'll notice that when one of these so-called "50-50" marriages ends up in divorce, the man invariably picks a nice home keeping woman . . . if he has courage enough left to give marriage a second try.

And, even if the marriage doesn't end in divorce from that cause, there are others. One of them is the effect that a working wife has on the man's manhood. The average man hates and resents having his wife help at his job of supporting the family. He can't stand having the responsibility taken away from him. In time he begins to break under it. And first thing the woman knows, he's loafing—at her expense. Letting her do it all, since she would be so independent and so smart. And then you have another broken home.

I can tell you right now, there'll never be one of these "working wife" marriages for me. I think that all girls should refuse to get married until they know that their husbands-to-be can support them so they can stay at home, where they belong.

I hope you will print this. I want some of my married friends to see it. ELNORA.

Well, what about it, Mississ O'Grady—Mister Pluger? Do you agree with Elnora—or don't you?

Is it better to put off marriage, perhaps through long, lonely years, while John Henry collects his roll?

Or is it better to join hands and work together?

Are working wives responsible for low wages and unemployment?

And what is best for the homes of America?

Early marriages and working wives?

Or late marriages and stay-at-home wives?

What do you think?

How to Keep Well

—By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND—

Good Nature 'Flies' When Your Feet Hurt

Not long ago I had a letter from a doctor who is much distressed over the failure of the public to appreciate the dangers of poorly fitting shoes. He goes so far as to say that the making of shoes ought to be under governmental supervision. The evils produced by wrong shoes are just as great, he says, as the evils perpetrated by unlicensed doctors.

DR COPELAND

There is a lot of truth in this extreme view. If our poor feet were given better care, we would be better men and women.

The welfare and usefulness of the individual depends to a very considerable degree upon the feet. Comfort, good nature and real efficiency may be ruined if the feet hurt.

On each of these very rare occasions when I have come in contact with a cross and irritable clerk, I have wondered if her feet hurt. Poor thing, she can't be agreeable if they do.

Once in a great while somebody will look at your feet. Little thought will be provoked by such glances if your shoes are neat and clean. Your feet may be small or particularly well formed, but nobody gives a second's consideration to such matters.

How we poor mortals flatter ourselves. Our clothes, their make and material, the shape of our ears, the size of our noses, our thinness or fatness, and the shoes we wear—we imagine all these are studied and commented upon by those we meet. If the truth were known we should be humiliated by the indifference of the public. The fact is, our neighbors are little interested in the details of our getup. They like us or they don't, not for our looks or our feet, but for what we are, and particularly for the vitality we possess.

What we know as "personality" is largely the sum total of vigor, energy, enthusiasm, sparkling eyes, rosy cheeks, springing step, hearty handclasp and bubbling over goodnature. All these are signs of unfailing health and make up what is ordinarily called "personality," or "It."

You can't be good-natured, you can't smile, your eyes won't sparkle if your feet hurt. Aching feet will ruin the appetite and impair digestion.

Any kind of pain is disconcerting and undermines the health. It is bad enough when you cannot find its cause, but it is foolishness indeed if you know your pain is caused by shoes, too tight and wrongly shaped.

Wear comfortable shoes and have better health as a result. With better health add to your personality.

Are you getting old before your time?

If so, this good tonic will help you regain your red-blood-cells. You should know how very important this is to your health and happiness.

When your red-blood-cells are only 80% you are not yourself—60% is dangerous

TIME is precious when your health is slipping away from you!

Failure to take notice of Nature's distress signals inevitably leads to more serious trouble. That tired feeling, loss of appetite, loss of weight, paleness, pimples, boils, and perhaps nervousness, are but symptoms due to diminishing red-blood-cells.

If your vitality is slipping away from you S.S.S. should be your safeguard. Its successful record of over 100 years in building red-cells in the blood is a guarantee of satisfaction.

Take S.S.S. before meals. Millions of people have found this the easiest and surest way to keep themselves "fit." S.S.S. will help Nature build up and enrich your blood. Your skin will clear up! Your whole body will be strengthened, invigorated!

Health restored

Mrs. Florence Allen, Detroit, Mich., writes: "S.S.S. improved my appetite and restored my lost weight. I think it wonderful. My greatest surprise was that there could be anything which could make me feel and look so much better in so short a time. Work is now a pleasure."

How to recognize a low blood count

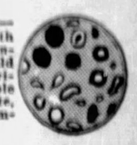
Blood is life! You cannot count your own red-blood-cells—that is technical! But you should know that they are the "ships" that sail in the blood and carry nourishment to all parts of the body. Also, they remove impurities from the tissues.

You do know they are vital to health. If the tendency is downward and continues, a much lowered count becomes dangerous and ANEMIA usually results.

You can recognize a lowered count by the way you look and feel—such as body weakness, lack of appetite, underweight, paleness, sallow complexion, boils and pimples. They may indicate that you need S.S.S.

S.S.S.—the great blood Tonic—stimulates the blood-building organs to supply the necessary red-cells. Your skin clears up, your appetite is restored, your body is strengthened, invigorated—you feel and look like yourself again!

(Left) Microscopic view of healthy red-blood-cells. The blood stream should contain about 5,000,000 of these cells to the cubic millimeter. They carry nourishment and oxygen to every part of the body. Also, they remove impurities from the tissues.



(Right) Anemic red-blood-cells—only 60 per cent of normal strength—they lack the power to resist infection and disease or to rebuild flesh and to carry away the impurities. Such a condition is responsible for body weakness, loss of appetite, underweight, paleness, sallow complexion, boils and pimples.

Everyone is planning to have at least two or three of the new tailored tweeds or jerseys or light woolens. And what shoes? Behold these shoes! The perforated calf oxford with the higher Cuban heel. The calf step-in with perforations—and higher Cuban heel. Both of these are almost as light weight as kid. Suede and calf combined in a new opera pump. And a suede strap with silk kid and reptile trimming. The heels—all perfect for the street dress. Colors—brown and black. Price—exactly right! And these are but four of more than 100 Adoria styles.

Squires Told to 'Keep Skirts Clean'

SIDE WALKS of PITTSBURGH

by WILLIAM PFARR

Things just happen, as Topsy or Senator Borah said. Somebody from Harrisburg writes in that we are cheap and biased because we suggested that Smith Ballew's band played better music than Vallee's. A woman who collects bills called up for the address of a man we mentioned in the paper. Mr. Bradford, of the telephone company, wants to know where it was that we had to put two nickels in the 'phone. And the other day in an East End bus we saw a sober man who had been reading the paper suddenly turn to a woman across the aisle and ask, "Pardon me, ma'am, but how many quarts in a gallon?" The lady said there were four.

And in Cleveland last week Inspector Charles Faulkner, the North Side policeman, stepped aside from the crowd moving into the arena for the Freeman - Thompson fight. Cautiously he removed his wallet from one pocket, placed it carefully in an upper vest pocket and then locked the pocket with a safety pin. He rejoined the milling throng.

It has not been told that soon after Irene Schroeder was convicted of murder the authorities took her son, Donnie, who is 4 years and six months old, to the school at Morganza for mental examination. They put Donnie through the tests and were surprised to discover that he owned the intelligence of a six-year-old.

Jack (Fuzzie) Miller, of Soho, is, as his stationery tells, the writer of lyrics and inventor of new titles, new ideas, songs, poems. He has written 50 songs and he showed us several. One of these titled, by himself, "My Yo Yo," but our favorite was the Tom Thumb song which, you should note, is surg to the tune of "My Yo Yo." The words to the Tom Thumb song have not yet been published, so we take this opportunity to reveal them for the first time:

"Uncle Sam" has got the "golfing" craze
Every Yankee "Tom Thumbs" nowadays
Other Nations far across the sea
Will soon be "Tom-My Thumbing" you'll agree
Vacant lots are dis-appearing fast
Empty lots will soon be things of past
Get ready all hey! hey!
For Yankee "Tom-Thumb" day

We'll want a champion of our U. S. A.

CHORUS

Every place I go, I want you all to know
Our boys and girls are playing "Tom Thumb" yes "Tom Thumb"
It's that front yard game from "Tennessee" gained fame
All our grown ups now play "Tom Thumb," "Tom Thumb".
You take the little ball and place it on the ground
Then hit away from you soon, for a hole it's bound
Every place I go, I want you all to know
Our boys and girls are playing "Tom Thumb" yes "Tom Thumb."

Maine holds the first election every year. They hold it for the reason there is an old saying, "As goes Maine, so goes the nation." Well, they held it a couple of days ago and nobody has been interested enough in it to ask how it went. Nobody voted, only the candidates that were running. People aren't any more interested in politics than they are in long underwear. Both sides have lied to 'em so often that we don't look on either candidate with admiration or with hate. We just pity 'em.

MISS BLANCHE CARRIER

WOMAN TO HEAD UNIT AT PITT

Miss Blanche Carrier, last season an instructor in the department of religious education at the University of Pittsburgh, has been named acting head of the department, it was announced today. She succeeds Dr. T. M. McKibben, who resigned to accept a position at Northwestern University, Chicago.

Aside from her administrative duties, Miss Carrier will conduct two classes in the Downtown division on Tuesday nights throughout the semester, and two Saturday mornings on the campus.

A native of Dayton, O., Miss Carrier received her B. A. degree at Boston University and her Master's degree at Pitt. She has done newspaper work and is the author of a book, "How Shall I Learn to Teach Religion," just off the Harpers press.

Former Benwood Police Chief Dies

George E. Kessler, former police chief at Benwood, W. Va., died in the United States Veterans' Hospital at Aspinwall yesterday. He was a victim of tuberculosis, contracted during the World War, and had been at the hospital for several months, it was said.

Kessler was well known in the Wheeling district, having served as a Benwood councilman, as well as the head of the police department there.

Man Killed in Fall From Freight Car

A 10-foot fall from a freight car at the Nutall works of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, Harrison street, proved fatal to John Letterle, 60, of Mt. Royal boulevard, Shaler Township, yesterday, according to the coroner's report. He died in St. Margaret's Hospital several hours later. The victim was employed as a carpenter.

PARK URGES PURGING OF OFFICE

Prosecutor Declares Minor Judiciary Slow to Ban Offenders; Talks at Dinner

Aldermen and justices of the peace "are too slow to push out of office the very few who abuse their powers and reflect ill on the majority."

Andrew T. Park, district attorney, made this criticism at the annual dinner of the Aldermen and Justices of the Peace Association last night in the William Penn Hotel. Squire A. W. McMillen, of Carnegie, presided.

Park said:

"I am a member of the Bar Association and as such, I hear sometimes of a lawyer pulling a crooked deal. I say, 'I don't want to get mixed up in that,' and accordingly, allow myself and other attorneys to suffer from the abuses of one with whom we have no connection, other than as members of the same profession. My criticism of the Bar Association is the slowness with which it makes its skirts clean.

"And if I have any criticism at all with the justices of the peace and aldermen, it is this same one. The group is too slow in keeping its skirts clean—in cleaning out the few—the very few members of their body who offend against their office."

OFFERS SERVICES

Park offered the use of his office and staff in the prosecution of their problems, and promised to call on them for assistance when he needed it.

County Controller Robert S. Woodside pointed out that, one of the purposes of the squires' organization being to keep it clear of those who offend, it should let the people know this is being done. Clerk of Courts S. J. Topley urged the group to promote legislation to get an assistant district attorney in charge of automobile violation appeals. He said:

"Nine out of 10 who take appeals for violation of the automobile laws get out in county court, because the defendant generally has half a dozen witnesses and the prosecution generally only one—the arresting officer."

URGE COMPACT GROUP

Topley urged that they develop and maintain a compact organization, for the protection of the minor courts, as did Sheriff Robert Cain.

Henry S. Moser, state chairman of the association, discussed contemplated legislation in Harrisburg. Plans for proposed changes in the automobile code were announced by Secretary Sol Goldstein.

The association will also urge that changes be made in the number of squires for boroughs and townships, limiting each unit to one justice of the peace, Goldstein said.

Plans to extend the body beyond the limits of Allegheny County into other parts of Western Pennsylvania, were advanced by representatives from nearby districts. Those attending were E. L. Peffer, of Butler; W. A. Wehr, Rochester; John T. Young, Elwood City; George Andrews, Enon Valley; Earl Nevin, Zelienople; Albert Erdelyi, Donora, and Julius Stauer, of Ford City.

Patrolman Fined On Woman's Charge

Traffic Patrolman Norman Gilfoyle and G. C. Bliss, carnival concessionaire, of Oklahoma, were fined $50 each with the alternative of serving 30 days in the workhouse on a serious charge by Magistrate T. D. Jones, in Morals Court today.

Jones declared that he imposed the fines in lieu of holding the two for court, only because police failed to produce the principal witness, a woman who had complained she had been attacked in the Hotel Henry Monday night.

Among the guests of honor will be Col. Oscar Taylor and past department commanders, Capt. Robert S. Cain, Gilbert C. Cloonan and William Best, all of Pittsburgh.

Autoist Must Pay Youth $250 for Loss of Leg

Michael DeVincenzo, 13, newsboy, of 547 McMasters avenue, Turtle Creek, is to be compensated $250 for the loss of his right leg above the knee.

David Russel, 45, of Brown avenue extension, Turtle Creek, will pay the money and be paroled for one year, following his conviction of felonious assault and battery, in Criminal Court.

The boy testified that when he saw Russell's automobile coming down a hill, apparently out of control, March 12, he dodged behind a telephone pole. The car crashed into the pole and sheared it off. The boy's leg had to be amputated. Russell testified that his brakes failed to hold.

Judge Sylvester J. Snee, before whom the case was tried, questioned Russel as to his ability to compensate the lad, and found he was without funds and carried no liability insurance. Thereupon he ordered him to pay the costs and $250 and paroled him.

$250,000 ALL-MASONRY CARMELITE MONASTERY CHARLES M. SCHWAB, HIS WIFE AND MOTHER DONATED TO NUNS' ORDER

WILL DEDICATE MONASTERY

The new monastery for the Carmelite nuns, picturesquely cresting a gentle hill near Loretto, Pa., will be officially dedicated September 21.

A gift of Charles M. Schwab, the steel king; his wife and his mother, the new structure is nearing completion. Costing more than $250,000, it will accommodate 24 nuns of the order and is dedicated to St. Therese, also named "The Little Flower."

Mother Prioress Marie is head of the institution, and Sister Cecelia, a sister of Mr. Schwab, is a member of the order. Mother Marie comes from Lisieux, the town where St. Therese was a nun.

The structure, of French Norman Gothic, provides cloister, two chapels, one for visitors, and 24 cells for the members of the order—in all, 116 rooms.

Cathie's Choice of Guest Disturbs Husband

CHAPTER XV.

If Miss Darrow was surprised to find Mrs. Farnsworth calling her on the telephone, she gave no sign of it. Her voice sounded as cool and assured as ever.

"I was wondering if you'd care to come out to lunch?" Cathie was asking a little shyly.

"Today?"

"If you could. I mean if you could get away."

Miss Darrow laughed. Her old, tinny, contemptuous laugh. "I don't know why not. How shall I get out there?"

"How shall you . . ." Cathie was stumped. Evidently Miss Darrow didn't expect to come out on the street car. It would probably take 'oo long, anyway.

"I'll send the car for you," she said breathlessly, and hung up, a little frightened at her own temerity. Still, it was her car, Everett was being paid to drive her anywhere she wanted to go.

She gave him the order, sent word to Cheong that there would be a guest for lunch. Then she hurried upstairs to dress, pleasurably thrilled at the novelty of company coming.

Complimented
Visitor Speaks Well of Her Appearance

Marguerite, the maid, was just finishing with the upstairs work. She leaned on a broom, and watched with curious red-brown eyes while Cathie slipped out of her neat sweater and skirt, and began a search for a dark red flat crepe.

"Going out?"

"No, having company."

Marguerite put down her broom and sighed. Then she came over and helped Cathie into the red dress, arranged the soft waves of her bright hair, found the carnelian beads, and tucked a matching sport handkerchief into the pocket.

It was queer that anyone as careless as Marguerite could give such meticulous attention to detail. She herself always gave the effect of slovenliness, though her blue chambray uniform was clean, and her white apron spotless. But not even a starched uniform could destroy the general effect of limpness and though her hair had been freshly brushed and coiled on top of her head there was always a wisp or two hanging down behind her ears, or at the back of her neck. Still she was a perfect maid, and Cathie knew that she had never looked so well as she had since Marguerite decided to serve her.

Miss Darrow took in the details of Cathie's changed appearance with a little start.

"Well, it's wonderful to have money! You look charming! I always told the girls you'd be real pretty if you had the right clothes!"

Gordon Shocked
News of Cathie's Marriage Surprises Him

This wasn't a very happy beginning, but Cathie was in too high spirits to let it bother her long. She ushered her guest into the dining room, and laughed and talked at a great rate.

"These creamed sweetbreads are delicious," Miss Darrow said, "but I'm afraid I'm not very hungry. The morning after the night before. We were all pie-eyed last night. Did your husband tell you Gordon Moore's in town?"

Cathie's fork went clattering to the floor. A Chinese boy in an immaculate white coat deftly replaced it with another.

"By the way, he was shocked to hear that you were married."

"Shocked?" Cathie tried to sound flippant. "Are marriages shocking? Really, those wild parties that you two go in for are infinitely more exciting!" And in her heart she was crying . . . "He was shocked . . . he didn't want me to get married . . . he remembered me . . . and I never knew . . . I never knew . . ."

Alfred Objects
Doesn't Want Secretary At Home

"Oh, yes—exciting," the other girl was saying. "That's about all you can say for them. I'm sick of it. What does it mean? Nothing. Look at me, slaving at a desk, and you—" she made a sudden, angry gesture, sweeping in the whole luxurious room —"you have everything! Lucky, my God, you must have been born with a gold horseshoe in your mouth!"

"No," Cathie said, "not—not so lucky."

For a moment they looked at each other, understanding, pitying . . . anything might have happened. They might have cried in each other's arms, comforted, trusted . . . And then pride came back.

"I've never believed much in luck," said Cathie with a toss of her head.

"Well, I wouldn't say you were lucky in your step-child!" Miss Darrow covered the last trace of emotion with her nervous little laugh. "I hear he docked on the Berengaria Saturday. He and his blushing bride. That's one little ray of sunshine I don't envy you!"

Cathie said, "I've never met Chester."

"Then you have something to look forward to," Miss Darrow said indulgently. She smiled to herself as she sipped her coffee, as if she were contemplating a very, very private joke.

"Another strawberry tart?"

"No thanks. After I've been on a drinking party I never care for much the next day."

Conversation languished. At quarter to two Miss Darrow decided that she really had to go back to the office. Cathie sent for the car.

"Come have lunch with me some time!"

"Thanks for the lovely lunch. Goodbye!"

"Goodbye!"

That night, Mr. Farnsworth said: "Oh, by the way, Catherine. About my secretary. I'd just as soon you didn't cultivate her, dear."

"I had her to lunch today," Cathie said, softly.

TAKEN DOWN LADDERS BY POLICE

Victims Trapped on Upper Floor by Smoke Crawl to Safety in Night Clothing

Trapped in their bedrooms by dense smoke from a fire in the first floor of the home shortly before daybreak, eight members of the family of Robert Craig, of 6812 Frankstown avenue, were forced to seek refuge on a porch roof, from which they were rescued by police with the aid of ladders.

Mrs. Anna Craig, awakened by the smoke, roused her husband, their sons, Michael, 24; Thomas, 21; Tracey, 20; Lawrence, 15, and Paul, 14, and their niece, Anna McDonneugh, 10.

They made their way to the porch roof in their night clothing.

Fred Walters, of 6810 Frankstown avenue; Lieuts. Franz Shine and Ab Good and Patrolmen George Stokes, Alec Harris and Walter Charles aided the family down ladders while firemen extinguished the flames.

Firemen said that the fire had started in the kitchen and spread to another downstairs room, causing damage, estimated by Capt. George Muse, at $300.

Capt. Muse said that the cause of the blaze was undetermined.

SWINDLE GANG HITS LOTTERIES

A meeting of the Hill "numbers" operators and bookies was held last night for action against a group of "confidence" men conducting a private racket which has been costing the lotteries plenty during the last week.

The racket within the racket is understood to work like this:

Two men enter a pickup station and purchase 100 consecutive numbers at $2 a number. One of the men produces his money in payment, but finds he is several dollars short. He sends his confederate to the bank for additional funds, but the confederate instead enters a telephone booth where he has a connection with another confederate in New York.

He learns over the telephone the first two figures of the day's clearing house "numbers," and if they correspond with the block his confederate has played, he returns with the additional funds to complete payment. If his information does not tally with the numbers selected, he returns and says his waiting confederate is needed to indorse the check. In that event the pair depart and are seen no more.

Three alleged bookies were arrested today in the East Liberty district. Herman Friedhoff, 32, of 5712 Munhall road, admitted selling numbers and was fined $25. John Barnsdale, 39, a Negro, of 219 Carron street, an alleged pick up man, was arrested at Penn and Graham street. His companion, K. T. Miller, of 405 Wicklow street, an alleged bookie, also was arrested. They will have hearings tomorrow morning.

Dry Agents Raid Rum Cutting Plant

As a result of a raid on an alleged whisky cutting plant at 60 Brentwood road, Penn Township, J. F. Fullerton, 35, was at liberty in $1,000 bail today. The raid, staged late yesterday, yielded the agents 150 gallons of whisky, 19 quarts of gin and several gallons of rum and cognac, according to the raiders.

Trailing a truck laden with six cases of home brew, from Forbes and Van Braam streets, to South Twelfth street, the federal officers seized the vehicle and arrested the driver, who gave his name as Frank Rogers, 22, of 47 Van Braam street, it was said.

Metallurgical Engineers To Open 3-Day Meet

Metallurgical engineers from many sections of the tri-state district will attend a three-day meeting of the coal division of the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers, in the William Penn Hotel tomorrow, Friday and Saturday. This is the newest branch of the institute, having been organized with headquarters in Pittsburgh early this year. It has 1,200 of the 8,800 members of the institute.

Howard N. Eavenson, consulting mining engineer, will be chairman of the meeting. The program calls for the reading of 21 papers, discussions of various phases of the institute's activities, special inspection trips through industrial sections of the Pittsburgh district, and social gatherings.

The Camera Question Box

Today's question—Will miniature golf and other sports in which everyone may participate take the place of commercial sports, where people must be mere spectators and watch a few others play a game?

MISS ISABEL GIANNOTTI, schoolgirl, Squirrel Hill—No. I don't think they will. Almost everyone likes to watch a good football or baseball game, and this miniature golf will probably become less popular.

Miss Giannotti

EDDIE RHODES, Mt. Washington—Miniature golf is all right in its place, but it will be like all other fads — extremely popular for a time and then of no importance at all. It can't last very long.

Eddie Rhodes

MISS ANNA GLAZA, North Side—No, they won't. I think that the majority of people today would rather watch a good ball game than play miniature golf if they were forced to make a choice. Baseball is too strongly American to lose out now.

Miss Glaza

CHARLES FAULKNER, Manchester, Police Inspector—This game of miniature golf draws much from the other sports, but I think it ought to wear itself out in a year or two.

Chas. Faulkner

MRS. EDNA FELTON, housewife, North Side—No, too many people like the real sports and would rather watch a real game if they had the chance. Miniature golf has too sudden popularity to last very long.

Mrs. Felton

GARTH MEYERS, sergeant, North Side—A lot of people don't like to play in a game but get much more enjoyment out of watching someone else play. Miniature golf might replace sports for a time, but it can't last very long.

BANKERS STUDY FARM PROGRESS

Agricultural progress in Allegheny County and its possibilities were studied yesterday by more than 50 bankers in this district, on a tour of inspection to six farms.

Methods of handling fruits and produce from the orchards and gardens through to their point of sale, were studied as well as the preparation and merchandising of by-products.

The party was headed by Frank A. Glenn, of the Exchange National Bank of Pittsburgh, and chairman of the county agriculture committee of the Pennsylvania Bankers' Association, under direction of Henry R. Eby, Allegheny County Farm Bureau director.

Farms visited were the Fred Backhaus farm, Allison Park; Treesdale farms, Warrendale; John B. Cole farm, Wexford, where a chicken dinner was served; Rieck-Nettrour Dairy farm, and William Heinlein hatchery, both Coraopolis Heights, and A. J. Lageman farm, Crafton. Samples of products were distributed at each place visited.

10 Motorists Face Traffic Hearings

Ten motorists faced hearings in Traffic Court today as a sequel to a campaign against reckless driving on the Windgap road, instituted by Acting Inspector Charles Cahill.

OBITUARY

Jacob M. Friedman.

Funeral services for Jacob M. Friedman, 63, who died today at his home, 5607 Bartlett street, Squirrel Hill, will be held at the family residence tomorrow afternoon. Mr. Friedman, a real estate dealer, was actively identified with numerous philanthropic organizations. He was a founder of the Jewish Home for the Aged and the Hebrew Institute, a past officer of the Hebrew Free Burial Association, Hebrew Relief during the World War, Beth Jacob Congregation and the Home for Jewish Babies. He leaves his wife, Mrs. Rachael Friedman; three daughters, Miss Jean, Miss Irene and Miss Sarah Friedman, and three sons, Abe I., Phillip R. and O. H. Friedman. Interment will be made in Millvale Cemetery.

Kahle Funeral.

Funeral services will be held tonight for Mrs. Mary G. Kahle, of 2333 Eldridge street, who died Monday. Her body will be taken to Franklin tomorrow for burial. Mrs. Kahle was born in Franklin, September 23, 1863, and came here about 30 years ago. She was the mother of Lieut. C. C. Kahle, who was killed in the World War. She received a distinguished service cross from the government after her son's death. She was a member of the East Liberty Presbyterian Church, and is survived by a daughter, Anna Kahle.

Toole Funeral.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow morning in St. James Catholic Church for William J. Toole, 59, retired Pennsylvania Railroad engineer, who died in his home at 508 Holmes street, Wilkinsburg, yesterday. Interment will be in the Holy Sacrament Cemetery, Greensburg. He leaves a son, William J. Toole, Jr., two daughters, Elizabeth Toole and Mrs. May Cox; three brothers, and four sisters.

Schmidt Funeral.

Services will be held for Henry Schmidt, 79, of 2905 Hartman street, tomorrow, with interment in the Mt. Royal Cemetery. Mr. Schmidt was born in Germany and came here 49 years ago. He leaves four sons, and four daughters.

SHAKERS NEAR 200TH HOUR

Nearing the two-hundredth hour of continuous hand shaking, Charles Mathews and Joseph Cue, West End's marathoners, reported themselves in fine condition today and more confident than ever of reaching their 500-hour destination.

The young men, according to their managers, have been having trouble securing their beauty sleeps during the hours of the night because of visitors and witnesses, accompanied by noise and conversation. They announce their intention of getting a few winks of much needed sleep during the day, henceforth, when there will be less disturbance. Of course, only one member sleeps at a time, the other keeping on with the business of shaking.

Jailed at Wife's Request, Hangs Self in Cell

Several hours after he had been arrested on complaint of his wife, John Flanigan, 36, of 2708 Spring way, was found hanging from the top of a cell in the Penn Avenue Police Station, last night, morgue attaches reported. The prisoner, who used a belt for a noose, was taken to the West Penn Hospital, where he was pronounced dead.

Flanigan was arrested at his home on a disorderly conduct charge, police said, at the request of his wife, Elizabeth, who alleged her husband created a disturbance in the house.

YOUTH CRUSHED UNDER HORSE

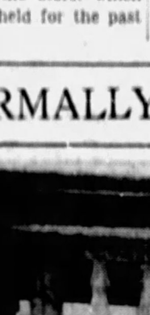
En route to school this morning, Joseph Hough, 15, of 359 Darragh street, was knocked down and trampled by a team of horses drawing a garbage wagon at Bayard street and Neville avenue.



Joseph Hough

The boy was taken to Homeopathic Hospital in an automobile, where he is suffering from a fractured thigh.

According to witnesses, the driver was forced to swerve his team into Bayard street to avoid collision with an automobile. One of the horses fell on the boy, and several persons were called to lift the horse before he was released.

why my secretary and my wife should have anything in common."

Except that your wife was a stenographer, too, Cathie thought. But she didn't say it. It wouldn't do any good. Nothing would do any good. Besides, Mr. Farnsworth had returned to the evening paper.

Cathie spent most of her days with her mother. Everett drove her there, and called for her when she was ready to come home. Sometimes he waited outside, napping comfortably at his place behind the wheel of the big, blue car. On such occasions, Mrs. Hennessy watched him patiently from behind her lace curtains, shaking her old gray head dolefully from time to time. Mrs. Paige had the best of her now. Cathie visiting so often, and taking her mother out to drive in the blue limousine . . . Her Lillian hardly ever showed herself, and then just for a five-minute call.

"Ma," Cathie asked, "can I have Jean come stay with me for a little while? She'd love it and I——"

"Indeed, you can not!" Mary Paige cried warmly. "She's got enough high falutin' ideas already without you putting any more——"

"Oh, mums! I wouldn't——"

"No, Cathie. It wouldn't be for the best."

"Ma, aren't you ever coming to visit me?"

"Sure, Cathie, a little later. But right now I've got my ir'nin' and a little dress I want to run up for Ruth and . . . Later, Cathie. Gracious goodness, child, what's the rush? Now sit quiet while I lay the cloth, and we'll have some tea."

There was a new teapot now, and no more "bites" in the pantry. "I'm company," Cathie felt, rather sadly. It wouldn't have mattered so much, except that she was also "company" in Mr. Farnsworth's house. She unearthed an old school book with "The Man Without a Country" in it and read it that night, for the first time with understanding and pity . . . Awfully hard, not to really belong anywhere, even when it's your own fault . . .

She brooded over what Miss Darrow had said about Gordon Moore. Believed, disbelieved . . . not that it made any difference. And Chester coming . . . something else to worry about. She had been expecting him for a week, nevertheless it was a shock when he did arrive.

She was in her room, dressing for dinner when she thought she heard a commotion downstairs. She went to the door and opened it, poking her anxious head into the hall.

Marguerite, a little more dishevelled than usual, came upstair on a run.

"It's him!" she whispered as she passed Cathie. "Him and his wife!"

Gloria Swanson Hostess to France; Five Others Get Trip to Famous Islands

Gloria Swanson's offer to send a Pittsburgh girl to Paris — the world's pleasure capital—the girl to be selected by the Sun-Telegraph, and the offer of this newspaper to send five additional girls to Bermuda and return, has already created a thrill of real excitement throughout Pittsburgh and Pittsburgh's environs.

Bear in mind that in both instances—Paris and Bermuda—the girls selected are to be awarded tours de luxe, everything first class, the best that money can buy, and on top of that they will be given additional money to spend.

The girl who gets the Paris trip will be sent to New York from Pittsburgh, entertained in that city a day or two, and will then sail on the French liner Paris for a week or more in that gay city. She will join a party of other girls to whom the same trips are to be given from other cities and will be chaperoned while abroad. The party will also be furnished with efficient guides so that none of the sights worth seeing will be missed. While in Paris, Miss Swanson will also give them a personal reception. All these girls will return home on the Ile de France. The trip will be made early in December.

BERMUDA TRIP

The five lucky girls who get the Bermuda trips are due for one of the most glorious vacations they ever knew because Bermuda is that little bit of heaven brought down to earth—charming scenery, balmy climate, historic buildings, the bluest blue ocean, miles of coral reefs—in fact everything that one would want for a change from Pittsburgh.

Scores of girls in the reading area of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph have already sent in their nomination blanks. Of course, they all want the Gloria Swanson trip to Paris. Incidentally Miss Swanson is giving these tours on account of her new picture, "What a Widow!" which has a Paris background and which comes to Loew's Penn Theater later this month.

For the purpose of a fair distribution in the award of these free de luxe trips, the classes of workers to whom the awards will eventually be made have been divided into five groups. There is to be one girl more fortunate than all the others in these five groups. She will get the Gloria Swanson trip to Paris. The trips to Bermuda, however, will be awarded so that one trip, all expenses paid, will be awarded to each group. This means that when the winning candidate for the Paris trip is announced, another girl in the same group will also be given a trip to Bermuda.

GROUPS CLASSIFIED

The groups have been arranged as follows:

FREE OFFICERS OF ATTACK

Two McKeesport policemen, Lieut. James H. Gray and Patrolman John C. Rosepiler, have been acquitted in Criminal Court of a charge of felonious assault and battery preferred by Steve Marton, 309 Arctic avenue, McKeesport, who testified the policemen beat him so badly with their maces that his jaw was broken and his eye injured.

Marton said he was standing in front of a store he had formerly owned when he was set upon by the policemen. Under cross examination, he admitted that he formerly had been fined for selling liquor at the store. The policemen testified that Marton was drunk and fighting with other men at the time. They said they used only ordinary force in subduing him. The case was tried before Judge Samuel H. Gardner.

U. S. BAND HERE TOMORROW

When the United States Marine band arrives in Pittsburgh at noon tomorrow for its double program in Syria Mosque, it will be met at Pennsylvania station by Sergt. David S. Lentz, in charge of Marine Corps recruiting here. Lentz, with other Marine officers, will escort members of the band to the Mosque.

The band comes to Pittsburgh under auspices of the Rotary Club. Proceeds of the concerts will be given to the care of crippled children of the Boys' Club.

More than 1,000 children are expected to attend the concert at 4 p. m., tickets at 25 cents each having been distributed to all schools of the city.

THREE ACCUSED OF 'GAS' THEFT

Caught, police say, stealing gasoline from the auto of Patrolman Martin McIntyre, parked in front of his home at 3495 Denny street today, three Lawrenceville youths were arrested.

They are Edward Kuzniski, 28, 3714 Penn avenue; George Dadas, 23, of 2833 Mulberry way, and Joseph Shanko, 18, of 192 Thirty-fourth street. Patrolman Ray Adams said he came upon them as they were syphoning the gas from McIntyre's car into their own.

Police are holding them until they check the ownership of their automobile, which bore Illinois license plates. Dadas said he came here last week from Chicago, and that he owns the machine.

Two owners of properties taken for the construction of the Ohio River boulevard claimed damages greatly in excess of awards by boards of viewers in appeals filed in Common Pleas Court.

The Chatham Land Company asked $60,000 damages instead of $20,000 allowed by viewers against the City of Pittsburgh for property on Fenway street, Twenty-seventh Ward. James Greenough, Jr., asked $30,000 instead of $600 awarded by viewers against Bellevue borough for his property taken for the boulevard and bridge approach in Bellevue.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Miss Jamison Married in Church

Instead of bridal summer, I have but to change one word, and say bridal fall, now that weddings will soon be as numerous as the roses of June, though now I shall say, instead, as numerous as the rain-bow leaves drifting down upon us everywhere. A wedding of interest to Pittsburgh folks is taking place this very afternoon in Greensburg.

At 5 30 o'clock this afternoon in the Greensburg Christ Episcopal Church Hetty Barclay Jamison, daughter of the John M. Jamisons of East Gate Greensburg, is becoming the bride of Paul Ewer son of the William F. Ewers of Jeannette with the Rev. Dr. W. F. Shero officiating.

The bride is wearing a gown of white satin with V-shaped inserts of lace in the front and back with a long train of the satin and a veil of white tulle. She is carrying a bouquet of sweetheart roses and lilies of the valley.

Rebecca Fogg cousin of the bride, is the maid of honor and Mrs. Ramon Williams, of New York, the matron of honor. The bridesmaids include Mrs. Henry L. O'Brien, of New York, Mrs. Joseph B. Fogg, Mrs. Frederick Humphrey Elizabeth Bovard, all of Greensburg and the little flower girl is Caroline Cote, niece of the bride.

They are all wearing chiffon frocks in princess mode with full skirts, shading from pale yellow to peach and gold with hats of brown velvet. And they are carrying autumn flowers.

Robert Ewer, brother of the bridegroom, is the best man and the ushers include John Barclay, Jr., John A. Robertshaw of Greensburg and Louis R. Schmertz, Jr., of Pittsburgh, John Westerfield of Montclair, N. J., Edward Semans of Philadelphia and Donald Griffin, of Lock Haven, Conn.

After a reception in the Jamison home the youthful Ewers will sail for Europe and plan to return the latter part of October.

There'll not be quite enough prizes for everybody at the Pittsburgh Hunt horse show which will open Friday at 1:30 o'clock and again on Saturday at 1:30 o'clock in the ring on the Kittanning road near Sharpsburg, but there will be 27 cups and trophies of various kinds.

Show Prizes

Among those who've donated prizes are Marguerite and Marie McCahill, George H. Cherrington, George Paull, the Gordon Coltart Kings, Thomas Moreland, Mrs. Houghton Phillips, W. Barry Hamilton, David I. McCahill, Jr., the Clarence H. Osbornes, Richard King Mellon, Edgar J. Kaufmann, Charles L. Flaccus, Jr., the George I. McCooks, J. Raymond Price, A. J. Diebold, Mrs. Simon T. Patterson, George H. Cherrington, Jr., the E. C. Bothwells, J. G. Stetz, the John W. Lawrences, Dr. and Mrs. Edward J. McCague, Dr. and Mrs. Ralph Lynch, the William G. Coulins, Miss Margaret Coulter and the David I. McCahills.

Children are going to have an important place in the show. Mrs. Frances Burke Rodgers has entered a pony, Scotty, for her nephew, James Francis Burke, II. And Mary D. Hays and her brother, J. Crossan Hays, Jr., have entered three horses, Clytie, Dan and Too Late. Other children who'll ride in the show include George H. Cherrington, Jr., and Jane Flaccus.

Now I want to tell you about another wedding date. Kathleen Monteith Scarth, daughter of the William Henry Scarths, of Banff, Alberta, Canada, has decided upon Wednesday, September 17, as the date for her marriage.

Wedding Dates

to Charles L. Wooldridge, Jr., son of the Charles L. Wooldridges, of St. James street. The ceremony will take place at noon in the home of the bride-elect's uncle and aunt, the Walter Shillinglaws, of Brandon, Manitoba, Canada. A reception and wedding breakfast will follow.

Irene Scarth will be her sister's only attendant, and Harold J. Scarth, brother of the bride-elect, will be best man. After a wedding trip Mr. Wooldridge and his bride will be at home in Crafton.

The Wooldridges and their daughter Frances will leave soon for Canada to attend the wedding.

Dorothea Cate daughter of the Edgar R. Cates, of De Victor place, has named Saturday, October 11, as the date for her marriage to Andrew Meserve Rankin, son of the Walter Poland Rankins, of Boston, Mass. The ceremony will take place in the First Unitarian Church at 7:30 o'clock in the evening.

Ruth Elizabeth Reynders, daughter of the A. B. Reynderses, of Springfield, Mass., formerly of Pittsburgh, has named the same day, October 11, as the time for her marriage to W. Francis Mathias, son of the H. N. Mathiases, of Edgewood, to take place in the Methodist Church in Springfield.

Last evening at 8 o'clock Miss Thelma V. Kadel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred G. Kadel, of Sampson avenue, Ingram, became the bride of David T. Jones, son of Mrs. Sarah J. Jones, of Mt. Washington. The ceremony took place in the First Presbyterian Church of Ingram, with the Rev. C. C. Cribbs, pastor, officiating.

Miss Mary B. Speer was the maid of honor, and Miss Sarah and Miss Betty Jones, sisters of the bridegroom, were the bridesmaids. Richard L. Jones was the best man and the ushers included Prosser E. Speer, Raymond Kadel, George E. Kelly and Edward R. Pool. Henry Diers played the wedding march.

The bride wore a gown of pale pink chiffon and her bridesmaids wore chiffon frocks in pale orchid, the maid of honor, poudre blue chiffon. After the ceremony a reception was held in the home of the bride, after which Mr. and Mrs. Jones left for an eastern trip.

Junior Club Opens Year Monday

Book reviews are to be prominently featured this this season by the Junior Section, Woman's Club of Wilkinsburg, according to the new year books. Monday night will see the beginning of the season for this group, the members of which will be guests of Mrs. J. R. Wylie, Jr., at her home in Marion avenue. Mrs. C. C. Taylor, chairman of work for the blind in the State Federation, will address the girls on "Sightless Seeing." The month's book review will be by Miss Elizabeth Hamilton.

Two talks of interest are scheduled for the October meeting, the first a discussion of "Oriental Rugs," by H. B. Yardum, and the second a presentation of "The Art and History of Silhouette Making," by Mrs. R. L. Carl. Mrs. Richard Earle will give the book review, and almost every meeting thereafter will have a review as a regular feature.

A travel talk concerning India will be given by Mrs. C. E. Skinner in November, a Christmas musicale will feature December's session and the new year will introduce to the club William Morrell, university editor, University of Pittsburgh, who is to talk on "What Is News?" A program in honor of the senior club will be given the following month and a fashion show through the courtesy of the Wilkinsburg merchants will take place in March. April's event is a talk on "Dental Hygiene," by Mrs. Erda M. Erdman, and May's a talk on "Poetry in the Home," by Mrs. J. Charles Wilson.

In addition to the regular monthly sessions, the Town Club will have a series of monthly benefit card parties this year and the usual monthly sewings on second Tuesdays at the homes of the members. The card parties are also to be held in the homes, the dates being the first Saturday afternoon of each month. The president's day tea at Mrs. Samuel E. Diescher's home September 30 will be followed October 21 by a talk from Florence Fisher Parry, Pittsburgh columnist. A visit to the international art exhibit and a Christmas party comes next and then an afternoon of play reviews and current events, another of book reviews and current events, then a March day of Irish folk lore, the annual meeting in April, the annual luncheon for the blind in May, and the club's own luncheon to round out the year in June. Of course there will be the usual rose day, the date for which is not yet set.

Town Club

Mrs. O. B. Hughes, president of Allegheny County Parent-Teacher Association, will address the season's initial meeting of the Morningside Association tomorrow evening. Mrs. Hughes, who is to talk concerning the national convention held in Denver, will also install the Morningside's new officers. J. Foster Gehrett, principal of the school, and his staff will be present to welcome the guests, and Mrs. W. J. Donaldson and her hospitality committee will serve refreshments.

* * *

Child welfare problems in Allegheny County, a study of which the Pittsburgh Federation of Social Agencies completed last April, will be made the subject of a talk tomorrow over KDKA by Miss Henrietta Lund, assistant secretary of the Federation and director of the Social Service Exchange. Miss Lund speaks during the State Federation period at 1:30 o'clock.

Talks on Survey

Next week at the same hour Mrs. Charles E. Gilchrist, southwestern district chairman of Americanization in the State Federation, will speak concerning the activities of the clubwomen in Americanization work.

Miss Marie Ruffing will tell of "Rambling Through Europe" at the meeting of the Emsworth Parent-Teacher Association Friday afternoon. The program will also include piano numbers by Miss Lydia Mensemer.

TWEEDS BELIE STURDINESS BY SKILLFUL TREATMENT

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph

PARIS, Sept. 10.—Rough but ready for all daytime activities regardless of the elements is the new tweed that is being much used for daytime coats that are desirous of belying their sturdiness by a nice show of immaculate tailoring and clever detail. Such coats are especially useful the quite late in autumn one does not wish to speed the winter by wearing one's winter coat.

And so on these coats of rough tweed we find all sorts of smart details, such as small capes, cleverly-placed pockets, intricate sleeves and smartly placed fur trimmings, so unobtrusively applied that the essential simplicity of the coat is emphasized rather than destroyed. And that is no mean achievement.

THE PERIOD or picturesque evening frock is making frequent appearances these days, or rather, nights. It can be beautifully worn by the young slim woman whose personality is best expressed by clothes that are decidedly different from current fashions and yet not too eccentric to fit into the picture created by the obtaining mode. Certain couturiers, such as Molyneux have had tremendous success with this type of frock, and are still rich with ideas expressive of the picturesque and romantic that are essentially beautiful. These frocks will never become common or commonplace for they are but rarely demanded except by the exceptional dresser, who insists that her clothes be different.

THE TWO SKETCHES shown today surely run the sartorial gamut expressing as they do the severely practical and the delicately diaphanous frock of picturesque design. The coat, which is by Champcommunal is of rough tweed in red, black and white, trimmed with astrakan. The snug-fitting cape rounds closely over the shoulders. The coat itself is close-fitting at the bodice and waistline but flares at either side of the skirt. The V-shaped pockets are stitched at the sides between applied bands, and the cape, in back, joins a vertical, stitched band which runs down to the hemline along the center of the coat.

THE PRETTY evening frock is by Molyneux. It is of black mousseline de soie. The bodice is draped cowl-fashion at both front and back, and the full, triple-tiered skirt is most intricately shirred in scallops and swirls, and is very full at the lower edge. The ribbon belt ties in a loosely hanging bow at the left side.

Relates History

How the Woman's Club of Library came into being was told yesterday at the annual president's day observance in the Congress of Clubs. Miss Ora Bell Bryant, a past president, related how 13 women, dissatisfied with no greater demands on their mentality than those made by the little fancy work club to which they belonged, decided to establish a literary club, which was done in 1917. Nine of the 13 still belong to the organization and singularly, the members are all so geographically located that they rarely see each other except at club meetings.

Miss Retta Rainey, the re-elected president, addressed the gathering. Mrs. Emmet R. Davis told of early club life in Pittsburgh and the new year books were distributed by Mrs. Elmer S McIlvaine. Music for the afternoon consisted of a duet by Mrs. Claude Hardesty and Mrs. Edward B. Laughlin and contralto solos sung with dramatic effect by Margaret Cunningham Leyda with Miss Marion McVicker at the piano. Mrs. C. R. New was accompanist for the duet.

Presidents and representatives of several other clubs were present, including Mrs. J. G. Chalfant, chairman in the State Federation, and Mrs. H. D. Stark, a director in the Congress of Clubs.

ANNUAL FALL SELLING
ORIENTAL RUGS
THE ENTIRE STOCK

STARTING at store opening tomorrow—a sweeping department-wide sale that brings rare and beautiful rugs to you at prices that would have been termed "impossible" even a few short months ago. An annual event—this one far outstrips previous occasions for the regular prices are well below those for many years past—20% is abruptly cut from all of them—and many special groups bear a much heavier mark-down.

Recent purchases augment the already remarkable and comprehensive collection—and in appreciation of the demand for old type antiques and semi-antique reproductions, a splendid assortment of these types is included.

$225 to $250 Oriental Rugs
$157.50

A great group in the popular 9x12 foot size—rugs far superior to your highest expectations at such a price—Serapi, Teziak, unwashed Gorevans and others of well recognized weaves in this sweeping September Sale at $157.50.

Real 9x12 Persian Sarouks—$495

The finest quality—Sarouk Rugs that are worthy of that proud name—fitting, not cheapened, representatives. Full, generous 9x12-foot size — glorious sheen, rich colorings, luxuriant deep pile. Special $495.

$65 to $80 Hall Runners
$39

Perhaps the greatest single value in the sale—a substantial lot of truly beautiful rugs—antique, semi-antique and modern—many different weaves—about 3 feet wide and 10 to 13 feet long. About half price at $39.00.

$145 Ghiordes Rugs
$95

Regularly $145 and more—real Ghiordes rugs that could not be sold at anywhere near the price if they had not come in before the new tariff was effective. Full 9x12-foot room size—rugs of rich coloring and designs—$95.00.

Anatolian Mats
$1.75

Neat, smart little mats that will well adorn a table or spot on the floor. Ends and sides finished. Absurdly low priced—$1.75.

Small $27.50 Mossouls
$19.50

Good sized throw or hearth rugs—beautiful colorings and patterns, in sizes averaging 3½x5½ feet. Sale special—$19.50.

$6.95 Imported Transparent Velvet
$4.95

Lusciously soft, beautiful imported velvet—last year you would have had to pay $6.95 for it. Suitable for wraps, evening dresses and afternoon frocks. 39 inches wide, in red, brown, green, blue, pastels and black and white.

$5.95 Chiffon Velvet
$3.95

Everyone knows the quality of Cheney velvets. This is all silk chiffon velvet, $5.95 quality—now at $3.95. 39 inches wide — in seventeen light, medium and darker shades, including black and white.

You can have a velvet dress made in the new Popular Priced Dressmaking Department for $18 to $25.

—First Floor—

Muskrat Coats

Go in For Long College Careers

$145

Our fashion formula for freshmen reads: "The right fur coat means four years of hard but exciting wear — for games, movie dates and week-ends at your room-mate's."

You know what this means—it means you should have a soft, dark, sporty, dressy muskrat coat like this one: fitted as you wish, longer, wider, with turnback cuff and a cozy shawl collar that presto! drops into a cape. And it means $145 is really a very special price — because in the market muskrat coats are getting higher and higher.

HAPPENINGS IN HOLLYWOOD STUDIOS AND ALONG GAY BROADWAY

Gloria Swanson May Make Musical as Pendulum Swings Backward

By HARRISON CARROLL.

(Copyright, 1930, Feature Syndicate)

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 10.

An intriguing rumor comes my way that Gloria Swanson will star in the musical that De Sylva, Brown and Henderson will do for United Artists.

The plan hasn't gotten past the discussion stage as yet, but studio officials are said to be very keen to sell Gloria on the role. Inasmuch as she has often considered doing a musical there should be no fundamental objections to overcome.

One detects a more hopeful attitude among producers about the future of this form of entertainment. All agree that the public was glutted by an epidemic of inferior product, but that interest may be stimulated if a few good musicals are released.

Within 48 hours I have been in at the finish of two musicals and if the rest of the productions measure up to climactic sequence they give every promise of being spectacular films. One is the Romberg and Hammerstein operetta "Children of Dreams" at Warners and the other is De Sylva, Brown and Henderson's "Just Imagine" at Fox.

Douglas Fairbanks' "Reaching for the Moon" also will be a musical, so the pendulum must have started on its backward swing.

LAST RESORT

Eddie Cantor writes to report that times are so tough in New York that the restaurants are sending paper napkins to the laundry.

ANOTHER FAD

How's this for a new fad? I just saw Hedda Hopper on the boulevard with blue eyelashes. She also wears them green on occasion. The colors are penciled on.

HUGE INDUSTRY

An immense amount of property is owned by Hollywood studios today. A check up reveals that, with their location ranches, they cover 4,955 acres or approximately eight square miles. Quite a change from the days when Paramount started in a barn.

LATEST ON DRACULA

Universal has been a long time selecting an actor to play the lead in "Dracula," but the decision is imminent.

In all likelihood, Bela Lugosi will get the role. It was this Hungarian actor who created the part in the New York stage production and who played it on the coast.

William Courtney also has been tested by Director Tod Browning, but the report has it that Lugosi is the favored candidate.

Dracula is a sensational horror story of vampires in human form. It was written by Bram Stoker, English novelist, and later dramatized. Louis Bromfield has done the treatment for Universal.

MARRIAGE NEAR

The wedding of June Clyde, R. K. O. player, and Thornton Freeland, United Artists director, will take place much sooner than was expected.

The groom-to-be admits that it won't be later than the finish of his next picture, "The Dove," and doesn't deny that the ceremony may take place within a week.

The pair met under romantic circumstances. Freeland saw a picture of June while he was casting for "Whoopee" and asked R. K. O. to send her over for a test. She was his choice for the lead, but officials thought otherwise.

If she didn't get the role she got the director, for their engagement was announced a short while later.

June Clyde.

Comedian, Dancer Top Academy Show

Bare Facts," a burlesque show featuring Joe Yule, eccentric comedian, and Lolita, dancer, is current in the Academy. An ensemble of 24 Pittsburgh girls is prominent. Among the players are Jonnie Mattise, comedian; Mark Lea, character man; Ollie Nelson, bandleader; Tessie Sherman, soubret; Betty Roberts, ingenue, and Alva Baker, singer.

Tis to Laugh

Groucho M.. is bringing the film version of Animal Crackers" into the Aldine for a week's stay, beginning Friday.

ROUND-TRIP SEA HOP PLANNED

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—(AP.)—Plans for a round-trip seaplane hop to Paris early in October with stops at Bermuda and the Azores to permit carrying a load of pay freight were described at the State Department by Mrs. Beryl Hart and Lieut. William S. MacLarence of Newark, New Jersey, pilots.

The fliers requested the department to obtain permission for them to land at the two islands and at the same time made application for passports to France.

MacLarence, a graduate of the Naval Academy and a former test pilot and instructor at Newark, described the proposed flight as an attempt to "take trans-Atlantic flying out of the stunt class and put it on a sound commercial basis."

Mrs. Hart, who carries an air transport license, said the proposed plane would permit them to carry a minimum load of gasoline, filling the space ordinarily occupied by it with paying freight.

DAVIS PRAISES LAW MEETING

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—(AP.)—John W. Davis, former ambassador to Great Britain, declared stimulation of American thought on international problems was an important result of the conference of the International Law Association. Davis addressed the closing session of the conference here.

He told the delegates that "your very meeting here and the daily publication of your proceedings has helped again to remind the American people that they are members of the family of nations and that they have a keen concern in the development of international law."

The conference adopted a resolution, proposed by Austin E. Griffiths, former judge of the Superior Court of the State of Washington, expressing the admiration of the association for Aristide Briand and Frank B. Kellogg for the work that led to the Briand-Kellogg peace pact.

WALTER WINCHELL On Broadway

COPYRIGHT 1930 DAILY MIRROR INC.

Prophecy

Now I am through with taverns and their wines,
And, better still, my dear, I'm through with you;
The game was sweet—but then a youngster finds
The world holds better things for him to do;
No longer will you sit across from me
And flirt discreetly over either shoulder,
For neither wine nor love with me agree—
I'm growing saintly, or I'm growing older.

With fervent vows I shed my vagrant ways,
And swear I'll take the straight and narrow path;
Although I miss the zest of former days,
I'm hardly keen about their aftermath;

Right now for any angel I could 'ouble,
But let a month go by—I'll be in trouble!

—Don Wahn.

The Retort Terrible

Eugene Conrad would have you believe that he was that near to the Mayor to be able to hear his conversation with Coste and Bellonte.

Conrad reports that Jimmy Walker wanted to make the Frenchmen feel as much "home as possible. So before he greeted them he hurriedly looked over his book on French. As the Mayor shook paws with them he said:

"Mong-seers — eel et a ess playsoor quell jay avez cette plaisoor quand—"

At this point Coste looked up a bit apologetically and chirped:

"Excuse, please, but we no spik Engleesh."

Nifty

Writing about thunderstorms in Liberty, Robert (Cutie) Benchley says among other things:

"It has been a couple of years now since I really had a scare. I am now knocking on wood so hard that the man next door said 'Come in'!"

Chasing Rainbows

The newspapers you might say are giving the skeptics another reason to believe the credo "You can't believe everything you read in the papers."

Morris Coste's pajamas, for example. The World reported:

". . . the two fliers were in bed, Coste sitting up in red, white and blue striped pajamas . . ."

The Journal's version:

". . . the flight eastward has already been done, so I am not interested.' Coste explained as, resplendent in pink striped pajamas, he received newspapermen . . ."

Not to be outsmatted, the Daily Mirror raced to press with:

". . . Coste, clad in golden brown pajamas, looked very weary."

It Valleed and Thundered

The Scranton Republican's Joseph A. Foster interviewed Mrs. Vallee's little boy, Rudolph, the other one-night-stand and his interview, in part, follows:

"An interview with Rudy Valee," says Mr. Foster, "would not be complete without a little Winchell atmosphere. And Rudy was asked what he thought of Walter, New York's premier columnist. (Oh, Mr. Foster!)

"His response was fair enough, and he did not take advaniage of the opportunity to return the puns with which Winchell apparently has tried to antagonize him. A Sharon, Pa., reporter quoted Rudy as saying that he and Winchell were good friends. 'I am glad,' replied Rudy, 'that I was quoted correctly.'

"'Then you are friendly with him?' we asked. 'Why certainly,' replied Rudy, 'His paragraphs directed at me mean nothing to me. He is only one man. And what is one out of a million? I am not supposed to curl and die because he says those things.'

"Then Rudy recalled one of Winchell's happy quips for the small gathering and enjoyed a hearty laugh as he repeated it. 'You know,' Rudy added, 'the human voice is more powerful than the printed word. You can put it in big, black type, but it never attains the power of the spoken word. My medium is the voice and song.'"

What you should have reminded Rudy of, Mr. Foster, was that the voices of Homer, Shakespeare, Goethe, Heine and Voltaire (not Vinchell) are hushed, but that their words still breathe, and very likely will forever.

Wisey

Tommy Moore, of 241 West 42nd Street, says that the police were about to arrest a well-known movie magnate for the 3X murders, but they discovered in time that he signed his letters with only one X.

Oop! So Sorreh

"You're all wrong," writes Jack Shuttleworth, author of "Noble Experiments" (the book of recipes), "about giving a man an inch and he'll start a sissy golf course. He'll park his Austin."

For Such a Reason!

Variety tells of a Belgrade, Jugoslavia critic, who was fined and sentenced to 10 days in the hoosegow for stating in his review of a show that it should have been called "Without Brains," instead of "Without Love."

When Funk & Wagnalls' Standard Dicksh defines "brain" in this wise: It is the organ of consciousness.

Rebuttal

In reply to the charge by numerous readers that the Art Landry Orchestra borrowed or thefted that clever curtain speech:

"Thanks for your applause, which I assure you goes to our hearts and not to our heads," Mr. Landry has this to say:

"Thanks very much for your kindness in mentioning my curtain speech in your column. I am very sorry that it caused a flurry of controversy over its originality. However, we have not heard from Mr. George Washington Dewey, to whom its origin is attributed by the ready protestors.

"But I am certain that if he is anything like his first two names-sake, he will say: 'My dear Mr. Winchell, I cannot tell a lie. I took my little hatchet and chopped my speech from Mr. Landry's.'—Most cordially yours, Art Landry."

Incidentally, a large army of subscribers point out that Helen Kane originated it. What they apparently meant to say was that Miss Kane was the first they heard use it. However, Mr. Dewey may now have the floor.

Four Germans Killed As Bus Shaft Parts

SANGERSHAUSEN, Germany, Sept. 10.—(AP.)—Death in the form of a flailing drive shaft came up through the floor of a sightseeing bus on a highway near here and claimed four lives.

The shaft broke while the machine was going full speed and tore a hole in the floor. The four who died fell through this and were crushed under the wheels.

PITT HAS FLOOD OF APPLICANTS

Applications for admission to the University of Pittsburgh are 12 per cent ahead of those at this time last year, according to J. Gilbert Quick, registrar.

Inquiries concerning night courses offered at the downtown division of the university, exceed those of previous years, Dr. Vincent W. Lanfear, director of the downtown division, expects enrollment in this unit to set a record.

Registration in the non-professional schools of the university is set for September 15 to 20. For the downtown division, it does not begin until September 17. First semester classes start September 22.

Trio Flees Prison, Tunnel Under Wall

LEAVENWORTH, Kan., Sept. 10.—(AP.)—Placing dummies in their bunks to represent sleeping men, three prisoners escaped from the federal penitentiary annex here yesterday. All were convicted of violation of the Harrison anti-narcotic act.

Officials who announced the escape said they were unable to determine how the prisoners got out of their cells. They escaped from the prison yard by tunneling under a wall.

Insurance Company Vice President Dies

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 10.—(AP.)—W. Gardner Crowell, 76, died yesterday at the home of his son, Wilmer G. Crowell, in Narberth, near here. He was vice president of the Pennsylvania Fire Insurance Company and an official of several other insurance agencies in this city. Crowell was president of the Fire Insurance Patrol of Philadelphia and secretary of the Philadelphia Suburban Fire Underwriters' Association.

Years ago he played second base on the Olympic baseball team, which later became the Athletics.

SPORT COMMENT
by JAMES J. LONG

CHANCES APPEAR TO FAVOR McLARNIN

MATCHES THAT BRING together champions or stars of different boxing divisions do not always mean a whole lot and rarely attract much attention outside the districts in which they are staged. Frequently a title-holder seeks such bouts with heavier opponents solely for the purpose of side-stepping a dangerous rival in his own class and thus keeping his championship safe. To stop that practice the New York Boxing Commission some time ago adopted a regulation prohibiting such encounters and restricting champions to competition with men of their own poundage, though on several occasions the rule has not been enforced.

Jimmy McLarnin

Not all of these handicap fights have failed to stir up more than local interest, however. The meeting of Joe Walcott and Joe Choynski and the bouts between Kid Lavigne and Walcott, as well as Terry McGovern's clashes with Frank Erne and Joe Gans were big numbers in the old days. Another exception was the recent battle between Kid Chocolate and Jack (Kid) Berg, though in that instance the lighter man, Chocolate, did not hold a title, and one more outstanding affair of the same character is on the schedule for tomorrow night in New York.

IN THIS EVENT, Al Singer lightweight champion, is to meet Jimmy McLarnin, probably the best of the welterweights though still denied a title chance, and the match has aroused so much interest that a gate of more than $150,000 is expected at the Yankee Stadium. Singer will weigh about 135 pounds and McLarnin 142.

The main thing that makes the fight attractive is the possibility of its ending in a knockout, as each fighter carries the necessary punching power. McLarnin has won 40 out of 66 bouts, 13 by the kayo route, and in 57 contests Singer has been victorious 48 times, with 21 knockouts to his credit.

ON PAPER IT would at first appear to be a suicidal match for Singer. The wisdom of going against a heavier man of McLarnin's ability when there are many lightweight opponents in sight is hard to see. Besides, Singer has nothing to gain by winning.

However, you've got to figure that any man in any business knows what he is doing when the risk of his own assets is concerned, so Singer probably has reason to believe that he really has a chance. That chance doesn't look so good from this distance. It ought to be a hard and close fight, but there appears to be an edge for McLarnin.

Al Singer

RAY PHELPS, Robin pitcher, who greeted the Cubs with a shutout in the first game of their final Eastern trip of the season, a trip that is to decide the destination of the National League pennant, holds the unusual record of not having lost a game on his club's home grounds this season. He has lost only six decisions during the campaign, and all of those reverses were suffered on foreign fields—two in Chicago, and one each in Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, St. Louis and Boston. He has piled up a total of 13 victories, eight of which were won on his home lot. Phelps had been generally recognized as the pitching find of the season in the National League until Charley Wood came to the Pirates a few weeks ago to challenge him for that distinction.

BOB GROVE established himself more firmly as the leading pitcher of the year by hanging up his twenty-sixth victory at the expense of the Tigers in the opening contest of the Mackmen's Western tour. Against his 26 wins he is charged with only five defeats.

Grove's victory total is the largest that has been registered by any major league pitcher since 1926, when George Uhle won 27 games for Cleveland. In four straight seasons Grove has turned in a grand total of 90 victories. In 21 of his 26 wins this year he pitched the whole route. He has lost only one of his last 14 games, that being a 3-to-2 decision to Washington on August 25.

THE INCREASED INTEREST that horsemen generally are taking in hunting and jumping horses as compared to gaited steeds is shown by the entry list for the Pittsburgh Hunt Club's annual horse show, which will be held next Friday and Saturday on the Lytle Farm in the Fox Chapel district.

Competitive events for hunting horses and junior riders will dominate the program, reflecting the growth of the riding-to-hounds sport in this section. The Pittsburgh Hunt Club will open its new clubhouse and display its new polo field adjoining the site of the show.

J. Raymond Price

J. RAYMOND PRICE, David I. McCahill, George Paull, George Cherrington and additional guiding hands at the Pittsburgh and other hunts will enter the mounts with which they hunt over some of the world's most picturesque landscapes. Mr. McCahill has added to his entries Lindy Lou, a polo pony, and Pomme Sautee, an English hunter, which he purchased while in the East to attend the international polo match. Edgar J. Kaufmann, Oliver Kaufmann, Dr. E. J. McCague, George McCook, E. C. Bothwell, John W. Lawrence, Dr. Ralph Lynch and other leading stable owners have made large entries. The real thrill of the show will come as the final event, the annual Pittsburgh Hunt Steeplechase, won last year by Dr. Lynch on his Westmoreland Lad, probably the district's most noted hunter. Westmoreland Lad is a favorite to repeat.

SINCE GEORGE TOPORCER was sent to the Rochester farm by the Cardinals, the major leagues have been without a bespectacled infielder. Chick Hafey, Redbird outfielder, has been the only player in a regular position to wear eye-glasses while on the field.

But Toporcer now has an infield successor in the person of Mark Koenig, former Yankee shortstop with the Tigers. Koenig's eyes have been troubling him to such an extent that Bill Akers is filling his post temporarily, but with the aid of spectacles, which he has been trying the practice sessions, Koenig hopes to be able to get back on the job at an early date.

IT IS SOME kind of record—it may be a South Hills record, or it may be a State record, or something like that. But the 653 pins set down by three Dormont bowlers the other night is causing more than a little comment in Dormont, Beechview, Mount Lebanon and way stations. The total was annexed during a friendly match on the Hollywood alleys.

Billy Brazell, who despite his 65 years, is as hard a nut to crack as could be asked for, came through with a 253, while Dave Davies, erstwhile sports editor of the old Pittsburgh Dispatch, negotiated a 203, leaving it for Bill Brown, star of the Mount Lebanon Baptist Church League, to contribute a 194 for the 653 total. Brazell, incidentally, thinks nothing of tearing off a 250 score every now and then. A few days prior to his 253 in this match, he toppled them for 251.

AT LAST HERE comes a horse race that Gallant Fox can't win—for the very good reason that he can't get in it. The event

TILDEN FOE OF IRISH NET STAR TODAY

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Sept. 10.—(AP)—A fighting Irishman, Littleton Rogers, drew himself up to his full height of six feet seven inches, took a firm grip on his racquet and provided the National tennis singles championship with its daily thrill yesterday by defeating young Ellsworth Vines, of Pasadena, Cal., 4-6, 4-6, 6-4, 6-1, 6-4.

The victory carried the biggest tennis player in the world into the fourth round, where he will encounter Bill Tilden today. Big Bill, whose six feet one inch of altitude will be dwarfed by the giant Davis Cup ace from Ireland, outclassed Ed Feibleman, of New York, 6-1, 6-1, 6-0.

GRANT ELIMINATED

Bryan Grant, of Atlanta, holder of the National clay courts singles title and No. 12 on the American seeded list, was upset by Samuel B. Gilpin, 20, of Philadelphia, 6-2, 4-6, 11-9, 3-6, 6-4.

Wilbur Coen, of Kansas City, bowed before Sidney B. Wood, 18-year-old New York sensation, 6-2, 1-6, 6-1, 6-1.

DOEG ADVANCES

Clifford Sutter, intercollegiate champion from Tulane University, defeated Herbert Bowman, New York, 6-1, 2-6, 4-6, 6-3, 6-3. Johnny Doeg played listlessly to defeat Lieut. R. M. Watt, Jr., 6-4, 4-6, 6-2, 6-4.

In a hard international struggle with young Ted Avery, of Cambridge University, Francis T. Hunter, won by scores of 4-6, 8-6, 6-2, 6-2.

Gregory Mangin's powerful stroking shattered the comeback ambitions of Johnny Hennessey, Indianapolis, 6-2, 6-0, 1-6, 6-2, and Dick Murphy, Utica, N. Y., southpaw, carried Wilmer Allison to 4-6, 6-1, 6-3, 6-3.

DIEGEL LEADS IN PRO PLAY

FLUSHING, N. Y., Sept. 10.—(AP.)—A weak finish by Harold Ransom, Burlingame, Cal., enabled Leo Diegel, the champion, to go to luncheon 2 up in the second round for the Professional Golfers' Association championship.

Immaculate Heart, Springdale Win

Immaculate Heart won the North Side Twilight League baseball title last evening for the fourth time by defeating the North Side nine, 11-5, at Sullivan Field.

Springdale copped the deciding game in the Allegheny-Kiski Valley series, beating Pioneer Hose, of Parnassus, 14 to 0.

The second game of the series between Fintex and the Allegheny Collegians for the championship of the Central League is scheduled for this evening at Warrington Park. Fintex won the opener last night, 7 to 4.

Reliance Life and Verona stage a play-off of their 2-2 tie of Monday evening at Edgar Thomson field, Braddock, this evening. A victory for Reliance will enable it to tie Edgewood for the Greater Pittsburgh League championship.

An inter-league game is scheduled at West Penn Park this evening between the Kokinos Cardinals and Immaculate Heart.

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: THE GERMAN WORD "FRAU"—The word "frau" (wife) was spelled in medieval German "frowe." The two syllables composing it mean "joy" and "pain," and gave rise to many interesting conclusion as to its etymology. THE TREE WITH HORNS—These "tree-antlers" are located in Yosemite Valley, California, in the stump of a 250-year-old Madrone tree. Although it is not known exactly how these antlers have grown into the wood, it is supposed that they were placed between the limbs of the tree about a hundred years ago, the limbs having grown around them.

FAVORITES COP IN NET PLAY

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Stars of the P. A. A., Edgewood and Stanton Heights blazed a path into the semi-finals of the Allegheny County tennis championships on the Duquesne Library Club courts yesterday afternoon as splendid racquet weather once prevailed to permit the competition to speed ahead well in front of schedule. Winged Head representatives showed strongly in the going as Dr. John O'Loughlin and his driving brother, Billy, hustled forward in straight sets to triumph over Frank Broida, Public Parks and Pittsburgh Center junior champion, and Lou Weis, veteran Mount Lebanon chopster, respectively.

The remainder of the penultimate bracket was filled out by Frank Smith, redoubtable Edgewood captain, who downed Sam Keller, former Duke varsity leader, 6-1, 6-2, and by Jack Beatty, husky Stantonian ace, who spread bad news in Geneva College ranks through downing first Don Wilson, 6-0, 6-1, and later Johnny Hecker, Beaver County premier, 6-4, 3-6, 6-0.

BROIDA BEATEN

John O'Loughlin was pushed vigorously to care for Broida's slants, 8-6, 6-1. Broida had earlier in the day eliminated John Brown, rangy Mount Lebanon contender, in a fast-driving tussle, 6-4, 7-5.

Billy O'Loughlin blew Weis from the competition with a protracted series of booming forehands that stowed Lou's slices away any old time they failed to hug the turf. Keller, before encountering Smith, scored a fancy win at the expense of Stewart Snodgrass, Beaver Falls youth and one of the most promising lads hereabouts, 6-3, 7-5.

NO SINGLES TODAY

There will be no singles jousting in the Library inclosure today, the man-to-man semi-finals,

MY 50 YEARS IN BASEBALL
By CONNIE MACK
MANAGER OF WORLD CHAMPION PHILADELPHIA ATHLETICS

INSTALLMENT NO. 3.

When I was 15 years old, I commenced to sprout like a cornstalk. Before this year ended, I amazed East Brookfield villagers by measuring exactly 6 feet 2 inches by the yardstick.

I was the tallest youth in the village and had to hear many a quip from rustic wits because of my unusual height, which was accentuated by my slender width.

At the age of 16, I quit school for good. A conviction was fast growing with me that I was getting a trifle too tall for carrying school books under my arm and answering the questions of a schoolmarm who was more than a head smaller than me. Neither did my parents attempt to dissuade me.

So I went to work in the Green & Twitchell shoe factory in East Brookfield. I was placed in the sole leather room and worked at the task of getting out the soles and cutting heel lifts. My hours were from 7 to 6, with one hour off at midday.

That summer I played baseball more earnestly. In the last few summers I had been catching behind the bat because of my size and the fact that nobody else wanted to catch.

Team Owned One Glove

I remember that summer we chipped in 10 cents each and bought a $2 buckskin glove without fingers. Everybody on the team had the privilege of using it and it was passed around from one player to another during the game. We felt mighty proud of having a $2 glove on the team, even if it were the only one we possessed.

We called our team the "Lake Lashaway" and all the players were around the 16-year mark in age. We played games with teams of our class in the vicinity, visiting North Brookfield, West Brookfield, South Brookfield, Warren, West Warren and Spencer.

We did our traveling in a big open wagon which we rented at small cost, the players sitting on improvised boards placed across the wagon. We had natty uniforms and registered the importance of kings as we left East Brookfield Saturdays or Sundays on a five-mile jaunt.

This was the kind of baseball we played up until 1882, when clubs in our vicinity formed a circuit called the Amateur Central League consisting of teams in East Brookfield, North Brookfield, Thorndyke, Chicopee Falls, Ware and Spencer.

During this season of 1882 my baseball activities scored a new high when, for the first time, I had the distinction of playing against a major league club. While it was only an exhibition game, it made a never forgettable impression on me in the 48 years that have followed.

The club to visit us that season was Worcester, then a member of the National League. Worcester agreed to come to East Brookfield for a guarantee of only $50. We played in an open lot and closed a street so we could charge an admission of 25 cents. There were no fences, no stands, no neatly-printed tickets. A man came up to the closed street, gave up a quarter and was allowed to go and stand any-

RAY KREMER FACES TRIBE TODAY

Today's Lineup

BOSTON, Sept. 10.—The Pirates this morning were all set for their last invasion of the East, they being slated to jump off this afternoon against the Braves. Manager Ens and his Pittsburgh scrappers reached Boston this morning after traveling from Syracuse, N. Y. The Buccos will take on the Tribal Warriors in three combats.

Boss Ens has Remy Kremer groomed for the first clash of the series, and Frenchy should be well rested in that he has not done any throwing since last Saturday at Forbes Field when he was shelled off the hill early as he tried to throw back the Cubs.

RAY AFTER TWENTIETH

Kremer is having tough sledding as he tries to record his twentieth victory of the season. He has been batted hard on two occasions since he put over his nineteenth success, but some of the Pirates figure that Remy had been overworked and as a result he lost his "stuff." No pitcher in the senior circuit has yet copped 20 games, so Kremer has a fine chance to be the first to reach the coveted mark. Manager McKechnie is expected to call upon Bob Smith or Bill Sherdel for slab duty.

The Ensmen still insist they have a chance to share in the world series coin, although they realize they must win consistently if they are to get as high as the fourth position. Each of the four first-place occupants is in the flag fight, the Pirates absolutely are without any pennant ambitions, but they figure they can still reach the first tier, and with this thought in view they will play out every string from now till the finish.

18 MORE GAMES

The Buccos have 18 games on their card ere the curtain falls. They move to New York for three games after finishing here, and then invade Philadelphia for the same number of fights. They will tackle the Robins twice in the Flatbush.

Returning home at the end of the present jaunt, the Pirates will take on the Reds in three games at Forbes Field. From Pittsburgh they will journey to St. Louis to wind up their year in four fights with the Cardinals.

The Buccos are in better shape physically than they have been for some time. Manager Ens faced a serious shortage of pitchers for many weeks of the campaign, and of course the absence of Lloyd Waner hurt the club. Now he has enough hurlers to insure a first-stringer for every battle, and Brother Lloyd is in better condition than he has been for some time. He is far from being well, yet his work in all departments is excellent.

PLAYERS RECALLED

The Pirates yesterday announced the outright release of two hurlers, Leon Chagnon and Martin Lang, now with the Wichita Club whose options were allowed to lapse, and the recalling of two other players, W. (Stewie) Clarke, Wichita Falls third-sacker, and John Stoneham, Columbia Sally League club outfielder.

The Pirates defeated the Lake Shores, a sandlot league team, in their exhibition at Syracuse yesterday, about 1,000 seeing the fracas.

The big leaguers used 17 players and Jim Mosolf pitched the last six innings and allowed six

BUCS PURCHASE TWO HURLERS

Two more young players of promise have been purchased by the Pittsburgh baseball club. Treasurer Sam Dreyfuss announced today. They are Clay Mahaffey, a righthand pitcher, and Floyd Young, who plays shortstop, second base or the outfield. Both were bought from the Columia (S. C.) club, of the South Atlantic League. They will not report until next spring.

Mahaffay, though the property of Columbia, pitched all season for the Henderson (N. C.) club in the Piedmont League, and was the leading hurler of that circuit in percentage of victories, winning 20 games while losing only 7, a mark of .741. In a total of 265 innings pitched he allowed 247 hits and 112 runs, struck out 91 men, and gave 69 bases on balls. He is 22 years old, 5 feet 9 inches in height, weighs 150 pounds, and bats as well as pitches right-handed. The recruit is not related to Lee Roy Mahaffey, former Pittsburgh flinger now with the A's.

Young was to have accompanied the Pirates on their training trip last spring, but became ill while en route to Pittsburgh to report, and was sold outright to Columbia. He played shortstop for that club during the greater part of the season. His batting average for the year was .283, his hits including 18 doubles, 16 triples and 5 home runs. He also stole 10 bases. Young is a righthand batter and thrower, 23 years old, 5 feet 9 inches in height and scales 162 pounds.

STARS DEFEAT GRAYS

AKRON, O., Sept. 10.—The Homestead Grays lost, 8 to 5, to the Central League All-Stars here last night when the Stars rallied to score three runs in the ninth inning. Cooper was on the mound for the Grays. The teams clash again tonight.

SHOOT TOMORROW

The Western Pennsylvania Trapshooters League will hold a league shoot tomorrow afternoon at the Vesta Red and Gun Club, California, Pa.

Nick Altrock Says:

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 10.—The World Series will open up October 1, but they don't say where. The way that National League race is going now, us experts may hop anywhere from New York to St. Louis after the two games at Shibe Park. The Cubs and Cards have a three-week road trip in front of them. Of course, travel broadens most people, but it often flattens a pennant-chasing team. Anyway, those Chicago fans are calling for more margin before they pack their knapsacks with hot dogs and start lining up at Wrigley Field. I still have a hunch on the Cubs, but it may be only a bunion.

DUQUESNE REVELS IN BIG SQUAD OF VETS

LAYDEN WELL FORTIFIED FOR RACE

Group photo of Duquesne University's football squad will appear in tomorrow's issue of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

By JESS CARVER

Sans only the powerful and accurate kicking of Buff Donnelli and the bulwark that was Ted Skender at the line from last year's team, Duquesne University is confronting its fifth year of Notre Dame-style football under the able directorship of Elmer Layden.

With a veteran squad that went through a 10-game campaign in 1929 without suffering a defeat and engaging in only one tie, the Dukes are on the testing block this fall. A representative schedule of 10 contests, eight of which will be played before home audiences with three intersectional games included, puts it squarely up to the Dukes and to Coach Layden to prove to Pittsburgh followers that they are here to stay as a big time team.

AIM TO STAY "UP"

Coach Layden and his men were praised to the skies last year when, contrary to all advance dope, they whisked through their schedule undefeated and held West Virginia, a major opponent, even. True, three games were pulled out of the fire by sensational eleventh-hour rallies but they were pulled out, which is what counts.

The Dukes will present five elevens which never before have shown in Pittsburgh. These teams are North Dakota, Howard College, of Birmingham, Ala., Providence College, Detroit Tech and Catholic University of Washington, D. C. In addition, they'll meet Tristate rivals West Virginia, Geneva, Slippery Rock and West Virginia Wesleyan and Loyola University of Chicago.

Now, then, what have the Dukes with which to combat these rivals?

In point of veteran material, Duquesne finds itself by far the best off of all schools in the section. Layden has 14 veteran backs; seven veteran ends, half a dozen tackles, seven guards and five centers. Of this list 39 (33 of whom will be carried throughout the season) all but one or two are lettermen. All have had past two years of work under the Notre Dame system and the majority have been tested under the scorching fires of major opposition.

TWO-TEAM PLAN

As Rockne employs two two-team effect, so does Layden count strongly on shock troop aid. With Donnelli alone absent from last year's "varsity" backfield, he has Kass Kovalcheck, Ganzy Benedict, Doggo Burns and Joe McCarthy for a backfield nucleus. A second quartet can be made up of Bud DiVinney, Fred Christina, George Chacko and Ben Pawlina or Val Trambley. Another set includes Larry Sullivan or Pat O'Toole, Howard Rose and Barr Valentine and Trambley or Pawlina, which ever is not listed with the second lineup. All may be interchanged from one team to another, which is in itself a very encouraging feature.

In the absence of Donnelli, Joe McCarthy figures to do most of the kicking, spelled by Benedict, Burns and Larry Sullivan. McCarthy and Benedict are expert passers. Kovalcheck is a line bruiser of the first rank.

Turning to the ends, men of the class of Smoke Abele, Sammy Pratt, hero of more than one last-minute touchdown a year ago; Bill Fitzgerald, Stafford Murphy, John Sepsi, Joe Dudzak and McCormick pop into view. Abele and Pratt stand out with Murphy and Sepsi close behind. Duquesne is well fixed for ends.

TACKLE FIGHT KEEN

Ray Kemp, Jim O'Donnell, Tom Kirby, Ted Amman, Johnny Donahue and Georgie George comprise the list of tackles. Kemp, O'Donnell and Kirby have seen the most service, but to cinch positions this year, must play better football than they ever have shown in the past, for the challenge of the others is too strong to be ignored or taken lightly.

Strong at the ends and tackles the Duke coaches find themselves even better off for guards. Co-Capt. Clark, DeCarbo, Ferrare, Pollo, Babe Kelleher, Wynoski and Leonard lay before the mentors speed and size and no little experience. Kelleher is a fine lineman, a fine running mate for Clark. The others can be, and have been, fitted into the scheme of things in perfect safety as far as the strength and co-ordination of the team is concerned.

Pat Lally and Marsh Silverstein are fighting it out for the third team job, too, for the center job with chances being that they'll do as they have in the past, share the job. Both have proven themselves capable of handling the job, Silverstein stood out last year, his greater weight giving him an advantage over the more slender Lally. Jim Daly, Thomas and Ben Barrett are three strong reservists.

OPEN WITH W. VA.

The Dukes start off on the campaign a week ahead of other schools in the section, clashing with West Virginia here at Forbes Field the night of September 10. A year ago, in a savage battle at Morgantown, the Bluffites and Mountaineers played to a 7-7 tie. Duquesne will hold an edge over West Virginia this time in that they'll have had 10 days more of practice than their rivals. They'll be outweighed, possibly, but there West Virginia's advantage superiority will end.

Slippery Rock will be here for a night game September 26. The following week, Detroit Tech makes its local debut in another night battle. Loyola University, of Chicago, will entertain the locals in the Windy City on October 10. Howard College will come up from Birmingham October 17 and Catholic University will drop in from Washington, D. C., on October 24.

The University of North Dakota will be met on November 7 in an intersectional fray very much worth while. Geneva entertains the locals at Beaver Falls on November 15 and West Virginia Wesleyan comes here for a game November 22. Thanksgiving Day eve, Providence College of Rhode Island will assist the Dukes in winding up their schedule.

DAY NIGHT UNIFORMS

Duquesne will alternate between blue and white uniforms. The blue opes with red numbers fore and aft are to be worked in the daytime and white at night.

Graduate Manager Holohan has arranged a fine schedule, has outfitted the team in A-1 shape and has arranged for many innovations in the way of between-the-halves features and will introduce new programs, new capes for the band and a new electric scoreboard.

Coach Layden is being assisted again by Joe Bach, a former tackle star at Notre Dame. Brew Jackson is doing the training and clog dancing. Jack Shea designed the uniforms and new specially made football "shorts." Water buckets by Sears and Roebuck.

PITT ELEVENS FAMOUS FOR WINGMEN

When one thinks of Pitt football teams one instinctively recalls the great ends that have appeared in Pitt history. Fans seeking free tickets to Pitt's home games this year by entering the All-Time All-Pitt Team contest, trying to match the official All-Time team selected by James J. Long, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph sports columnist, have a wealth of names from which to choose a pair of wingmen for their all-star team.

Entries are coming in thick and fast from all points. The fans know their stuff, too, and many are going to share in the prize offers. You win if you name six or more of the players selected by Long.

HERRON A STAR

From back when Pitt still was WUP and until last year when Joe Donchess finished a brilliant career, great ends have worn the Blue and Gold. No true fan ever will forget Wagner and Herron. The great Hube and the equally great Pat made enviable names for themselves and stamped indelibly on the records the imprint of their performances.

But you'll get into many an argument if you claim this pair as the greatest. There are those who will recall to you Hobitzel, Lindsey and Homer Roe, a strong triumvirate. Doc Carlson, Charley Bowser, Crip Sauer, Milo Gwozden and Lloyd Jordan have their admirers, too, and Donchess, many claim, was the greatest of the list. Harry "Hing" McCarter, now coroner of Beaver County, Tuffy McMillan and Honey Guarino and back a tall Perry were fine wingmen. Picking the best pair out of this lot is no cinch. Try it and see.

ONE WEEK TO GO

The contest closes one week from today. Fill out the blank printed from time to time, or write on your own paper and mail your selections to the Football contest Editor of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

STAN BERKMAN TO PLAY FOR WEST VIEW

By TOM BIRKS.

Paul Muzzio, the West View football manager, kicks in with a hole regarding the whereabouts of Stanley Berkman, noted quarterback. Berkman will be wearing the Red and White, of West View, in the Conference games this season. Muzzio called the first practice session yesterday and Schach Schacker is reported. The calling of signals is not worrying the West View sponsor. Alex Fox, Maier, halfbacks, and Erdy, end, also donned the moleskins.

There have been rumors that East Pittsburgh has lined up two outstanding stars. Tommy Conley, former manager, and Joe Wambaugh, new manager, have been rounding up talent to make their outfit a real contender.

The McKeesport Olympics will be first to swing into action. The Charleroi Whippets will be the attraction at Rainbow Garden Sunday.

Wambaugh and Coleman will hold their first practice for East Pittsburgh this evening at the Quarry grounds. All of last season's players are requested to be on hand.

The Hope-Harvey Majestics probably will play their home games at National Park. Rooney is likely to stand pat on last season's lineup. Jimmy Rooney will be playing with Honey Charing. Levy, sensational halfback, Harp Vaughan, Sweeney, Moye, Lance, former coach at Grove City, Woofty Wild, Karcis and O'Malley.

MY 50 YEARS IN BASEBALL

By CONNIE MACK

where off the playing field he elected.

On this Worcester team was J. Lee Richmond, a lefthander, who had won the distinction of being the first pitcher in baseball to pitch a perfect ball game. In other words, he traveled nine innings without an opponent reaching first base. The team he so relentlessly vanquished was Cleveland, and the game was played July 12, 1880, in Worcester.

Play Anson's Team

Arthur Irwin, Harry Stovey and Fred Corey also were on this team. We could not cope with such powerful opponents and were beaten. That was the high spot of 1882. We were on the field again in 1883. That season we booked Anson's Chicago White Stockings, and, as this was a bigger attraction than Worcester, we had to offer a guarantee of $100. Think of it—$100 for an entire team! Why Babe Ruth frequently has received $2,500 and more for one game. Anson covered first base for Chicago, with Pfeffer, Williamson and Burns at the other infield posts. Corcoran and Goldsmith divided the pitching burden.

I remember that Honest John Kelly did the catching for Anson's team. He must not be confused with King Kelly, of the same team, who did not make the trip to East Brookfield for some reason. The other Kelly was a National League umpire and he agreed to catch a part of the game for Anson. Later he became a famous fight referee and sporting man.

The crowd was even bigger than the one that saw Worcester the previous year and we had something left for ourselves after paying Anson his $100. I caught against both Worcester and the White Stockings and I recall how I looked in awe as Anson, then one of the mightiest hitters in baseball, stepped to the plate and turned to me, saying:

"I have looked at a lot of catchers, but don't think I ever saw one built as high as you are."

Marvels at Stars

Williamson, Pfeffer and Burns also were at the peak of their careers and their wonderful work was a revelation to the small town catcher. Our little team, of course, was no match for such stars and we were defeated.

I never dreamt at the time that the day was not far off when I would be in the major leagues playing against these celebrities and holding up my end with them, too.

That was not the only space for us in 1883. The Amateur Central League ended with a decided Brookfield tinge. East Brookfield and North Brookfield finished the race tied and a play-off was necessary. So greatly were neighboring villages thrilled by this uncommon situation that it was decided to play off the tie on neutral grounds in South Brookfield, known as the old race track.

Mack Wins Pennant

Excitement was so tense and so much was at stake that it was agreed to send to Boston for an expert umpire. He was a likeable chap named Tilden and always was chosen to umpire the Harvard-Yale games at that time.

East Brookfield won the game and pennant, 2 to 1, and we became the heroes of our community. To this day I play this game over and over again in my memory. I get as much of a thrill recalling the details of this game as I ever did out of any world series game.

I played no small part in the result. The sixth inning found the score 1 to 0 against us. Our right fielder made a base hit and was sacrificed to second. My turn was next and I picked up my bat and shot a single to left that scored the tying run. I immediately stole second and then tore home with the winning marker when our third baseman doubled.

We had a scare before the game ended. In the ninth, North Brookfield had runners on third and second and only one out. Hogan, our pitcher, was equal to the test, and amid roars of applause from our followers, he fanned the next two enemy batsmen and ended the game.

PANTHERS DRILL ON DEFENSE

CAMP HAMILTON, WINDBER, Pa., Sept. 10.—Their claws drawn by a stubborn second team, the Panther varsity yesterday afternoon had their first defensive workout of the year. When the second team insisted on breaking through Jock Sutherland's 1930 line and wrecking plays before they got started, the Silent Scot almost became garrulous and finally took the ball away from them and gave it to the reserves.

Right away the reserves got tough, and, with Buzz Brown carrying the ball, scored twice on their exalted opponents. Brown, however, was the only one to gain, that varsity line taking keen delight in piling up the other backs. Brown, running from the right halfback job, showed a clean pair of heels on several occasions to the first team secondary, as he fairly raced around the ends on reverse plays.

After yesterday's work, Sutherland called a halt on the rough work and there was no scrimmage scheduled for today.

TECH GRIDDERS THRIVE

Tuesday brought only light work to the football players encamped at Carnegie Bowl, but the boys were to go at it hammer and tongs again today. Coaches Steffin and Waddell announced last night that scrimmage sessions would be held both this morning and this afternoon. There has been more scrimmage this year in a few weeks than Carnegie squads usually get in an entire training season, but the players seem to thrive on it, and there have been no serious injuries.

Catcher Sewell Lost to Indians

CLEVELAND, Sept. 10.—(AP.)—Luke Sewell, veteran catcher for the Cleveland Indians, will be out of the game for the rest of the season. He suffered a broken finger on his right hand as the result of a foul tip off Harry Rice's bat in yesterday's game with the Yankees. Last June Sewell sustained a similar injury and was out of the game seven weeks.

Harpster to Show On Stanley Stage

Howard Harpster, former Carnegie backfield star, and head coach at Geneva College currently, will make a personal appearance on the Stanley stage tomorrow evening in conjunction with the appearance of Joe E. Brown in Gene Morgan's stage show, "Laff-O-Mania."

GRID RULES Interpretations

PLAY NO. 9.

In a game between Indiana University and Chicago, Garrison, of Indiana, is run out of bounds at his own 40-yard line. The Indiana captain tells the referee that he wants the ball taken in 10 yards from the sidelines.

What is the correct ruling?

ANSWER.

The referee brings the ball back into the field of play 15 yards instead of the shorter distance requested. This embodies one of the changes in the 1930 rules, which provide that on out-of-bounds plays, except from forward passes or kickoffs, the ball must be taken in at right angles from the sidelines to a spot 15 yards into the field instead of it being optional for shorter distances as in the past.

SECOND POLO TILT TODAY

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—(AP.)—The British polo forces, challenging for the international cup, will pin their few remaining hopes in the second match today on the same lineup that absorbed a decisive beating at the hands of the American Big Four last Saturday at Meadow Brook.

Capt. Tremayne expressed confidence that the challengers, profiting from their setback, would give a much better account of themselves today.

World Series Ticket Sale Opens Monday

CHICAGO, Sept. 10.—(AP.)—While fans are focusing their eyes on the four-cornered National League race, the world's championship Philadelphia Athletics are forcing the American League pennant battle into a dying coma.

With but 14 games to go, the Athletics today held the lead with a six and one-half game grip over the Washington Senators, who had 17 games left. To overhaul the champions, the Senators faced the somewhat impossible task of winning all their games while the A's won but nine of 14. Or if the A's won only five more, the Senators would have to win all but three to grab the pennant.

World series ticket sales open in Philadelphia next Monday.

FAVORITES WIN FIRST-ROUND MATCHES

By VERN SWARTSPAGER

Five Oakmont [illegible] eight, including the defending champion, were fighting this morning for the right to enter tomorrow's [illegible] semi-finals in the annual championship of the Women's Golf Association of Western Pennsylvania over the beautiful Westmoreland Country Club links. They were Eunice Roseburgh defending title and medalist Antoinette Hunter and Mrs. J. Raymond Price former district golf queen. Mrs. Sarah Fownes Wadsworth and sturdy little Betty Abernathy who has attached a [illegible] shoe to her bag to bring her a few lucky breaks.

MRS. SUNSTEIN BOWS

Miss Roseburgh eliminated Barbara Wadsworth of the Field Club, 4 and 2, yesterday and today is playing Mrs. Frank L. Campbell of Shannopin Heights who disposed of Mrs. A. C. Sunstein of Westmoreland, 2 up. Miss Hunter is battling with her clubmate, Mrs. Wadsworth, the former defeated Mrs. I. G. Riley of Edgewood, 5 and 4, and the latter, Mrs. Beverly Shriver of Montour, 4 and 3 yesterday.

Mrs. J. Raymond Price put out Mary McCune of Montour 6 and 5, and is battling Betty Abernathy, also of Oakmont who defeated another clubmate, Mrs. A. R. Budd, 6 and 5. Mrs. H. L. Banghart of Warren who beat Mrs. Rollo Carles of Kane 3 and 1, is playing against Mrs. J. A. Ellen, of the Field Club who barely beat Mrs. Chester H. Lehman of Westmoreland 1 up in 19 holes yesterday.

Local Bell Telephone executives are having a golf outing at the Greensburg Country Club today.

WILKINSBURG COPS

Wilkinsburg defeated Verona-Oakmont, 6 to 3, in their Rotary Club team match at the Edgewood Country Club yesterday. In individual competition Les Miles had the low gross, a 78. W. J. Dible won the low net, 92-22. Tie J. W. Morgan, 96-24—72, and J. P. Hall, 96-24—72, tied for second and H. W. Taylor, 100-27—73, was third. Will Clutton was [illegible] with a 76—74. # Signs Indicate Business Revival Under Way

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—(A.P.)—Evidence that the current business depression has reached its cyclical bottom, and started on a long upswing, is being presented in financial and business circles in increasing volume.

Nevertheless, there is a distinct tendency to regard all signs, portents, and even what seem to be basis statistics, with considerable suspicion. Many business executives and financiers have been considerably chagrined at their ready acceptance of the seasonal upturn early in the year as evidence that business was once taking the high road to prosperity after only momentary interruption. They are not disposed to risk their reputations by venturing forecasts at this time, when the business upturn may be only a temporary, normal autumn trend.

The economic history of the past 40 years, however, shows that downswings in business have normally lasted from one to two years, from top to bottom. Few have lasted much more than a year since the turn of the century, and the average is about 15 or 16 months. The recent downturn started in June, 1929, so more than 14 months have already elapsed. This record, the optimists have in their favor.

Store Sales Turn Upward

AMONG THE MORE CHEERFUL reports to apear recently is one from the head of Interstate Department Stores, which operates a chain of 33 stores, mostly in important industrial cities.

Chain stores generally reported further declines in August Sals, to the lowest levels of the year, but the latter part of the month appears to have been more favorable. President L. G. Federman of Interstate explained, "Improvement started about the middle of August, as a result of increased payrolls in practically all of the 33 cities in which we own stores."

Reports from the company's district managers are stated generaly to indicate improvement. Of three automotive plants in Lansing, Mich., one which does a large export business, reports better orders from abroad than at this time last year, and is stepping up its production from about 25 per cent of capacity to more than 80. Another company, which has been operating around 20 per cent, is planning to treble its output shortly, and the third is planning substantial expansion.

Survey Shows Worst Over

ANOTHER, MORE EXTENSIVE survey, has been made by Electrical World, which has telegrahpically asked public utility executives in all sections of the United States for their opinions as to the business trend. A summary of the results shows that these executives almost unanimously report that the worst of the depression is over. Their optimism, however, is somewhat qualified, for improvement is expected by most to be slow.

The majority of the reports show substantial gains in sales to domestic users, some running as high as 25 per cent. Decreases were particularly in high power sales to industry, in one case, 24 per cent. As a result of the depression, only two reduced their transmission expenditures, and only one curtailed its substation and distribution program. There was no unanimity as to what effects lower commodity prices were having on utility costs.

SLOW RECOVERY IN STEEL

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—The iron age in its weekly summary of the iron and steel trade tomorrow will say:

Seasonal recovery in iron and steel, although confidently expected by the trade, is slow in materializing. Demand for finished steel thus far this month has been moderately larger than in the corresponding part of August, but nothing resembling a broad buying movement has set in and the persistence of discordant market tendencies continues to obscure the outlook.

Curtailment of pig iron production, which, according to complete returns, amounted to 4.6 per cent in August, is apparently still under way. Following a net loss last month of five active blast furnaces, of which four were steel works units, four additional furnaces have been taken out of service so far in September, three of them steel plant stacks.

This evidence of an unchecked decline in the pig iron requirements of steel producers is in sharp contrast with the increase of 5.5 per cent in steel ingot output in August and the further gain this month indicated by current estimates. Present ingot production is fully 58 per cent of today's capacity (which is 3 to 4 per cent larger than the total officially reported at the close of 1929) and is 1½ per cent higher than the average for last month.

While these conflicting factors are confusing, they are ignored by leaders in the steel trade, who are convinced that the rock-bottom replacement requirements of an economically strong and growing country exceed a 50 to 60 per cent production in the most basic industry, and for that reason alone some measure of recovery is inevitable. This view finds support in an increase in miscellaneous orders for steel, indicating a revival of interest on the part of many consumers who have not been in the market recently.

Savings Deposits Show Steady Growth

Deposits in the 150 mutual savings banks of New York State on July 1, 1930, are compared with the corresponding deposits on the same date of the past nine years. They are the only monthly savings deposit figures available. Source: Savings Bank Association of the State of New York.

Deposits in the mutual savings banks of New York State represent just about one-half of the mutual savings in the United States today. Therefore they are large enough to adequately indicate trends in general earning power and thrift. Deposits on July 1 of this year were 2.3% higher than a year ago. This is significant because New York State has had the largest amount of unemployment this year. From July 1, 1921, to July 1, 1930, the State's population increased 13.4% while these savings increased 72.4%.

STOCK MARKET ADVANCES ON WIDE FRONT

Most Sections of List In On Rise—Public Still Fails to Participate

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—(AP.)—Cheered by further improvement in business statistics, professional speculators continued for the fifth successive day to make bullish demonstrations in the stock market today, but the general public still remained rather cold to equity shares.

The advance while limited was broad embracing most sections of the list. Utilities, merchandising issues and several of the manufacturing issues were in particular demand, and rails showed a better tone. Such shares as American Can, Radio, Air Reduction, Westinghouse, General Electric, National Biscuit and Paramount gained a point or more. Shares selling up 2 to more than 3 included Byers, Spang, Chalfant, American Power and Light, Vanadium, Pacific Lighting, Atchison and Union Pacific. Allied Chemical sold up nearly 5.

STEEL PICKS UP

The weekly steel review, while a little confusing owing to different methods of computing rates of production and the effects of the Labor Day holiday were again cheerful. Iron Age reported the fourth consecutive weekly increase in ingot production, carrying the industry up to 58 per cent of current capacity against 52 per cent early in August. Steel said that while little improvement was noted at Pittsburgh, quickening at Cleveland, Chicago and Youngstown was notable.

The U. S. Steel Corporation reported a drop of about 440,000 tons in unfilled orders during August, the largest decline for that month in seven years, but Wall Street was inclined to believe the corporation would not have increased its rate of production without confident expectation of better business in the fall. The figures were not interpreted bearishly, the stock selling up to 173¾, duplicating the high for the current movement. Gulf States Steel passed its dividend, as expected, but President Coverdale reported a turn for the better in its business.

Particular pleasing was the tabulation of total freight car loadings for the last week in August, showing a gain of 43,955 cars over the previous week, a gain considerably larger than is seasonal for the period, and lifting the volume of freight movement from the levels of 1922 to those of 1924. The Bureau of Railway Economics reported that Class 1 roads earned on the average of 3.76 per cent on their investment in July, a gain over 3.35 per cent in June.

TREND CHANGES

The Federal Reserve's report that 530 department stores showed a drop in August sales volume of 11 per cent from August of last year was accepted as indicating water over the dam since several merchandising organizations have recently reported improvement.

Several issues were helped by corporate news developments. Oil Well Supply preferred rose several points on approval of the sale of assets to U. S. Steel, while the common encountered profit taking. Checker Cab was helped by announcement of terms of the proposed merger with Parmelee Transportation. Continental Baking shares were firm on announcement of the sale of its interest in Commander-Larabee Corporation. Ward Baking A sold up a few points. While rumors of an actual merger of Ward with Gold Dust have been denied, some sort of alignment is looked for. Diamond Match sold off further, reflecting denial by the Kreuger interests of any intention of purchasing a large interest in it.

WILL CONTEST KELLY SUIT

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Sept. 10.—Former Federal Judge Thomas J. Haight, of Jersey City, special counsel for the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company of Springfield, Mass., said that receivership applications pending in Chancery Court here and in Federal Court, Newark, would be fought.

The petition here is returnable today, while the Newark action is scheduled for a hearing Monday.

Samuel Woolner, Jr., president of Kelly-Springfield Tire Company, authorized the following statement:

"Referring to the suit of one James A. Kelly against Kelly Springfield Tire Company for the appointment of a receiver, charges are unfounded and unjustified. Although plaintiff claims to be the owner of 100 shares of the common stock of the company, the books of the company show that he is not the registered owner of any of the common stock.

"The Kelly Springfield Tire Company is in excellent financial condition. The balance sheet of the company as of July 31, 1930, shows current assets of approximately $13,000,000 against current liabilities of approximately $2,100,000, a ratio of more than six to one. The company has no bonds, debentures, or long-term notes outstanding. Notwithstanding the General business depression the business of the company for the months of July and August has shown a satisfactory profit.

"Counsel for the company has advised us that the suit is absolutely without merit and unjustified on both the law and facts."

Stock Exchange Topics

U. S. Steel Corporation Stock Logical Leader On Advance

Market interests generally look upon U. S. Steel as a logical leader during an advance. They point out that the stock is a favorite among investors and that public sentiment has improved sufficiently to bring the public into the market for stocks of a large steel company will be one of the features. The corporation will make a satisfactory showing this year despite the admittedly poor business of the steel industry. Its diversification is greater than that of any of its competitors which is an advantage when the steel business is as moderate as it has been of the last few months.

Market interests are confident that Union Carbide has discounted reduced earning for the current year. In 1929 the company reported $3.94 a share, and it is not likely that much more than $3 a share will be shown this year. The company produces a wide variety of chemical products. Any improvement in general business conditions should be reflected immediately by better sales and earnings.

Although because of conditions in the metal trade, the copper shares are not yet in favor, consistently good buying has come into American Smelting during all recent recessions. The demand has come from interests that are confident the metals cannot hold at their recent low prices for any great length of time. Smelting is less affected by the trade slump than many other companies.

Usually well informed interests state that sales of R. H. Macy have continued well above last year. They have advices that the business of the parent store so far this year has been about 11 per cent greater than in the corresponding period of 1929, while profits have increased 8 per cent. In view of the commodity price disturbance this year, such a showing is looked upon as remarkably favorable. It is possible that the work of co-ordinating the Macy organization with the Bamberger store in Newark may affect earnings this year, so that the total result may not be as favorable as those of the parent store.

Still, a comparison of the volume of business done to date this year with the turnover recorded in corresponding periods in previous years does not present a particularly discouraging picture. Between January 1 and September 6 a total of 589,000,000 shares have changed hands. Hardly satisfactory by comparison with the 750,000,000 turnover recorded in the same period last year. But as compared with the corresponding period in 1928, the turnover in the current year is 6,000,000 shares greater, and compared with 1927 is 212,000,000 shares larger. The trouble seems to lay in the rather generally recognized fact that professional rather than public trading has accounted for the bulk of this year's turnover.

Wall street these days is evidently looking for the "silver lining" that all dark clouds are supposed to hold. At any rate, the financial community has its weather eye wide open for things that may later prove to have heralded the turn into better times. Yesterday it had several such items in the news for its consideration; first the increase of $30,000,000 revealed in commercial borrowings in the consolidated weekly member bank statement, secondly the increase of 161,894 tons in steel ingot production in August over July, the first increase reported in that direction, incidentally, since March, and last, but not least, the news that Chicago sheet producers had opened their books for fourth quarter business with prices ruling $2 a ton above recently quoted schedules.

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—(AP.)—Aggressive buying of utility shares pushed curb prices higher in active trading today. The bullish demonstration in the market's old favorites, the Power and Light Holding Company Group, was interrupted at times by profit-taking but professional sentiment seemed more definitely committed to a rally and trading slackened when signs of easiness appeared.

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—(AP.)—Following is the list of transactions on the New York Curb Exchange, giving all stocks and bonds traded in (00 omitted in sales column of stock list; 000 omitted in sales column of bond list.)

Exchange Head
Prescott Cafe
For Depression.

By B. C. FORBES

Mr. Forbes

WHAT [illegible] the collapse of A[illegible] R[illegible] president of the N[illegible] Stock Exchange, answered the other week [illegible] How [illegible] depression should be [illegible] the very answer [illegible] head of the [illegible] largest [illegible] gave [illegible]

The decline in security values was not a cause of the trade depression. It was the realization of the downward trend in trade conditions which initiated the decline in security prices. If the stock market did not cause the trade depression, it is clear that the stock market cannot cure it. Many people still seem to believe that rising security prices will forecast the end of the present period in business. That may be so, but before security prices rise there must be confidence that business has turned the corner.

"AS I SEE IT THE PRESENT DEPRESSION CAN BE CURED ONLY BY THE COURAGE AND ACTIVITY OF OUR PEOPLE.

"Our natural resources are as great today as they were last year. Our great business organizations are in strong financial condition, and our industrial plants are at the highest state of efficient development. Credit is abundant. With the exception of the difficulties that have arisen as a result of the drastic deflation of commodity prices, the business horizon is clear. What is needed, therefore, is courageous and intelligent effort and confidence in the future of our country. We all know that the present period cannot long endure; yet, individually, many of us are hesitant and wish to wait until others have had the courage to take the initiative.

"I am confident business men throughout the country will put their shoulders to the wheel, that the period of hesitation will be measurably shortened, and the re-establishment of prosperity in the United States will become an accomplished fact."

Those [illegible] who are among [illegible] confidence [illegible] of belo[illegible] prices are [illegible] March o[illegible] petitors [illegible] to-morrow [illegible] have been [illegible] the lunch

"WE HAVEN'T laid off any help; we haven't reduced any salaries, and every employe has been given his usual vacation this summer. Furthermore, we have kept up our regular advertising and continue to regard it as a very necessary and safe investment—even as a form of business insurance."

Thus speaks W. H. Kiesewetter, president of the oldest and largest rug cleaning establishment in Toledo, O. He adds:

"We have not noticed any business depression in our line. You'll get out of your business just what you put into it."

The average business man would think [illegible] were you to suggest that he cancel his insurance policies. Yet many business men, who consider themselves sober and far-sighted, have been cancelling their business insurance right and left. Such a penny-wise, pound-foolish policy!

"WHAT ARE YOU doing to overcome the present trying conditions?"

This from an 86-year-old Western business leader who has achieved unusual success, Robert Dollar, may spur you:

"Your articles on the Far West are creating a good deal of interest here on the coast. The latest one is headed, 'Action Urged to End Unemployment Evil.' That is not an easy job, but nevertheless if everyone would do a little toward that end it would help.

"For instance, I am leaving on the Twentieth of this month to make a trip to the Far East, to make a strong effort to increase the foreign trade of this country. What I will be able to accomplish will only be infinitesimal; however, if everyone would put forth an effort and do their little it certainly would hasten the return of prosperity."

THE SAN FRANCISCO Chamber of Commerce wires, as the latest step in its industrial development: "Million-and-a-half-dollar Islais Creek reclamation project initiated yesterday. Western Pacific to develop about 60 acres in and adjoining district for industrial terminal properties."

PHILADELPHIA IS among the oldest and most important of our Eastern cities to go after new industries in an intelligent, aggressive way. It will achieve results. Philadelphia has lately developed a new co-operative spirit among her most powerful citizens. This development is rich in promise.

LET WALL STREET exhibit buoyancy for a while and see the tonic effect upon business and employment. All that is needed to start the nation on an upward course is the right leadership.

DAILY TRUE STORY

B[illegible] had been very good friends, until Jim had introduced [illegible] to Lilly Dixon. Jim loved Lilly, and when she told him she and Owen were to be married, he took it as hard as he didn't known all along he didn't have a chance.

[illegible] was a flash, dashing little [illegible] the kind of guy [illegible] a girl's head. Any man [illegible] to fall for. Owen was different. He had a solid [illegible] of poise something that Jim lacked. [illegible] what [illegible] where Jim had failed.

Jim [illegible] the difference in some [illegible] affair [illegible] friend [illegible] years [illegible] Owen [illegible] had [illegible] to [illegible] and [illegible] twice [illegible] should [illegible] trap [illegible] I had [illegible] glad [illegible] brow [illegible] finger [illegible] mad [illegible] in [illegible] together [illegible] see [illegible] how to wash up [illegible].

Owen started to speak, but Jim already deep in his accounts seemed to have forgotten his existence.

The entire term of Owen's training might have terminated without [illegible] as a personal remark. Between the two had not Owen been witness to a rather [illegible] the day [illegible].

Owen Obeys

In case of accident Jim always took one of the men and went after the plane himself. On this occasion they had seen the plane drop. On his way to the hangar he met Owen.

"Come on, we're going after Blake," he shouted abruptly, and Owen had climbed into the passenger's cock pit without a word.

On arriving at the scene he had helped Jim drag the charred body of young Blake from the smoldering ship. Owen was ghastly white, and trembling. Jim worked, his lean brown face grim and clear eyed, his hands steady and gentle, even while there was no need of gentleness. Together they wrapped the body in a canvas and placed it in the cabin of Jim's plane.

"How do you suppose it happened?" Owen asked in a tense shaken whisper as he climbed in.

"No tellin'," was the abrupt reply.

The next morning Owen reported at Jim's office at eight. Something in his manner made Jim aware that there was a man size job ahead of him. He had met such occasions many times during his seven years command at the air port. He looked at Owen steadily.

"You'll be ready to take off at' twelve sharp. Go over the plane thoroughly with Gus and make sure everything is in shape," he ordered sharply.

Owen's glance wavered beneath his steady gaze and his long white fingers clasped and unclasped nervously.

Wants to Quit

"That's what I came about. I'm quitting," he said bluntly.

Jim had expected as much.

"You're what?" he asked in a hard, level voice.

Owen shifted his position. "I can't go on—after yesterday," he gasped in a weak voice, his forehead wet with perspiration.

"So—you're lost your nerve," Jim sneered, his mouth twisted in an amused smile.

Owen winced and turned his glance away.

"Maybe I have. I—"

"Well, you're not quitting—get that straight," Jim broke in.

Owen stared at him blankly.

"No man with the making of an airman in him has ever walked out on me yet," Jim said evenly.

"But Jim—you don't understand—"

"Sure, I do," Jim interrupted, with a grim smile.

Owen bit his lip.

"I'm sorry—on Lilly's account. She had counted on me coming out [illegible]. We've saved enough money to go in for commercial aviation on our own. She'll—" but Jim interrupted.

"Don't drag her in this," he remarked with brutal sharpness.

"Your private affairs are nothing to me—I'm here to see you get your training," he added.

Jim Is Patient

"You can't make me fly." He strode toward the door but Jim barred his way.

"Well you won't leave this room until you are ready to obey orders." Jim looked capable of forcing results. Somewhere behind his idea of duty was the thought of what Owen's failure would mean to Lilly. Once a man lost his nerve—Jim had seen the results. Owen attempted to pass, dealing him a heavy blow under the chin. He was beyond reason. Jim threw him off, landing him in a corner, stunned and breathless. Then he dragged him up and sat him in a chair. His manner changed and he laid his hand on Owen's shoulder.

"Listen old man, it's nerves—you've got to pull out of it. Once a thing like this gets the best of a man—well, never mind. Many a crack pilot has been up against the same thing." His voice was kind.

Owen was silent, then he looked up, his face wet with tears.

"You hate me for this, yellow you'd call it." His voice choked.

Jim was patient. "I don't see it that way, you'll get over it once you are up." There was a soothing note in his usually hard voice.

"Would it help if I take a few turns with you this morning?" he asked kindly, his strong fingers pressed hard on Owen's shoulder.

Solo Flight

Owen was silent for a moment, then his face relaxed and he closed his eyes. The next instant with set jaws, he faced Jim.

"I'll try it. It's decent of you."

"Don't mention it, every crack pilot I turn out is to my credit," Jim replied gruffly, but some of the strain had gone out of his face.

The short flights were nerve racking, but they served to keep Owen's mind off the solo. When the time arrived for the flight, he had to be forced into the plane, hardly able to stand. Jim's eyes didn't leave his face for a moment. He knew the signs of nerve strain. Knew just how far to go. He knew from experience, when a man could make it, and when he couldn't.

Ten [illegible] minutes later the plane taxied back down the runway. Jim went out to meet it. Owen climbed out, leaning against the side of the ship, wet and limp.

"Great stuff," Jim grinned, but there was more than that in the clasp of his strong fingers.

Owen, weak from excitement and gratitude, was on the verge of tears.

"That was great of you. I see now, once that fear got a hold on a man." He hesitated. "It's a man's job to pull a fellow through a thing like that. I'm glad for Lilly's sake."

Jim stiffened.

"Owen, I like you, like the stuff you're made of. We'll probably be good friends for the remainder of your stay if you can just leave Lilly out of it. Do you get my meaning?" There was a tinge of bitterness in his tone. For a moment he looked at Owen steadily, then his glance softened.

"In all respects, I'm not as hard as I look," he fumbled, turning away.

"I can vouch for that, and I think I understand. I'm sorry things had to be that way for you," there was regret in Owen's voice.

"No apologies necessary. That's life—there's no game without a loser." Jim remarked grimly, but there was a look of satisfaction in his dark eyes as they rested on the new pilot.

It is just a little gadget that fits on the end of the putter handle, and when it is placed over the ball the pellet is picked out of the cup and the dreaded stooping is eliminated. The mechanical pick-up idea was conceived by Dr. G. A. Snyder, of West Hollywood.

Costly Blunder in Most Carefully Planned Road

It is now estimated that the blunder Norman F. Brown, county director of public works, committed when he failed to make a definite arrangement with the Pennsylvania Water Company for running the Allegheny River Boulevard through the company's property at Nadine, will cost the taxpayers $482,000.

It is interesting to recall in this connection a statement made by Joseph G. Armstrong, chairman of the Board of County Commissioners, on January 26 last, in answer to the City Planning Commission's criticism that the Allegheny River Boulevard would be too narrow for the traffic that would use it. In a typewritten manuscript sent to the newspapers Armstrong asserted the criticism was unwarranted and that the City Planning Commission had been "asleep at the switch," Armstrong added:

"Our detailed plans are worked out in a very thorough manner and probably have had more care and attention given them than the plans for any road or boulevard which we have constructed in the last six years."

It appears now that it was Armstrong who was "asleep at the switch." And the taxpayers may well inquire, if a half-million dollar blunder can occur in the most carefully planned highway, what assurance do they have that the county's other public works are being satisfactorily handled.

Unfair Seaport Rates Injure Coal Industry

The people of Western Pennsylvania are familiar with the fight that Pittsburgh coal operators have waged over a long period of years to widen the spread between the freight rates charged for hauling coal from this district to the Great Lakes and the rates for hauling coal to the lakes from Southern West Virginia and Kentucky. They are not so familiar with the struggle to get fairer rates for the haul to the Atlantic coast ports. That is a matter in which the Central Pennsylvania operators are more concerned than the Pittsburgh coal producers; yet the latter stand to benefit also by revision of the rates and have done well in joining with the others in the complaint now being heard by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

A single illustration will suffice to show the substantial character of the Pennsylvanians' grievance. A southern operator can ship coal 427 miles to Newport News for 5.69 mills per ton per mile, while a Clearfield (Pa.) operator, shipping 304 miles to Philadelphia, must pay 7.65 mills per ton mile.

Southern operators, already favored by cheaper labor and lower taxes, are not entitled to lower railroad rates. The injustice of it should be enough to secure revision.

Striking Is Poor Way to Settle School Disputes

Apparently with the support of their parents, pupils of three public schools in Allegheny County are absenting themselves from classes as a protest against conditions of which they disapprove. The grievances vary. In one case the children are on strike because, they say, they are required to walk a mile along a road infested by vicious dogs. In other cases the protest is against being transferred to schools that are too far away or are said to be overcrowded or firetraps.

It must be admitted that the strikes direct attention to these grievances in a forceful way. But it is not the best way. It costs too much. The children are injuring themselves in staying away from school and the parents are rendering themselves liable to prosecution under the truancy laws.

The sensible plan to settle the disputes is for the parents, and possibly the children themselves, to call on the school directors and petition for relief from the conditions complained of. It may be that there is no way in which immediate relief can be obtained. If that is the case, it would be better to make the best of the existing situation until opportunity arises to effect improvement.

August Accident Record Shows What Can Be Done

The remarkable improvement shown by Pittsburgh's automobile accident record for August, so far as adult traffic fatalities are concerned, in comparison with the figures for August of last year, is significant as an example of what can be done to promote safety.

Adult traffic fatalities were cut down last month to six, as against 17 in the corresponding month of 1929. Lewis W. McIntyre, city traffic engineer, remarks that the improvement does not surprise him, as he has seen the same thing happen in other cities where an intense effort was made to enforce the law.

The decrease in adult fatalities is a reminder that while in the country as a whole they have increased 25 per cent in the last seven years, traffic fatalities of children under 15 have increased during the same period less than one per cent. Children are learning to look both ways before they cross the street. August's record suggests that Pittsburgh's adults are also learning the lesson.

Repairs Now Will Help to Relieve Unemployment

Peter Glick, secretary of labor and industry in the state government, offers a good suggestion in calling attention to the advantage of making household repairs at this time. He points out that the weather during the next few weeks will be more suitable for outdoor work than that in the winter months to follow, and that work done now will confer the additional benefit of helping to relieve unemployment.

No doubt there are numerous householders who have had it in mind to repair their roofs, or chimneys, or sidewalks, who have contemplated painting their houses, or papering, or demolishing and removing dilapidated wooden sheds, or doing any of a thousand other things that require attention in a well kept home.

The making of needed repairs promptly often results in saving large additional sums that would have to be expended if the work were postponed. It might be profitable for many a Pittsburgh property owner to inspect his premises and see if there is not something to be done.

"Bugs" Baer Says:

Miniature Golf Curse

The midget divoteer is abroad in the land and his steps lead to athletic infamy.

He niblicks not. Neither does he approach. But, like the lilies of the field, he is arrayed like a wet biscuit.

"Bugs" Baer

He is but a feeble cog in an anemic huddle of nocturnal prowlers microbing and germing under artificial light. When twilight arrives and the bat leaves his garaging barn, the lizard emerges from beneath the mossy rock and the rat whiskers the baited trap, the Tom Thumb golfer fares forth to irritate the atmosphere with futile gestures.

He taps an idiotic spheroid for all the world like a bankrupt apothecary down to his last pill.

It rolls hither and yon. It scurries whither and how. It revolves there and why? Who knows?

He urges it through a rain-spout, pilots it over a beer keg and drops it into a mail chute without postage. And all the time there is an expression on his face like a sore toe looking up at an avenging chiropodist.

Around that midget golfer we draw the circle of the mental boycott. We hem him in with the barbed wire of coventry. We condemn him to the eternal strut in the cul-de-sac of hopeless striving and ceaseless inconsequentiality of picayune muscular twitchings.

He has reduced the ancient and honorable tournament of the Scots to the least common denominator, and carried croquet out to the fifth fanatical decimal point.

He knows not the healthy swing of the energetic suburbanite as he includes earth, wind and sky in a parabola of misdirected sharpshooting. His terminal is not on the far horizon, for he has carved the last frontier up into polka dots. His direction flag is the horned plumes of a discouraged snail and his object is not known in the haunts of man or beast.

It would be just as well to play tiddly-winks with glass eyes on an optician's chart. It would be a far finer deed to challenge the invading foreigner to a polo match on animal crackers. It would be more gigantic and Homeric to send our Army and Navy against a lone tree-sitter on a geranium plant.

The miniature golfer has made the name of sport a shame and a by-word. Therefore we anathematize him with the triple curse of the robust hammock swinger and sentence him to eternal putting in the purgatory of the Bad Lands of Dakota.

JANOS BOLYAI

By Archibald Henderson

Some of the scientific theories and discoveries of modern times have caused men, at moments, to question whether, after all, nature is not, perhaps, capricious and illogical. Are natural laws as immutable as the laws of the Medes and Persians? Are laws which hold true everywhere on earth likewise valid on Betelgeuse or Sirius? It was the Norwegian dramatist, Ibsen, who once asked: "How can you guarantee that two and two do not make five on Jupiter?"

In modern times the discovery of the non-Euclidean geometries brings forcibly to the foreground this very question. Is the Euclidean geometry "true" on this planet, but not "true" on Mars? Huxley, though no mathematician and not having the mathematician's point of view, sensed the importance of the issue, as illustrated in his words:

"Let us suppose that a telescope powerful enough to show us what is going on in the nebula of the sword of Orion, should reveal a world in which stones fell upward, parallel lines met and the fourth dimension of space was quite obvious. Men of science would have only two alternatives before them. Either the terrestrial and the nebular facts must be brought into harmony by such feats of subtle sophistry as the human mind is always capable of performing when driven into a corner; or science must throw down its arms in despair and commit suicide, either by the admission that the universe is, after all, irrational, inasmuch as that which is truth in one corner of it is absurdity in another, or by a declaration of incompetency."

Einstein has shown conclusively that Huxley is wrong, and that neither geometry is "true" in the absolute sense. The particular geometry most suitable is that determined by the metric properties of the particular space in question. Fortunately, these geometries were available to him through the discoveries of a young Hungarian, Janos Bolyai.

This young man (1802-1860), whose father was a fellow student at Goettingen of the great mathematician Gausse, produced a brief treatise on "the absolutely true science of space," as he called it. In his enthusiasm, he wrote his father: "I have created a new universe from nothing." In contradistinction to Euclid, Bolyai assumed that, in a plane, instead of one line, two lines could be drawn through a point parallel to a given line. The system thus set up was logical and self-consistant. Gausse wrote in 1832: "I consider the young geometer, von Bolyai, a genius of the first rank." Bolyai's epochal work is one of the most brilliant achievements in the history of science.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

All this talk about farm relief. Bad times in the country districts . . . heck to pay in Washington. Why? Is it because dirt's cussed, climate contrary and trading crooked? Or is there possibly something amiss with Si himself?

Now, mind you, I've nothing against farmers, per se. I'm one myself and 100 per cent strong for the racket. Yet if you nose around you can't help noticing things and—well, here are some facts. Judge for yourself:

I'm working 400 acres of the prettiest dirt you'd want to find. Fine water. Perfect climate. A hunk of heaven—with similar hunks all around for a hundred miles. You couldn't locate a nicer ranching district. Yet it's the same old story. Dilapidated buildings. Starving cattle and skimpy crops. Banks foreclosing. Young, husky men loafing around, discouraged and disgusted. Riding past the broken fences, surveying the weed-grown orchards, I've wondered.

"No market—what's the use of working?" they answered. Was that really the reason?

The other day I rode into the busy little town that's the center of our district. Things looked prosperous enough. Radios blaring under the awnings, cars parked along the curb. Sun-tanned young bucks striding around in trick Stetsons. Made me think of my own youngsters, out on the ranch. Six of the finest. Born ranchers, but with no more notion of modern methods than a bunch of gophers. I decided I'd take back an armful of farm magazines—start reading up. Should be easy enough to get them, with three drug stores to choose from.

Easy? In 10 minutes I learned plenty. Buy a farm magazine in a ranching community? Try and do it! Magazines enough—racks piled high with them—but what about? Love stories, detective stories, wild West romances, confessions—but nary a page on cattle or grain.

"It's no use carrying them—we wouldn't have a call for one in a year," smiled the three proprietors.

"But how about the men? Surely the farmers, themselves, don't read this stuff?

"Yes, they do. Just as crazy about it as the women. And you can't blame them. It's sort of a relaxation—"

Relaxation? From what? From the grind of futile drudgery? But what makes it futile and what makes it drudgery? The cussedness of climate, the crookedness of markets? Or their own ignorance and indifference and lack of enthusiasm? Reading love confessions and wild West heart throbs while the wheat dwindles in the sour soil of the south pasture, while their fruit trees die of blight, because they try to run their farms by methods which their granddads used?

Could a business man keep his trade if he showed no more interest than that? Could an editor run his paper if he did no more studying than that? Judge for yourself.

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS.

Girls don't pretend near so much as they used to. Why, if a girl likes a guy nowadays, she says to all her relatives and friends, "Watch me cop that youngster! If I don't get him I'll cry my eyes out!" And the oldish aunties are shocked. I think these here girls are having a lot of fun telling the truth every once in a while.

Jean Pink was looking out the window kinda mooning, and her dad says to her, "Say, Jean, not that I'm anxious or anything, but when are you thinking about getting you a husband?"

"When am I Dad?" she says. "Why, as near as I can get to it I'm thinking about it all the time. I know I ain't got time for nothing else, and I ain't hardly any good to Mamma any more. I think about it so much."

Heartsease

Heartsease! What a lovely name
For a lovely flower.
Smiling through the sun's bright flame
Or the sudden shower!

All old-fashioned gardens knew
These loved blossoms' worth,
Velvety-petalled, gemmed with dew,
Nodding, close to earth.

Maidens have been called always
After flowers fair;
Lily, rose, a name betrays
All the sweetness there.

But to make the likeness true,
Dearer Flower than these,
I have found your name, for you
Should be called Heartsease!

Text For Today Blessed is the man that endureth temptation: for when he is tried, he shall receive the crown of life, which the Lord hath promised to them that love him.—James, i: 12.

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE

By H. G. WELLS
In Collaboration With
Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells.

Wherever a part is to grow smaller or larger than usual, it seems that a whole region is affected in this way, with growth grading down in this orderly way from a local growth-centre. Thus to enlarge the proportionate claw-size of the race of fiddler-crabs it is not necessary that mutations should crop up, to affect each of its joints separately.

One mutation affecting the intensity of growth in its growth-centre is all that is wanted. Again as D'Arcy Thompson had pointed out in his Growth and Form to make a sun-fish out of a more normal-shaped relative like Diodoon, it is not in the least necessary that each part of the body should be separately moulded by natural selection; the development of one very active growth-centre near the hind end of the body will automatically bring about the bulk of the changes, and selection need only polish, so to speak, and modify detail.

H. G. Wells

Thus a mere change in the amount of growth in one region or in one direction can wholly transform an animal. The power of such differences to alter the look of an organism can be personally studied by looking at one's reflection in a set of distorting mirrors. Extreme distortion turn one into another sort of creature. But mild convexities and concavities only alter the type.

It is surprising to see an oval-faced man transformed by a broadening mirror into a passable likeness of Mr. Winston Churchill, while a lengthening one makes him look quite like Lord Birkenhead.

Here we propose to study the process of selection itself in its chief modes and varieties of action. Natural Selection, as we have said, is a fact in the process of evolution and not a theory. It is not in itself the cause of anything whatever.

Professor Fairfield Osborne in a recent enumeration of the factors in the evolutionary process set it aside from the others as "non-energetic," an excellent distinction.

The others, the various causes of variation, were "energetic" but natural selection was simply a passive stop or release of what the others had produced.

And that is the essential conception of its action. It is a filter. It is a sieve. It is a balance to reject or accept. Either a variation in the germ-plasm qualifies for success or survival of it disqualifies.

The disqualification of a variation may be absolute—as when two recessive lethal genes get together to kill a yellow mouse in the uterus—or relative, when there is merely a disadvantage that enfeebles the new type, puts it at a disadvantage, or prevents it breeding as freely as the species in general.

The advantage of a variation, on the other hand, is always relative. It gives the individual an ampler life and fuller opportunities of distributing the new advantageous gene.

We lay this much stress on this fact that selection is selection and not production, not because we lack any respect for our readers' intelligence but because there exists a voluminous foolish literature of controversy in which Darwin is alleged to have taught that Natural Selection, in Heaven knows what inconceivable way, produced variations. Thereupon he is trounced, disposed of, burnt in controversial effigy and generally made an end to.

Some victim of such mephitic controversy may chance to breathe the purer air of this work, and for him it is that we underline the obvious and explain to him that A means A, and not X, Y, Z. All about us and at every moment Natural Selection is going on. Mr. Everyman slaps at a fly, and it moves or does not move quickly enough to avoid him.

He catches a glimpse of Mr. Everymouse, who was not smart enough to keep out of his way and he decides to put down a trap. He strokes his cat, which is neither clever nor patient enough to get Mr. Everymouse, and goes out into the street, so preoccupied with the painful question whether he will keep his cat or send it to the chemist, that he is nearly knocked down by an automobile he has failed to observe.

He stumbles back clumsily, bruises his hand against a wall, and is invaded by some myriads of bacteria of a devitalizing and dangerous type. Will his white corpuscles do their duty?

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—"Write some more of those details of yourself, the more intimate the better," postscripts a beautiful lady and thus bludgeoned it on a bleak, melancholy day, here goes! I read my home town paper daily although there are scarcely any names I know any more.

The cook's name is Kathryn, the maid's Anne and the chauffeur Fred. All are German. Furnishing an apartment costs three times what I expected, and it still looks skimpy. I like thin slices of yellow cheese for breakfast and floating island for dinner.

I read the American and World in the morning and Telegram and Sun at night. I buy almost every periodical at Blind George's on a Bryant Park corner. I write, one leg around the other at a typewriter and continually reach out, lift up something on the desk and put it down quickly.

I'm depressed visiting hotels where I once lived. A clock on my desk tells the time in all parts of the world at any minute. For no reason I often look to see what time it is on the Canary Islands. My hair is muddy gray. My dog sits in corners on one hip.

I am a sentimentalist except where money is concerned. The only mother I ever knew was a grandmother who reared me. My own mother died when I was a child in arms. I have a charge account at Cartier's and in 10 years it has totaled $2—for silver polish and repairing a button hook.

I do not believe scandal about others. All scandal mongering is malicious and malicious persons will invariably lie. I never saw anyone of film importance drunk in Hollywood. I had two nicknames, "Dunk" and "Splinters." I'm particularly fond of old people.

The only person I wish to see in prison isn't yet. Some of my most lasting friendships are with printers on newspapers. I ride an hour and walk an hour in different sections of New York every evening, rain or shine, and have for seven years. I have a sister living in Kansas City.

My sole extravagance is ties, pajamas, shirts and socks that are never used but packed away. I would not part with them, but could not use them all if I lived two hundred years. All of which is damnably selfish.

* * *

I listen to Floyd Gibbons on the radio when possible. I rarely look at my copy after it leaves the typewriter. When I do I want to write it over again. I cannot write double space and my articles with hurried corrections are the despair of a syndicate office.

It infuriates for anyone to touch my newspapers before reading them or bother anything on my desk. I have been at it too long to be sensitive to criticism about writing. About everything else I am super-sensitive. I sometimes have two and three manicures a week and then go a year without them.

* * *

My wife writes the prettiest hand I ever saw. Nor have I seen any chirography like it. The three cities where I find writing easiest are New York, Los Angeles and Paris. I work best in artificial light. The book I enjoyed most this year is "Seed" by Charles G. Norris. The show at which I laughed loudest is "Flying High." I am a sucker for pop corn balls.

* * *

I wouldn't stand on the roof of the Chrysler Building and—things go black thinking about it—look down, for a fortune. I usually awaken at 5 a. m. for an hour and think of the dandiest topics to write about but how banal they are when I try them out! I am always in a flutter over something I lose and immediately find. The only enemies I know about are those I have befriended.

My wife has never seen me cry. I sit taut in airplanes but haven't any fear. I drink from six to ten glasses of water at each meal. Any other questions?

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Because you feel that you are not an expert in your line don't let that hinder you from trying to get to the top.

Some folk are willing to take a mediocre position just because they have not the ability to be a leader.

If you as a youngster came out always second best, never the highest in the class, should you stop trying to get to the top in later years?

Don't you know that one must be second before first is accomplished?

A little more trying, an extra effort and some time you will come out first.

But to stop trying because second place does not interest you is poor judgment.

It is all right to be dissatisfied with failure to reach your goal.

But to stop trying because you can't make the goal every time you try is giving in to discouragement.

A little more preparation, a little harder pull, a little more control of your eye, and your eye on the bull's eye.

At least you can make a never-ending struggle for the top, and if you can hang on the rest the other fellow may get too sure and fail.

That would be your chance. Don't ease up till you are ready to retire.
